BAD WRITING. That bad writing is the rule rather than the exception, even among the educated class none will deny. but why this is thus would be perhaps difficult to explain. Business men are familiar with annoyances and frequent loss arising from the difficulty or impossibility of reading businessletters correct Compositors and proofreaders are often infuriated, and liable to think imparliamentary language out loud, (an account of illegible manuscript; and even the ladies wrestle at times in a vain attempt to decipher clearly the entire contents of letters of correspond once from distant loved ones-relatives we mean. The loss of time and temper oned every day on account of bad writing is doubtless considerable With some people bad writing is an affectation, but with the majority it is, we believe, nothing more or less than a lamentable display of carlessness. In our opinion the female sex write much more legibly than the male, at least this has been our experience. This may be because they do not usually write so hurriedly. In connection with this subject we are pleased to know that more interest is being devoted to this branch of education in our public schools. It is really gratifying the decided progress which has recently been made in Markdale school. The rodction of the virtical i, stem, as displayed at the recent closing exercises, and manifested in the various copy books of the school is encouraging and commendable. Saturday morning a great cloud of grasshoppers passed over the town to the north east and Saturday night's boats arriving here reported having run through scree of the pests which had been drowned. Sunday the shores of the bay and the banks of the river were covered with the dead in many places so that they could be picked up in handfulls. The question which naturalists will ask is whether the grasshoppers were not driven to suicide by the parasite with which they were ming covered. The farmers from the surrounding sections report that the danger of a plague is passed as the number shows a marked diminution. Durham Chronicle.

SPECILE RICES

FOR 30 DAYS AT ⇒ W. J McFarland & Son &

We intend taking stock next month. "You know what that means," and we find we have lines in all departments that must not go through the stock inventory sheet.

We are quite aware that there is only one way to reduce stock and make business hum in mid-summer, and that is

SELL GOOD GOODS BELOW THEIR MARKET VALUE.

Consequently we start to day, Monday, July 18 with a good keen edge knife to cut away the profits on certain lines in each department.

You will see goods hopping around all over the store with their profits completely lopped off. Yes? and many lines where the knife was inserted too deep minus a part of their original cost also.

We have too many goods and are determined to reduce the stock several thousand dollars in the next 30 days.

WATCH AND SEE IF WE DONT!

Because we always lead ITOCETIES the trade in dry goods don't lose sight of the fact that we also lead in groceries Because we buy in large quantities to secure extra discounts and special prices, remember we buy none but the best goods and you can rely on our groceries always being fresh and good

The large business we do enables us to turn over more goods than the average store, consequently we can afford to buy large lots at cut prices, especially is this so in Teas, and we have now in stock extra value in all grades of Tea. Remember we import the bulk of our tea direct in 50 and 100 chest lots. Common sense will tell you that we buy for less money in quantities like this than the average small store that | buy three or four, yes, and often only one chest at a time, and we always sell as we buy at the lowest possible price.

Give our teas a fair trial, you will get better value for the money than most stores offer.
