Mr. P. L. Campbell, of Fortune Bridge, P.E.L., a great sufferer from pain in the back.

Doan's Kidney Pills completely and permanently cured him.

Mr. P. L. Campbell, the well-known genbral merchant of Fortune Bridge, P.E.I., was troubled with severe pains in his back and hips for over two years. At length he became aware of the fact that backache was simply a symptom of kidney trouble and did not hesitate long in taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and was promptly and permanently cured.

Here is his statement: "I was in an awful state for two years with pains in my back and hips. Some mornings these pains were so severe that I couldn't stoop o lace my boots. I started taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and one box so completely cired me that I have been perfectly well for over a year now and free from the least trace of pain.

The Square Timber Trade.

The Canada Lumberman for April

Bavs :-It is not a cause of regret that the square timber trade of Canada is gradnally passing into history. While in 1864 the exports of square timber were twenty million cubic feet, last year four million feet represented the total auantity exported. This is as it should be. The aim of every Canadien should be to build up the manufacturing industries of this country, and it is only by manufacturing the raw material as far as is expedient that this can be done

Looking at the question from all sides, we cannot conceive of any loss, either financial or industrial, that has resulted from the lessened exports of square timber. The logs which heretofore would have been made into square timber are now furnishing the raw material for our sawmills, and through them all other woodworking industries. It may be that the farmer, from whom many of our hardwood mills obtain their supply of logs, will view with some alarm these changed conditions, but a little consideration will show that his fears are based upon erroneous ideas. Indeed, the farmer is almost certain to realize more for his logs by selling them to be manufactured into lumber than he would if sold for tim-ber to say nothing of the benefits that accrue to the country at large by the building up of manufacturing indus-

In the past the farmer has been misled to some extent by the seemingly fancy prices offered by square timber jobbers. Not being familiar with timber measurements, the farmer is prone to accept, without investigation, the prices which would seem to offer him the greatest returns. In many instances these prices have been an hallucination. The square timber jobber selects only the largest and best logs; these are hewn down until square, with a conequent loss of timber, for which the farmer is not paid. The mill owner on the other hand, takes but one slab off the log and pays for the remainder. The next board on each side of the log will, of course, be a rough edge board and a portion of each log probably equal to two boards, will be converted into sawdust by the action of the saw, but there will still remain a gain of about two boards over the quantity which the square timber jobber wil take. Another advantage in selling to the mill owner is that he will purchase logs even as small as six inches in diameter. The square timber operator rarely accepts a log less than 14 inches in diameter. The mill owner is then asked to come to the relief of the farmer and purchase the small logs notwithstanding that, as is generally admitted. the wide lumber is to a large entent the manufacturer's chief source of profit. 'Is this fair? Let us take for example a log 30 feet in length and 20 inches in diameter. Such a log would make 38 cubic feet of square timber, equal to 456 superficial feet board measure. This same log, according to Doyle's rule, would give bowels 480 superficial feet, showing a gain in store favor of the latter of 24 feet board measure. Experience has shown that the board measurement of large logs is about thirteen times greater than the actual cubical contents of the square timber; hence, to give the farmer an equal revenue, the square timber operator should pay thirteen times as much for one thousand cubic feet of timber as the mill owner pays for one thousand superficial feet board measure. At the present time clm logs are being purchased by mill owners at eleven dollars per thousand feet B. M. the corresponding quotation for one thousand cubic feet thus being on hundred and forty-three dollars. Thi price, in our opinion, is rarely paid by square timber operators. Further, consideration is due lumber manufacturers of this country on the ground that they are large employers of labor, with capital invested, and striving to promote the interests of the community in which they live If not accorded due consideration, the natural result will be the purchase of timber limits outright; which action will in many instances carry with it the removal of saw milling establishments to other localities.

The foregoing remarks are intended to show that viewing the question from a national standpoint, the decadence of the square timber-trade is after all bu No. 991, meets in Rae's Hall the a boon to the country. ### Legal Costs.

Colonel Dénuison struck a blow one of the iniquities that pertain to our higher courts on Friday last in the Toronto Police Court. The case that aroused his indignation was a charge of thest against a lawyer preferred by a woman who had given him S511 to collect and had only received $37 of that amount, the balance being kept for legal costs. The charge of theft could not be sustained, but the Colonel made the following statement:

"Well, all I can say is that it is a monstrous thing that people should be deprived of their money in this manner. Nowadays it is next to impossible to get anything out of a suit at court after the lawyers have finished with it. Hundreds and thousands of cases have arisen within the past few years in which there has been little or nothing left for clients when the charges for lawyers' services have been paid. This thing will come to an end some day. The people will rise in their might and break down the system which permits such enormous charges." Happily these conditions exist largely in connection with the higher courts and are mainly the acts of lawyers whose briefs are so scarce as to make it necessary, from their point of view, to provide against a dull season.

If the South African war had not taken place Paul Kruger would have gone to the grave honored by the nation he created, and also destroyed, bearing the character of a diplomatical, crafty and religious leader. The showing up of his true character, his stubbornness, selfishness and cowardice, however, cannot be placed in the category of benefits accrueing from the war, but it is simply an exposition of how easy it is to be fooled by the pen pictures of an individual who has not been jested. Before the war and until recently Oom Paul was never caricatured without a bible in his hand. and his energies were devoted to spurring the Boers on in their mad defiance of Great Britain. Whether he was really confident of their ability to "drive the foreigners into the sea" is uncertain, but it is more than likely in the light of recent events that he urged them on knowing that his time was short and his malicious nature was thirsty for the blood of foreigners, though he took care to have no hand in the spilling. Unlike President Stevn, he did not pollute his nostrils with the stench of powder, or sicken his sight with living pictures of mangled and dying heroes, but his bivouac was in a palace car with engine attached, ready to fly on the sight of a knaki uniform. ### Paul Kruger.

when the last vestige of hope has flown he deserts to Lorezo Marquez with the avowed intention of taking passage to Europe, giving the lame excuse that he intended to secure European intervention, when he knows better than anyone else that all his late sympathizers are disgusted with the stupid policy of continuing a hopeless struggle, while maintaining the war has just begun. But he hasn't succeeded in leaving Africa. He didn't know the Portugese were so fond of his company that they surrounded him with a guard and permit no one to see him. And to climax this gradual change, the people of Holland, when they heard of Kruger's intended visit to them raised such a tumult that had he succeeded in sailing he would not have been allowed to land, but forced to pass on like a criminal whose presence was a menace. Time was when the late President of the Transvaal had the sympathy of large proportion of the civilized world. but he has transformed their sympathy into contempt, and most of all that of his own people.
