FIFTEEN THOUSAND KILTS. Righland Regiments Need That Number

Every Year I think that the publication of regi-nontal journals is a step in the direction montal journals is a step in the direction of really uncliorating the condition of Tommy, without which no effective army reform is possible. Thus I welsome the Red Hackle, which is published by the Black Watch. It is a twenty four page quarto, "price annas two." The number before me was printed at Lahore. It is full of interesting facts. Thus I learn that 15,000 kills are made for the Highland regiments every year, and if mangets a new one only once in two years. The Red Hackle, speaking of the Gordons at Dargal, says they "bave added" one or at Dargai, says they "have added one or more flurels, to Scotia's "crewn," and the Black Wasch "sent a telegram complimenting the G. G.'s on their bravery and success," and received a letter from them returning thanks for the good wishes.
