

ELLA

PLIES

W P C 1050

CALVERT'S

METAL ROOFERS

LAW

Catholic Prayer

WOODS PHOTO ENGRAVING

Gents' Suits Cleaned

Music Teachers Wanted

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS

EPPS'S

COCOA

BREAKFAST-SUPPER

The Canada Permanent and Western Canada Mortgage Corporation.

Canada Permanent Buildings

Deposits

Debentures

Surplus Assets

WAX

MARKETS OF THE WORLD

UNITED STATES MARKETS

BREADSTUFFS, ETC.

Toronto, Nov. 20.—Wheat continge quiet and weak. White and red winter was quoted at 63 and 63-1/2 west, spring wheat, 65 east; goose, 62 west. No. 1 Manitoba hard, 90c, Toronto; and No. 1 1/2 to 93c, g.t.; at 85-1-2c, west; and Owen Sound, and 83c; Fort William.

Flour—Trade dull; prices steady. Ninety per cent. patents fetch $2.95 in barrels, and at $2.65, in bags, west. Choice brands quoted at 15 to 20c more. Manitoba patents, $4.60; and strong bakers, $4.50, in bags.

Bran—Steady. Car lots quoted at $11 to $11.50 west; and shorts, $12.50 to $13 west.

Corn—Is steady. Canadian corn is quoted at 38c; west; and new at 32c, west. American yellow is quoted at 46c, Toronto.

Oats—Steady. No. 1 white, 24 to 25c, west; and 25 to 25-1/2c, east; mixed, 23 to 23-1/2c, west.

Barley—Quiet and prices unchanged. No. 1 is quoted at 44c, west; No. 2, at 38c; and No. 3 extra, at 37c, west.

Rye—Is steady, with sales at 47c, middle freights.

Buckwheat—Firm at 46c west, and 7c middle freights.

THE STREET MARKET.

Peas—Steady and unchanged.

Receipts of grain on the street to-day were larger than has been the case lately, and prices were generally well maintained. Sales of 300 bush of white wheat at 68c, 200 bush of red at 63 to 69c, 700 bush of goose at 61-1/2 to 66c, 1,200 bush of barley at 42 to 46-1/2c, and 1,000 bush of oats at 29 to 32c. Barley was easier at 43 to 46c. Oats were unchanged but firm. Rye was nominal at 51-1/2c. Hay steady at from $13 to $15. Straw unchanged.

Following are the range of quotations:

Wheat, white, straight	$0.68	$0.68 1-2
Wheat, red	0.68 1-2	0.69
Wheat, goose	0.66	0.67
Wheat, spring	0.68 1-2	0.69
Peas	0.40	0.45
Barley	0.42	0.44
Rye	0.52	0.53
Oats	0.30	0.32 1-2
Hay, per ton	12.00	14.50
Straw, per ton	11.50	12.00
Dressed hogs	0.50	0.55
Butter, lb. rolls	0.18	0.21
Eggs, new laid	0.19	0.23
Chickens, per pair	0.55	0.60
Turkeys, per lb.	0.08	0.11
Geese, per lb.	0.06	0.08
Ducks, per pair	0.50	0.80
Ducks, live, per pair	0.25	0.50
Potatoes, per bag	0.30	0.50
Apples, fall, per bin	0.75	1.25
Apples, choice, per bin	1.15	2.00
Beef, hindquarters	7.00	8.50
Beef, forequarters	4.00	6.00
Beef, carcasses	5.50	7.50
Calves, each	6.00	8.00
Mutton, per lb.	0.05	0.07
Lamb, spring, per lb	0.07	0.08 1-2

DAIRY MARKETS.

Butter—Receipts of choice butter are fair, and we have a good demand. Creamery is quoted at 21 to 22c for boxed, choice dairy, tubs, at from 18 to 19c, creamery, prints, 22 to 24c; medium butter plentiful at from 13 to 15c.

Eggs—Are in fair demand; fresh eggs quoted at 17 to 18c, sold storage stock, 15 to 16c; pickled eggs, 16c.

Cheese—Steady and unchanged at from 11-1/2 to 12c per lb.

DRESSED HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

Just now shippers are well occupied in rushing goods to catch the last boats at Montreal and the North; all the boats leave next week. Light dressed hogs are unchanged at $6.25 to $6.50 per cwt.; heavy, $5.50 to $5.75; straight car lots, $6.

Provisions—Dried salts—Long neck bacon, 9-1/2 to 9-3/4c. Smoked meats—Smoked hams, medium, 12c; large, 11c; breakfast bacon, 12 to 12-1/2c; backs, 12 to 12-1/2c; rolls, 10 to 10-1/2c; shoulders, 9-1/2 to 10c.

Lard—Tierces, 9-1/2c; tubs, 9-3/4c; pails, 10c.

Barrelled pork—Heavy, $17.50 to $18; short cut, $19 to $20.

LIVE STOCK.

Toronto, Nov. 20.—We had about fifty carloads of live stock arrive at the western cattle yards this morning, most of it being poor stuff. Prices all round are practically unchanged from last Tuesday.

There was, as usual, a good demand for the best butcher cattle, and but little of the right sort here to meet the demand. Good cattle is worth from 4 to 4-1/2c per pound, and from 10 to 20c more per cwt. was occasionally paid for picked lots.

Nothing of consequence is being done in shipping cattle.

Steekers are easier, but not quotably changed.

Export bulls and feeders are steady, and not quotably changed.

There is no change in either milk cows or calves, but choice grades of both are wanted.

Sheep and lambs being in only moderate supply are in fair demand, steady and unchanged in prices.

The receipts to-day included 750 cattle, 800 hogs, 600 sheep and lambs, a few calves, and a dozen milk cows. The best price for prime hogs is 4-1/2c per lb. and light and heavy, 4-3/8c per lb.

Hogs to fetch the top price must be

SIXTY BOERS CAPTURED.

Fom-pom Captured by Methuen and Field Cornet by Police.

The charming niece of the Princess of Wales, Princess Marie Louise of Cumberland, received some gorgeous wedding gifts at her marriage. The Prince and Princess of Wales sent her a brooch in design of a dragon fly, the wings set with diamonds and the body with emeralds. The Duke and Duchess of York, also the Prince and Princess of Denmark, and Princess Victoria, gave handsome and costly silver dishes for fruit. Fashions in wedding presents could be gleaned from what this young Princess received. The Duke and Duchess of Cumberland, the father and mother of the bride, gave her a collar of diamonds. The Prince Max of Baden gave his charming bride a diadem, and several diamond buckles. The King of Denmark sent his granddaughter a brooch of diamonds and sapphires; the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Denmark, a diamond bracelet; Duchess of Wurttemberg, an elegant brooch of pearls, jeweled fans from Princess Wilhelm of Baden; costly parol from Archduchess Isabella of Austria, and silver services from the provinces of Brunswick and Hanover.

Although the home of the Duchess of Devonshire is in the heart of the crowded city of London, there is in the lawn, shaded by great trees, and whenever the Duchess gives one of her famous entertainments this beautiful garden is made brilliantly fairy-like by reason of the cunning use of electric lights which glow and glisten like jewels in the flower beds and among the trees. When she gave a grand reception during last season, the Prince and Princess of Wales rode there in a carriage that was constructed for the most part of glass, like carriages in the fairy tales. This pomp was because the entertainment was given in honor of Queen Victoria, and the public had requested to see the heir apparent and the Princess in the glitter of court dress. They were representing Her Majesty, the Queen. The Princess of Wales wore white satin, exquisitely embroidered with fine lines of jet. The front of her bodice was simply a mass of diamonds, while her neck and throat were almost completely covered by the strings of pearls that drooped almost to her waist. An immensely broad collar of diamonds in a sort of lattice-work pattern, was clasped about her throat, while she wore the great round Russian tiara—or rather crown of diamonds—that was presented to her on the occasion of her silver wedding by the ladies of England. She carried a huge, loosely tied bouquet of mauve orchids, while the only other colors in her dress were the ribbons of the various orders that she wore upon her left shoulder.

At a garden party in England last season the Duchess of Marlborough wore a wealth of gorgeous jewels. She carried a magnificent bouquet of pink roses, caught here and there with diamond buckles, on to broad blue stain ribbons, an arrangement of flowers that besides being original was extremely effective. The stems of the roses were passed through the buckles.

Lady Randolph Churchill also wore a very notable costume. Over petticoats of chiffon, embroidered in silver and jet, there was a complete overdress of exquisitely fine lace, the glint of the embroidery beneath its folds giving a delightful effect. A vivid green waist belt and shoulder straps gave the only touch of color to the dress, and in her black hair Lady Randolph wore a flat wreath of small ivy leaves held with diamond pins. These wreaths, composed only of foliage, seem to be in special favor this season.

Mrs. Kruger, wife of Oom Paul, has a great dislike for railway trains, and refused to be present at the arrival and departure of the first train which established railroad service at Pretoria. It was not until Oom Paul succeeded in persuading her to take her first trip.

Queen Margherita, who has been so suddenly plunged into mourning, is deservedly the most popular woman in Italy. She is not only very beautiful, but highly cultured. She speaks English, French and German and reads Latin and Greek, but her favorite literature is that of her own Italy. So familiar is she with the works of Dante and Tasso that she can quote entire pages from memory. While in sympathy with all the movements for the advancement of women, and, although very brilliant, she abhors the idea of being a blue stocking. The King shared with her her love of precious stones, and made her an annual gift of a necklace of pearls, these being her favorite gems. She is always known by her pearls, as she wears strings upon strings, reaching below her waist.

Mlle. Dosne, a sister-in-law of Thiers has presented his manuscripts to the Noted Women.

The charming niece of the Princess of Wales, Princess Marie Louise of Cumberland, received some gorgeous wedding gifts at her marriage. The Prince and Princess of Wales sent her a brooch in design of a dragon fly, the wings set with diamonds and the body with emeralds. The Duke and Duchess of York, also the Prince and Princess of Denmark, and Princess Victoria, gave handsome and costly silver dishes for fruit. Fashions in wedding presents could be gleaned from what this young Princess received. The Duke and Duchess of Cumberland, the father and mother of the bride, gave her a collar of diamonds. The Prince Max of Baden gave his charming bride a diadem, and several diamond buckles. The King of Denmark sent his granddaughter a brooch of diamonds and sapphires; the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Denmark, a diamond bracelet; Duchess of Wurttemberg, an elegant brooch of pearls, jeweled fans from Princess Wilhelm of Baden; costly parol from Archduchess Isabella of Austria, and silver services from the provinces of Brunswick and Hanover.

Although the home of the Duchess of Devonshire is in the heart of the crowded city of London, there is in the lawn, shaded by great trees, and whenever the Duchess gives one of her famous entertainments this beautiful garden is made brilliantly fairy-like by reason of the cunning use of electric lights which glow and glisten like jewels in the flower beds and among the trees. When she gave a grand reception during last season, the Prince and Princess of Wales rode there in a carriage that was constructed for the most part of glass, like carriages in the fairy tales. This pomp was because the entertainment was given in honor of Queen Victoria, and the public had requested to see the heir apparent and the Princess in the glitter of court dress. They were representing Her Majesty, the Queen. The Princess of Wales wore white satin, exquisitely embroidered with fine lines of jet. The front of her bodice was simply a mass of diamonds, while her neck and throat were almost completely covered by the strings of pearls that drooped almost to her waist. An immensely broad collar of diamonds in a sort of lattice-work pattern, was clasped about her throat, while she wore the great round Russian tiara—or rather crown of diamonds—that was presented to her on the occasion of her silver wedding by the ladies of England. She carried a huge, loosely tied bouquet of mauve orchids, while the only other colors in her dress were the ribbons of the various orders that she wore upon her left shoulder.

At a garden party in England last season the Duchess of Marlborough wore a wealth of gorgeous jewels. She carried a magnificent bouquet of pink roses, caught here and there with diamond buckles, on to broad blue stain ribbons, an arrangement of flowers that besides being original was extremely effective. The stems of the roses were passed through the buckles.

Lady Randolph Churchill also wore a very notable costume. Over petticoats of chiffon, embroidered in silver and jet, there was a complete overdress of exquisitely fine lace, the glint of the embroidery beneath its folds giving a delightful effect. A vivid green waist belt and shoulder straps gave the only touch of color to the dress, and in her black hair Lady Randolph wore a flat wreath of small ivy leaves held with diamond pins. These wreaths, composed only of foliage, seem to be in special favor this season.

Mrs. Kruger, wife of Oom Paul, has a great dislike for railway trains, and refused to be present at the arrival and departure of the first train which established railroad service at Pretoria. It was not until Oom Paul succeeded in persuading her to take her first trip.

Queen Margherita, who has been so suddenly plunged into mourning, is deservedly the most popular woman in Italy. She is not only very beautiful, but highly cultured. She speaks English, French and German and reads Latin and Greek, but her favorite literature is that of her own Italy. So familiar is she with the works of Dante and Tasso that she can quote entire pages from memory. While in sympathy with all the movements for the advancement of women, and, although very brilliant, she abhors the idea of being a blue stocking. The King shared with her her love of precious stones, and made her an annual gift of a necklace of pearls, these being her favorite gems. She is always known by her pearls, as she wears strings upon strings, reaching below her waist.

Mlle. Dosne, a sister-in-law of Thiers has presented his manuscripts to the Noted Women.

The charming niece of the Princess of Wales, Princess Marie Louise of Cumberland, received some gorgeous wedding gifts at her marriage. The Prince and Princess of Wales sent her a brooch in design of a dragon fly, the wings set with diamonds and the body with emeralds. The Duke and Duchess of York, also the Prince and Princess of Denmark, and Princess Victoria, gave handsome and costly silver dishes for fruit. Fashions in wedding presents could be gleaned from what this young Princess received. The Duke and Duchess of Cumberland, the father and mother of the bride, gave her a collar of diamonds. The Prince Max of Baden gave his charming bride a diadem, and several diamond buckles. The King of Denmark sent his granddaughter a brooch of diamonds and sapphires; the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Denmark, a diamond bracelet; Duchess of Wurttemberg, an elegant brooch of pearls, jeweled fans from Princess Wilhelm of Baden; costly parol from Archduchess Isabella of Austria, and silver services from the provinces of Brunswick and Hanover.

Although the home of the Duchess of Devonshire is in the heart of the crowded city of London, there is in the lawn, shaded by great trees, and whenever the Duchess gives one of her famous entertainments this beautiful garden is made brilliantly fairy-like by reason of the cunning use of electric lights which glow and glisten like jewels in the flower beds and among the trees. When she gave a grand reception during last season, the Prince and Princess of Wales rode there in a carriage that was constructed for the most part of glass, like carriages in the fairy tales. This pomp was because the entertainment was given in honor of Queen Victoria, and the public had requested to see the heir apparent and the Princess in the glitter of court dress. They were representing Her Majesty, the Queen. The Princess of Wales wore white satin, exquisitely embroidered with fine lines of jet. The front of her bodice was simply a mass of diamonds, while her neck and throat were almost completely covered by the strings of pearls that drooped almost to her waist. An immensely broad collar of diamonds in a sort of lattice-work pattern, was clasped about her throat, while she wore the great round Russian tiara—or rather crown of diamonds—that was presented to her on the occasion of her silver wedding by the ladies of England. She carried a huge, loosely tied bouquet of mauve orchids, while the only other colors in her dress were the ribbons of the various orders that she wore upon her left shoulder.

At a garden party in England last season the Duchess of Marlborough wore a wealth of gorgeous jewels. She carried a magnificent bouquet of pink roses, caught here and there with diamond buckles, on to broad blue stain ribbons, an arrangement of flowers that besides being original was extremely effective. The stems of the roses were passed through the buckles.

Lady Randolph Churchill also wore a very notable costume. Over petticoats of chiffon, embroidered in silver and jet, there was a complete overdress of exquisitely fine lace, the glint of the embroidery beneath its folds giving a delightful effect. A vivid green waist belt and shoulder straps gave the only touch of color to the dress, and in her black hair Lady Randolph wore a flat wreath of small ivy leaves held with diamond pins. These wreaths, composed only of foliage, seem to be in special favor this season.

Mrs. Kruger, wife of Oom Paul, has a great dislike for railway trains, and refused to be present at the arrival and departure of the first train which established railroad service at Pretoria. It was not until Oom Paul succeeded in persuading her to take her first trip.

Queen Margherita, who has been so suddenly plunged into mourning, is deservedly the most popular woman in Italy. She is not only very beautiful, but highly cultured. She speaks English, French and German and reads Latin and Greek, but her favorite literature is that of her own Italy. So familiar is she with the works of Dante and Tasso that she can quote entire pages from memory. While in sympathy with all the movements for the advancement of women, and, although very brilliant, she abhors the idea of being a blue stocking. The King shared with her her love of precious stones, and made her an annual gift of a necklace of pearls, these being her favorite gems. She is always known by her pearls, as she wears strings upon strings, reaching below her waist.

Mlle. Dosne, a sister-in-law of Thiers has presented his manuscripts to the

NOTED WOMEN.

The charming niece of the Princess of Wales, Princess Marie Louise of Cumberland, received some gorgeous wedding gifts at her marriage. The Prince and Princess of Wales sent her a brooch in design of a dragon fly, the wings set with diamonds and the body with emeralds. The Duke and Duchess of York, also the Prince and Princess of Denmark, and Princess Victoria, gave handsome and costly silver dishes for fruit. Fashions in wedding presents could be gleaned from what this young Princess received. The Duke and Duchess of Cumberland, the father and mother of the bride, gave her a collar of diamonds. The Prince Max of Baden gave his charming bride a diadem, and several diamond buckles. The King of Denmark sent his granddaughter a brooch of diamonds and sapphires; the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Denmark, a diamond bracelet; Duchess of Wurttemberg, an elegant brooch of pearls, jeweled fans from Princess Wilhelm of Baden; costly parol from Archduchess Isabella of Austria, and silver services from the provinces of Brunswick and Hanover.

Although the home of the Duchess of Devonshire is in the heart of the crowded city of London, there is in the lawn, shaded by great trees, and whenever the Duchess gives one of her famous entertainments this beautiful garden is made brilliantly fairy-like by reason of the cunning use of electric lights which glow and glisten like jewels in the flower beds and among the trees. When she gave a grand reception during last season, the Prince and Princess of Wales rode there in a carriage that was constructed for the most part of glass, like carriages in the fairy tales. This pomp was because the entertainment was given in honor of Queen Victoria, and the public had requested to see the heir apparent and the Princess in the glitter of court dress. They were representing Her Majesty, the Queen. The Princess of Wales wore white satin, exquisitely embroidered with fine lines of jet. The front of her bodice was simply a mass of diamonds, while her neck and throat were almost completely covered by the strings of pearls that drooped almost to her waist. An immensely broad collar of diamonds in a sort of lattice-work pattern, was clasped about her throat, while she wore the great round Russian tiara—or rather crown of diamonds—that was presented to her on the occasion of her silver wedding by the ladies of England. She carried a huge, loosely tied bouquet of mauve orchids, while the only other colors in her dress were the ribbons of the various orders that she wore upon her left shoulder.

At a garden party in England last season the Duchess of Marlborough wore a wealth of gorgeous jewels. She carried a magnificent bouquet of pink roses, caught here and there with diamond buckles, on to broad blue stain ribbons, an arrangement of flowers that besides being original was extremely effective. The stems of the roses were passed through the buckles.

Lady Randolph Churchill also wore a very notable costume. Over petticoats of chiffon, embroidered in silver and jet, there was a complete overdress of exquisitely fine lace, the glint of the embroidery beneath its folds giving a delightful effect. A vivid green waist belt and shoulder straps gave the only touch of color to the dress, and in her black hair Lady Randolph wore a flat wreath of small ivy leaves held with diamond pins. These wreaths, composed only of foliage, seem to be in special favor this season.

Mrs. Kruger, wife of Oom Paul, has a great dislike for railway trains, and refused to be present at the arrival and departure of the first train which established railroad service at Pretoria. It was not until Oom Paul succeeded in persuading her to take her first trip.

Queen Margherita, who has been so suddenly plunged into mourning, is deservedly the most popular woman in Italy. She is not only very beautiful, but highly cultured. She speaks English, French and German and reads Latin and Greek, but her favorite literature is that of her own Italy. So familiar is she with the works of Dante and Tasso that she can quote entire pages from memory. While in sympathy with all the movements for the advancement of women, and, although very brilliant, she abhors the idea of being a blue stocking. The King shared with her her love of precious stones, and made her an annual gift of a necklace of pearls, these being her favorite gems. She is always known by her pearls, as she wears strings upon strings, reaching below her waist.

Mlle. Dosne, a sister-in-law of Thiers has presented his manuscripts to the