

During the past few days, the Governor has been most conscientiously supervising his tiny wine presses...

The resumption of the disorder in the Austrian Parliament, with the suggestions of political chaos which that condition conveys...

In the present condition of unstable equilibrium in Europe a disturbance in either Austria or Sweden might have political consequences which would be disagreeable to both parties in each of these discordant nations...

A civil disturbance in either Austria-Hungary, or Sweden-Norway might, in the present desire of the great nations of Europe for new territory, incite a repetition of the disintegrations and secessions which were precipitated by the Corsican conqueror...

Farmer and His Horse Save Fourteen Men From Drowning. Monsieur de Pages, in his 'Travels Round the World,' relates an extraordinary instance of courage and endurance on the part of a man and his horse...

During a violent gale, a vessel in the bay dragged her anchors and was driven on the rocks. Most of the crew were saved, but some were described as having been blown to sea...

While a farmer, considerably advanced in years, had come from his farm to be a spectator of the tragedy, his heart melted at the sight, and among the spirit of his horse and his wonderful strength and endurance as a swimmer, he determined to attempt a rescue...

The moment of revenge, of fancied annihilation, passed; it was but a young thing trembling in every limb who stood before him with slender hands held up to him in prayer...

Yes-I will-but I tell you plainly I have little hope of getting him yet. All I have to put against him is one small scrap of evidence that may be worth much, or nothing at all...

Mr. Laitreille took her poor little flitting hand, and held it fast between his strong ones. 'You a bad woman?' he said, literally thinking aloud, 'not a bit of it-a better one never breathed for all your intrigues, and though you can't tell me, and stick to it, too, and I'll do my best. So he won't see you, eh?'

'No,' said Mr. Laitreille, his side glance taking in all the pride and suffering of her face. 'I think I can save him, but I must have your consent. Tell him, she said earnestly, that she had no favor to beg of him, and that she would be glad to see him if he would call on her...

Long before that she had sacrificed her own comfort to economy in the house, and she might take a small cottage in the country, where she could live in peace and quietude, and be free from all the annoyances of the city...

There were others-neither friends nor foes-suggested that, when acting on a mad impulse, he had descended to the drawing-room, either struck with remorse or maddened by Elizabeth's reproaches, he had turned the pistol against himself; but it was possible that after such an occurrence she could have slept calmly for many hours...

Again, burglars do not as a rule go anywhere without being pretty well armed; and if they had received information from a confederate in the house, they would probably not have been surprised at all, but departed with the same ease as they had entered...

The Mystery of No. 13.

CHAPTER IV-Continued.

'Barry Ross was a good fellow' he said abruptly. 'How the devil could Elizabeth have struck her?' Mr. Laitreille had struck her. 'He was a hound,' she said, with a gesture of furrowed forehead and a re-ard; 'a traitor and coward, and he deserved what he got, and more-and more!'

'You a bad woman?' he said, literally thinking aloud, 'not a bit of it-a better one never breathed for all your intrigues, and though you can't tell me, and stick to it, too, and I'll do my best. So he won't see you, eh?'

'No,' said Mr. Laitreille, his side glance taking in all the pride and suffering of her face. 'I think I can save him, but I must have your consent. Tell him, she said earnestly, that she had no favor to beg of him, and that she would be glad to see him if he would call on her...

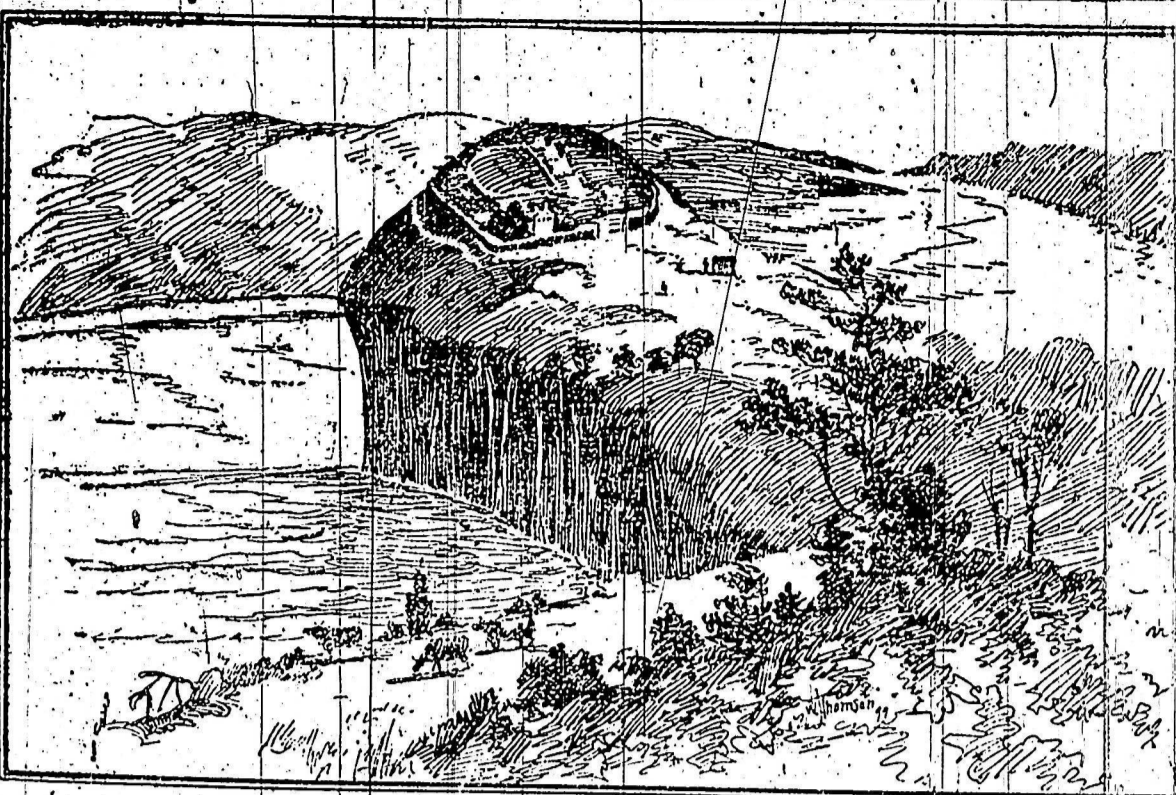

Long before that she had sacrificed her own comfort to economy in the house, and she might take a small cottage in the country, where she could live in peace and quietude, and be free from all the annoyances of the city...

There were others-neither friends nor foes-suggested that, when acting on a mad impulse, he had descended to the drawing-room, either struck with remorse or maddened by Elizabeth's reproaches, he had turned the pistol against himself; but it was possible that after such an occurrence she could have slept calmly for many hours...

Again, burglars do not as a rule go anywhere without being pretty well armed; and if they had received information from a confederate in the house, they would probably not have been surprised at all, but departed with the same ease as they had entered...

There were others-neither friends nor foes-suggested that, when acting on a mad impulse, he had descended to the drawing-room, either struck with remorse or maddened by Elizabeth's reproaches, he had turned the pistol against himself; but it was possible that after such an occurrence she could have slept calmly for many hours...

Again, burglars do not as a rule go anywhere without being pretty well armed; and if they had received information from a confederate in the house, they would probably not have been surprised at all, but departed with the same ease as they had entered...

A REMARKABLE BRITISH FORT ON THE TUGELA RIVER, EAST OF CAPTURED COLENO.

This position of extraordinary strength is a relic of the time that the British were fighting the Zulus under Cetewayo. The fort has not yet been called into use, but the place on this river, Coleno, where the railway crosses the stream...

if their conduct is praiseworthy, are transferred to the good class, marked by a red flag; but each class has an opportunity of observing the progress of the prisoners in their own cells. There are no parole; no one is allowed to mix with any other class, and the prisoners are not permitted to work for the prison, but are housed in wards, and in cells used except for discipline. The prisoners are allowed to read, and are kindly treated and well fed. The food consists of 'maitre paridge', but and bread, their diet is very plain, but they have many special courses. The food is fast consists of 'maitre paridge', but and bread, their diet is very plain, but they have many special courses. The food is fast consists of 'maitre paridge', but and bread, their diet is very plain, but they have many special courses.

The most remarkable native prisoner was the son of a Cape of Good Hope, who had been captured at Oxford University. He gave the best that England could give him, and he returned to the Cape, where he was employed as a teacher. He had a wonderful memory, and he was a very good teacher. He was a very good teacher, and he was a very good teacher.

The prisoners are divided into three classes, signifying the time they have been incarcerated and their behavior. The first class, known as the 'black' class, are marked by a black band around their necks. The second class, known as the 'red' class, are marked by a red band around their necks. The third class, known as the 'white' class, are marked by a white band around their necks.

The British Government keeps vessels at work sounding and charting the ocean beds to find out where the coal beds are. Last year 40,000 square miles were surveyed in the different parts of the world. As a result of this work, the British Government has discovered many new coal beds, and it is doing very well.

There is also the son of a Cape of Good Hope, who had been captured at Oxford University. He gave the best that England could give him, and he returned to the Cape, where he was employed as a teacher. He had a wonderful memory, and he was a very good teacher. He was a very good teacher, and he was a very good teacher.

There is also the son of a Cape of Good Hope, who had been captured at Oxford University. He gave the best that England could give him, and he returned to the Cape, where he was employed as a teacher. He had a wonderful memory, and he was a very good teacher. He was a very good teacher, and he was a very good teacher.

PRACTICES OF DOCTORS.

OF THE TRADITIONS USED IN THE SIXTEENTH CENTURY.

Cast into the sea. The first book of the history of medicine, written by Hippocrates, is a treatise on the nature of the body, and the chapter on the nature of the body is a treatise on the nature of the body, and the chapter on the nature of the body is a treatise on the nature of the body...

The first book of the history of medicine, written by Hippocrates, is a treatise on the nature of the body, and the chapter on the nature of the body is a treatise on the nature of the body, and the chapter on the nature of the body is a treatise on the nature of the body...

The first book of the history of medicine, written by Hippocrates, is a treatise on the nature of the body, and the chapter on the nature of the body is a treatise on the nature of the body, and the chapter on the nature of the body is a treatise on the nature of the body...

The first book of the history of medicine, written by Hippocrates, is a treatise on the nature of the body, and the chapter on the nature of the body is a treatise on the nature of the body, and the chapter on the nature of the body is a treatise on the nature of the body...

The first book of the history of medicine, written by Hippocrates, is a treatise on the nature of the body, and the chapter on the nature of the body is a treatise on the nature of the body, and the chapter on the nature of the body is a treatise on the nature of the body...

The first book of the history of medicine, written by Hippocrates, is a treatise on the nature of the body, and the chapter on the nature of the body is a treatise on the nature of the body, and the chapter on the nature of the body is a treatise on the nature of the body...

The first book of the history of medicine, written by Hippocrates, is a treatise on the nature of the body, and the chapter on the nature of the body is a treatise on the nature of the body, and the chapter on the nature of the body is a treatise on the nature of the body...

The first book of the history of medicine, written by Hippocrates, is a treatise on the nature of the body, and the chapter on the nature of the body is a treatise on the nature of the body, and the chapter on the nature of the body is a treatise on the nature of the body...

A COSMOPOLITAN PRISON.

SOMETHING ABOUT CAPE TOWN'S IMMENSE JAIL.

Where 1,000 convicts, from the ends of the Earth are crowded. How the prisoners are employed. Some of the inmates. Among the many interesting things in Cape Town is an immense prison, where almost every nation of the globe has representatives. Within this prison there are more than 1,000 convicts of nearly every size and color. These are American miners and sons of the English aristocracy, French, Italians, Russians and Jews; there are famous chiefs of the African tribes captured during the Transvaal rebellions, and a horde of Kafirs, imprisoned there for every crime in the catalogue. Many of the most intelligent prisoners are serving time for political crimes. England and her colonies never allow any sentiment regarding family name or wealth to make a successful appeal for leniency toward those who have been traitors to their country.

The labor in which the convicts are employed most continuously is in building forts and fortifications. On the hillside overlooking the thriving city of Cape Town is a defence consisting of tier upon tier of modern guns bristling along the rock and pointing toward the harbor. There is no standing army stationed to man the guns, but each gun is connected by an electric wire to an instrument in the fort. This whole hillside of guns can be discharged at a moment's notice. The more intelligent criminals are not employed upon these works, but the stupidest of the Kafirs, and usually those who have been sentenced for life are chosen, that the people of the defense may be betrayed by an enemy.

Convicts not employed upon public works are rented out to farmers, who much prefer convicts to the natives, for the convicts have no opportunity to loaf or get drunk. The usual contract stipulates for fuel, water and shelter for the farmer, and from thirty-six to sixty cents a day for each convict, while the government furnishes guards sufficient to watch the men, and provides for their clothing and food.

The prisoners are divided into three classes, signifying the time they have been incarcerated and their behavior. The first class, known as the 'black' class, are marked by a black band around their necks. The second class, known as the 'red' class, are marked by a red band around their necks. The third class, known as the 'white' class, are marked by a white band around their necks.

The British Government keeps vessels at work sounding and charting the ocean beds to find out where the coal beds are. Last year 40,000 square miles were surveyed in the different parts of the world. As a result of this work, the British Government has discovered many new coal beds, and it is doing very well.

There is also the son of a Cape of Good Hope, who had been captured at Oxford University. He gave the best that England could give him, and he returned to the Cape, where he was employed as a teacher. He had a wonderful memory, and he was a very good teacher. He was a very good teacher, and he was a very good teacher.

SAMPLE GROUP OF BOER MARKSMEN.

IT WAS EVER THUS.

In a meet, a charming girl in both young and pretty, she was a very sensible and witty, and you very seldom meet a girl of this world of wit, and she is tied to no other chap for life.