MARKDALE

A small agricultural village of nearly 1000 inhabitants, situated on the Canadian Pacific Railway, in the centre of Grey County, 43 miles from Owen Sound, 100 miles from Collingwood, shipping ports, and ninety-three miles from Guelph. It is a quiet, peaceful town, well supplied by travellers to the west. It is a progressive and financially substantial town, with all the year-round market needed for the surrounding country. Businesses and professionals are here to stay. The people are of a substantial character and modern dress. It has a first class system of education and light. The taxes are low, the cost of living is moderate, and the balance held in the bank is large. It has four churches and one school. It has a post office, a telegraph office, two gas and electric companies, two saw mills, cheese box, veneer mill, lumber yards, flour mill, grain elevators, etc. The surrounding country is well timbered, and has a great deal of poplar, a mixture of old English, Scotch, and Irish trees, and some American timber.
