AN OLD MAN'S DARLING.

BY MRS. ALEX. McV. MILLER

Author of "The Senator's Bride," "Brunette and Blonde," "A Dreadful Temptation," Etc.

...when she was recalled ab-
...I will to speak with
...sent, if you please."
...ment at the In-
...tone. Bouchel
...look with a gleam
...in her blue eyes
...she answered, coldly,
...what you have to say
...

Mrs. Arnold,
your strength
however."
...in silent sur-
...

...an offer of mar-
..." said Mrs.
...ligestive.
...reopened their
...

...he answered.
"But I am
...which you
fact."
...Mrs. Arnold re-
...and, under the
..." Do you
...would think
...I am no
...by my emotion.

Bouchel answer-
...when herself
...She was
...The fair
...Boy, help
...d the white
...instantly in
...the sta-

...her folded
...ed on
...had se-
...the ca-
...almost

...They
...herself
...home. They took
...her away, but Bouchel
...had seen it. It was fate, still fate
...as it had been all through.

She ...it now with a shiver.
Some ...ed turned the poor girl into the ...ide. Would that he her late?

A ...
She ...
...a chair like one shot.
...and M...
...could ...
...she stood near her
The ...ood, wild beating of
Her ...little white hands
...her cheeks and lips turn-
...making.

"Am...
...at the ...
...woman, "your
...have ...
...ridly ...
...ness in ...

...
...
...