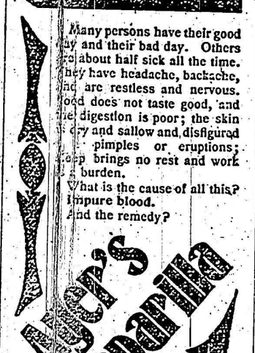
Half Sick Half Well

Many persons have their good day and their bad day. Others are about half sick all the time. They have headache, backache, and are restless and nervous. Food does not taste good, and the digestion is poor; the skin is dry and sallow and disfigured by pimples or eruptions; sleep brings no rest and work is a burden.

What is the cause of all this? Impure blood.

And the remedy?



It drives out the channels through which poisons are carried from the body. When all impurities are removed from the blood nature takes right hold and completes the cure.

If there is constipation, take Ayer's Pills. They awaken the drowsy action of the liver; they cure biliousness.

County Council

O S Times

At 7.30 o'clock on Monday evening, Warden Richardson took the chair and declared the sixth and last session of the 44th council of the county of Grey, to be duly opened. The following members were in attendance: Division No 1, Charles Allen, W A Bishop; No 2, W A Tofflemire, James Anderson; No 3, Charles Robinson, George Binnie; No 4, Andrew Schenk, James Allan; No 5, George Jackson, Matthew Richardson; No 6, [illegible] Preston, Neil McColman; No 7, C R Sharpe, George A Brown; No 8, Francis Pearce, John McDonald. After the minutes of the last meeting had been read by County Clerk John Rutherford and confirmed, the warden assured the members that it gave him great pleasure to meet with them again in their capacity as county councillors at this the last session of the present term. He was not now aware of any special business with which the council would have to deal, something might subsequently crop up which would require their serious consideration. However, he felt assured that their deliberations during the present session, would be characterized by the same calmness, expenditure and care, as had distinguished their meetings in the past. This period, would be the last time they would meet together as county councillors. Some would doubtless, be back next year, while some would in all probability be left behind or choose to remain at home of their own accord. However he was sure that there was none present who would ever have anything but pleasant memories of their meetings during the last five sessions and confidently trusted that their associations during the present session would be characterized by the same pleasant relations. The remainder of the meeting was occupied in receiving accounts and communications of which the following are the most important: Copy of resolution passed by the Meaford town council, containing a reply to the vote of thanks tendered the municipality by the council for the hospitality shown to it on the occasion of its meeting here last June; report of the special committee appointed to investigate the dispute in connection with townline in Artemesia; copy of the report of the grand jury at the last General Sessions of the Peace; application of the Durham Public School Board for a grant in support of continuation [illegible]; application from Charles Dobson to be appointed county [illegible] at the Guelph Agricultural College on the next vacancy; communication from the county clerk, drawing attention to the fact that the county bylaw regulating hawkers and pedlars licences conflicts with the statute; communication from the police magistrate of Owen Sound enclosing the committal papers of three children, William Mercer, Alfred Cameron and Etta Moore sent to Industrial School at the expense of the county; copy of the annual report of Children's Aid Society; application for grant from the Owen Sound Poultry and Pet Stock Association; treasurer's statement of auctioneers and pedlars license issued during the year; copy of presentment of grand jury at last general assize. The following memorials to the Legislative Assembly were also read and referred to the different committees; from the county of Welland praying that the power now held by towns and villages to regulate the sale of farm produce in their limits be rescinded; from the Wentworth county council asking that a uniform law regulating bicycle traffic on the public highways be passed and enforced throughout the province; from Wentworth county council urging a change in the present system of appointing municipal auditors; from Dufferin county council, recommending the adoption of a less expensive system of summoning jurors. The county treasurer also wrote asking for instructions how to act in reference to a demand made for the first time by the clerk of the Surrogate Court, for special forms used in his office.

The warden drew the attention of the council to a statement containing information as to the advisability of erecting a House of Refuge which he and the clerk had prepared. It would be for the members to decide whether it would be expedient to have a number of copies printed and distributed throughout the county.

The council then adjourned until 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Tuesday Afternoon

The warden resumed the chair at 2.15 Tuesday afternoon with the members all present. After the confirmation of the minutes of the last meeting, the following communications were read: from the township of Bentinck, refusing to pay the expenses in connection with the bridge on the county line near Hanover, on the ground that it had not been consulted with regard to the expenditure; from the residents of Hanover, asking to be incorporated village; from the sheriff, setting forth the necessity of improved ventilation in the court room, and suggesting certain improvements to the judges private room; from the sheriff drawing attention to a recommendation made by the Inspector of prisons, that a safe be provided in which to keep the jailers keys, handcuffs, etc; from the sheriff, asking that a quantity of coal be supplied for jail purposes, and also drawing attention to the unsafe condition of the southern stairway in the court house. A number of accounts were also presented; Mr Binnie presented report No 4 of the finance committee, which was as follows:—(1) that the accounts of the Copp Clark Co of $8.50, for jury books, and of R Brecken ridge & Son of $7.50 for burying Thos Moffatt, an indigent, be paid; (2) that the treasurer's statement of auctioneers and pedlars licences issued during the year, be inserted in the minutes; (3) that upon examination of the treasurers statement account, we find that supplies have been distributed as follows; jailor, $6.48; jurors, $22.20; sheriff, $1.30; Peace, $7.57; clerk of the Surrogate Court, $21.80; county solicitors, $4.86; county treasurer, $14.78; North Grey registry office, $1.50; valuation of amount on hand, $12.20; (4) that the account for the payment of orders be issued for the payment of the following accounts: H P Adair, $5.40; Jos Doust, $20; Thos Weir, $1.25; R J Edgar $11.25; (5) that the application of the Owen Sound Poultry Association for a grant, be not entertained; (6) that the account of $45 from the township of Sydenham for the medical examination of an indigent lunatic, amounting to $14. be paid; (7) in accordance with the suggestion made by the clerk, bylaw 419, regulating hawkers and pedlars license be repealed, and a new bylaw be prepared in accordance with the amended provisions of the Municipal Act; (8) that the application of W T Robertson for blank forms used in the office of the clerk of Surrogate Court, be granted. The report also commended very highly the work done by the Children's Aid Society.

The report passed as read, although

MRS. WRIGHT, OF NORTH ENGLISH, IOWA. FORMERLY OF ELGIN, ILLINOIS.

Raw From Her Toes to Her Knees

Dr. Chase Makes a Wonderful Cure.

Mrs. Knight, 17 Hanover Place, Toronto, makes the following statement:—

"My mother, Mrs. Wright, who lives at Normal, near Doncaster, suffered a summer and winter with Eczema in her feet. She could not walk, and very seldom got any sleep. It became so bad that she was perfectly raw from the toes to the knees. After trying every available remedy without receiving any benefit, and almost hopeless of relief, she was advised to try Dr. Chase's Ointment. She has altogether used 6 boxes since commencing, but with the happiest results, for she is now completely cured. There is but one scar on one of her feet, a memento of her fearful suffering and affliction. Any person desiring further testimony in this case is at liberty to communicate with Mrs. Wright at her address, Normal P. O.

Mrs. Knight says after such a grand success, is it any wonder we recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment?

W. H. De Long, Civil Engineer, ex-Warden, and County Councillor, New Germany, Lunenburg Co., N S., Oct. 25th, 1897, says:—"I had Eczema for thirty years, and have tried various kinds of pile cures, but none gave me permanent relief until I used Dr. Chase's Ointment. I have recommended it to others with the same result."

Messrs Gordon and Bishop fought hard in committee of the whole, to have a grant of $25 given to the Poultry Association. Mr Anderson and the ward men were however, their only supporters.

Mr Binnie introduced bylaw 550 to confirm a bylaw passed by the council of the township of Bentinck closing a road allowance, described as on side line 15 con 14 of the said township. The bylaw passed its first and second readings and it was not until the council was in committee as a whole, that the members discovered they were unaware what road they were closing. They thereupon decided to proceed no further until a more definite and accurate description of the road had been obtained.

The council then adjourned until 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

CONDENSED BY FREEZING.

A New Process for Preserving Milk Indefinitely.

Considering the wide and extended use of condensed milk products, the new method of manufacturing it by a freezing instead of a heating process was carried out at Cattaraugus, N Y., is important and interesting. The first treatment consists in placing the milk in a vacuum chamber to rid it of the atmospheric air dissolved in the milk, which appears at the surface in bubbles, and thus escapes. This reduces the volume of the milk about one-tenth. The milk leaves this chamber at the proper temperature for the removal of the fatty contents by means of a cream separator which is set to run heavy cream. During this process any foreign matter, such as solid particles, which are always in evidence, are removed and the cream is added subsequently to the finished product.

From the separator the fat free milk is run over a bank of copper pipes, through which ice water circulates, reducing the temperature of the milk from 80 degrees. After passing over these cooling coils it is placed in refrigerating chambers and constantly stirred. In about nine hours the whole bulk of milk is converted into a mass of icy crystals and milk sufficiently thick to form into hummocks. This is again placed in a centrifugal, and the milk reduced in volume about one-half. An average sample of the ice is very much like snow, given to annoys only about two tenths of 1 per cent. of solid matter. The now thick milk is turned to the freezing closet, and in about seven hours more it is reduced to a dense mass of crystals, which, after centrifugal treatment, measures only one quarter of the original bulk. A third freezing of four and a half hours, and a centrifugal extraction, reduces the bulk of the milk to about 12 per cent. of its original volume.

The final step of the process is the admixture of the heavy cream in proper proportions to the fat free milk. This final product, or concentrated milk, is a fair representation of milk in its watery. Moreover, from foreign flavors, and has which is true to the milk from which it is prepared. It mixes readily with water, forming milk from which cream will separate as from untreated milk. To show the concentration of the milk, it may be stated that taking 100 gallons of milk as a unit quantity, this would reduce to thirteen gallons in the finished product. In other words, the eighty seven gallons of water in the milk are formed into ice, leaving an unfrozen residue of thick milk, which represents in milk sugar, casein and inorganic salts fully one gallon, to which is added the fats of the first cream and sixteen gallons of cream. In the second part, which is the normal proportion in the average milk. It is stated that condensed milk prepared in this manner will keep indefinitely, as the micro-organisms producing fermentation are destroyed.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Never fails to Cure.

AS TO EARLY MARRIAGES.

Whether It Is a Help or a Hindrance Depends on Circumstances.

It depends upon a number of things. To make one rule fit all cases would be impossible. Indeed, the numerous and excellent answers to this question received by Success, differing so widely in their import, have, like the verdict of the travelers concerning the chameleon, "all been right, and all been wrong."

There are occasionally men to whom home restraints and home requirements would be exceedingly irksome, even detrimental. They are, by every implication of their being, free lances—free to roam from land to land, from city to city, from house to house, or to bury themselves in laboratories or literary dens, or other places where they can be let absolutely alone. Their wanderings, and the things pertaining to them, or their experiments and burrowings, are all the care for. Love would be to them only a secondary consideration, the care of a family only a nuisance. For men of this type to marry, early or late, would be a hindrance, because their natural inclinations and habits would cause friction and unhappiness; things which are utterly demoralizing to success.

There are, on the other hand, many men, and perhaps more women, whose lives are, by isolation, want of sympathy, loneliness, and lack of comfortable living, so dissatisfied that brains and hands refuse to do their potential best; and, in their restlessness, these people spend money needlessly on many things which have in them a positively temporary satisfaction, or which render impossible for a time. People of this type, if rightly mated, find in marriage their highest happiness and most efficient help.

To a majority of people a feeling of being settled is necessary to success. Very few men can have this feeling without a home. The student or clerk has his room or his club, the military officer has his quarters, the sea captain his cabin; the herdsman his ranch; associated men have their clubs, societies and lodges; but, without a woman, a home is practically unknown.

Few single men save their earnings. Their bachelor days they are liable to run to expensive and careless habits, and to keep bad company, all of which means only a squandering of dollars, but a ducking of the finer power and head power by which dollars are earned. Such men need a neutralizing influence, a counteracting influence, which will draw and keep them away from demoralizing haunts. This magnet is usually found in a wife and home. "I should never have earned a dollar had I not had a wife's encouragement and counsel and the hope of a home lighted by her eyes," said a young man to the writer.

A young man who takes a wife before he is able to support her puts himself in a very doubtful position as regards great success in life; for, unless he is extremely fortunate, his family demands will increase faster than his ability to meet them. Most self-made men see the day and was the hardest of all their wealth to accumulate, so that a young man on a moderate salary, with a family of [illegible] and perhaps his carriages, will find it very difficult to get this first thousand ahead.

Again, while one husband and wife find stimulation and happiness in building up a success inch by inch, another couple would be constantly chafed and irritated by poverty and its deprivations, and so in accordance to procure the wherewithal to live. It is worse still when only one of a married pair feels this impatience of conditions and the irritation from a contentment of expenses.

We must, then, conclude that whether early marriage binds or helps, success depends upon three things—the mental and moral needs of the individual, his ability to provide satisfactory home conditions and especially upon the choice of a mate. These conditions being properly met, early marriage is undoubtedly, in a large majority of cases, not a hindrance, but an immense help to success.—Success.

Breeding Work Horses.

W. C. Edwards, Rockland, Ont., writes thus to the Canadian Sportsman: Some years ago we adopted a method that was in a measure new to us, but has proved highly satisfactory and profitable, and nothing would induce us to return to the old system.

We occupy forty horses about our mills here in the summer season. In the rear of our stables we have a feed room where our cut straw for feeding and our cut hay, oats and ground feed are kept; and here we have two mixing boxes where the rations for the horses are mixed before feeding.

The cut hay is put into these boxes and is thoroughly mixed with the wet hay, one-half pound bran and five pounds ground oats, and barley to each horse night and morning, and four pounds dry oats only at noon.

Our horses are generally of large size and are using excessively hard work and we found the ration too small for them, and we gradually increased it until we have settled down to this: five pounds hay, five pounds ground grain and one-half pound bran to each horse morning and night, and eight pounds dry oats only at noon; no hay, and this we find ample for the largest class of horses doing the most excessive work.

Our saving is at least ten pounds hay per day for each horse and six pounds grain for each. Not only is this the case, but our horses are healthier and better in every way.

Under the old system it was a common thing for us to lose from one to five horses every summer and sometimes even more, with colic and inflammation, but in the past seven summers under our new system, not only have we not lost one horse, but we have not had a sick horse.

As much less ration than we feed would be ample for farm horses or for any horses doing ordinary work. We may add also, that with this system of feeding hay, together with the free use of wheat bran and a little ground oats mixed with it, we find we can develop colts in a manner that we have never seen them developed before.
