"For God's Sake Get Me a Place To Die In."

These words were uttered a few weeks ago by a poor fellow, as he lay on his death-bed in a hotel in Graven-hurst. A week before he had travelled a whole day to reach the Sanatorium, but on medical examination it was found that the disease (consumption) was too far advanced to admit him.
He tried to get board in Gravenhurst and finally, after repeated failures, secured admission to one of the hotels.
He soon became worse and the resident-physician of the Sanatorium was called in. When it became known that he had consumption, it was found impossible to get attendants to wait on him for fear of contagion. The hostler of the hotel was asked to help and on his refusal was offered $1.00 a day extra, but preferred to give up his position rather than expose himself, as he thought, to the danger of infection from the patient. The physician from the Sanatorium had to perform the duties of maid and nurse as well as his own. When the poor fellow found that the management of the hotel desired to get him out he begged the doctor for God's sake to get him a place to die in. The doctor looked after him for some days, remaining with him on his last visit until one o'clock in the morning. The poor sufferer was found dead next day in his bed and beyond the need of further help. Telegrams had been sent to his friends, and his sister, a fine young woman, reached Gravenhurst, only in time to take away the dead body of her brother.

Various proposals have been made to erect suitable structures to commemorate our late beloved Queen. When her Diamond Jubilee was celebrated four years ago large hospital undertakings were begun in London and elsewhere with her special sanction as the best expression of the nation's congratulations. To make it universal, shilling contributions were called for.
The National Sanitarium Association has now provided a place in Graven-hurst for patients who are unable to pay, and this has proved its usefulness by saving hundreds of lives since it was opened three years ago. A free hospital for poor patients who cannot pay and who are in the early stages of the disease is now in process of erection near the Sanatorium.

To round up this work the National Sanitarium Association desires to build another hospital, near Toronto, for incurable consumptives. What better memorial could be erected than a "Victoria Hospital" for such cases?
All the large cities, of course, will have their statue of the Queen, but this will not be a national undertaking.

We can, however, have a "Victoria Hospital" under the auspices of the National Sanitarium Association, and this might be built from contributions from all over Canada. Every village and town could send to it consumptive patients and thus benefit by a memorial to the Queen, to which they have contributed.

Humanity demands that something should be done. Self-protection the danger of contagion demands that something be done; but the very doing of this by exciting dread of the disease makes it more difficult for its hopeless victims to receive the attention necessary to enable them to die in peace.

"For God's sake get me a place to die in," is a call that should be no longer left unanswered. Your dollar will help to answer it.

Contributions are already coming in for this much needed undertaking.

The National Sanitarium Association,
Toronto, 1901.
Note—Those desirous of helping may remit to Hon. Sir William Meredith, Vice-President, or W. J. Gago, Treasurer, both of Toronto.
The editor of this paper will also be glad to acknowledge contributions.

Very Hard Indeed.
There are so many things that appear unnecessary, and which for the life of us we can see neither purpose nor end.
It may be corns are just one of those things of which we cannot see.
Nevertheless they are of the kind that are easily removed. Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor makes short work of them. Try it and see how neatly it coaxes them out. Use none other than Putnam's Corn Extractor. Sold by all Druggists.

Bagged the Game.

SCENE—Residences in town. TIME— We sma' ours. PRINCIPALS—Two of the sex sometimes referred to as angels, the name strangely appropriate, and a member of the animal kingdom "little but oh my."
Outside the night is calm, the sky half concealed by fleecy clouds, revealing at times a moon that is the poet's ideal. Nothing occurs to break the stillness that seems part of the clear, frosty atmosphere and snow covered fields. Inside a like stillness prevails throughout the darkened chambers save for the soft regular purring denot-ing the presence of the gentler sex, the musical, short murmurs of the younger fry, mingled with the deep base uncomfortable snores of the accomplished performer, the latter not unlike the buzz of the saw as it burys itself in the heart of the one time giant of the forest.

But this peaceful scene is suddenly disturbed. The gentle purring is replaced by excited whispers as the sleepers are awakened to a sense of excitement, or uneasily, things. A noise made by something scratching is distinguished and a hurried scramble is made for matches, which, after coming in violent contact with every piece of furniture in the room, are, strange to say, exactly in their usual place. With the flood of light which fills the room the spirits of the twain are raised to a degree bordering on bravado. A lurid search is made for the disturber of their slumbers; under the bed, in the dresser, behind the chairs and in every conceivable place, but to no purpose, and the conclusion is just about reached that it is a false alarm, when Ooh! the room has become a whirling scene in which white draperies, flowing hair and scarred faces form a prominent part.
Fortunately no harm is done. The lamp remains upright side up and after the first spasm courage again revives.
A detour is made with a view to reaching one of the pillows into which was seen disappear the cause of the trouble.
It is now a matter of strategy and the point is gained when the open end of the slip is clutched in a way that precludes any possibility of escape.

Now that the capture is made a sunny side of the situation strikes them and they would wonder in admiration only the hideous task of destroying the victim remains yet to be accomplished. They recall all the killings they ever saw or read about. The frightful plan adopted for despatching the hog is impracticable for they might stick and slash until daylight and not even puncture the glossy hide of the victim. Twisting the neck familiar to the goose, was also impracticable, for who would hold it while the other twisted? Meanwhile the monso is sitting in the slip deeply interested in solitaire and blissfully unconscious of the fact that the conference of the powers is concerning itself. But, a happy thought. How was it David killed Goliath? Oh, yes, Look out! Whizz! A few revolutions in imitation of David's mode of twirling his sling, and the victim, still in the bag and probably somewhat sea sick, strikes the wall with a dull, sickening thud. Faces pale and nerves quiver, but this treatment is repeated.
Then the jump-out bag is watched for signs of life, but none being perceptible the mouth is cautiously opened and Mr. Mouse, a bruised and battered lump of brown fur, is seen at the bottom, his legs turned up and a saintly expression on his face. Thus the game was bagged.

War News.

A special cable to the New York Herald from London, dated Feb. 12, says—A very serious sentiment prevailed in London today in regard to the condition of affairs in South Africa.
It was one of supreme hopefulness, so much so that there has never been any such buoyancy of sentiment since Lord Roberts took Pretoria.

There is absolutely no doubt that news broadcasted here from German sources showing that the Boers are pretty nearly at their last stand in their continued harassing. The development of General Kitchener's well-laid plans leaves them in a well-nigh hopeless condition. This view of the situation is also taken up the Stock Exchange.

His wife only survived him a few hours,
