It was found that the floo had gone down two feet in the middle. The hasty unloading of the weak par doubtless saved many lives.

Broken Bonds

There was a larger crowd out on Monay evening to see the popular play Broken Bonds," than was present hen this production was first pre inted in Markdale. Not a few among he number were people who had seen only two months ago, and they emed better pleased than ever. There re of course many pessimists who ould pick out more flaws in the piece ud its presentation than any fair finded critic could perceive, but peole of this kind are to be found every here. No doubt there were flaws but he reople who look for flaws would do Il to take into consideration the urely amateur status of the players, d to kindly overlook any trifling disepency. As a word to the wise, we ould suggest to the members of the ramatic club that in future, if occasion ould arise, and they drift again into eavy tragedy, they would do well to seard gun power and substitute in its ace the bludgeon or the buile. Not at the scenic effect of a stabbing fray is better calculated to satisfy the aving of an intelligent audience, but ther, because, when firearms are ed, it is very often the case that the mmer and the nipple fail to connect el'a scene which was meant to appeal the deeper emotions and to be the
