King Edward a Punctual Church-Goer.

The easiest way to see the King is to go to church with him. No man in England is more punctual and regular in his attendance upon divine worship than King Edward. No matter whether he is at home or abroad, he never passes a Sunday without at least morning prayer, and makes it a rule not to attend any service but that of the Church of England.

The people of London, who usually show great curiosity to see their King, let him alone on Sunday, and allow him to worship in peace. It was a remarkable fact that one Sunday morning when there was at least 2,000 people in the courtyard of St. James' Palace listening to the music of the band at guard mount, not more than fifty or sixty people, and the members of the household, were seated in the Chapel Royal, which opens upon that court. There is an outer entrance and an inner one from the corridor of the palace, so that the King may reach it from his apartments in Marlborough House without going into the open air; but all the worshippers, except the royal family and the ladies and gentlemen in waiting for that day, are admitted at the public doors in St. James' courtyard.

It is a very small and uninteresting church, perhaps there is none more so in all London. There is nothing attractive about it except its severe simplicity. It is as plain as one of the Baptist Churches in South London. The windows are set in ordinary glass without shades or hangings, and need cleaning badly. The altar is an ordinary table, covered with crimson cloth, upon which the cross of St. George and the three plumes of the Prince of Wales are embroidered in gold. The only ornaments are a large brass collection plate, two tall candles in brass candelabra, and two glass vases holding bunches of snow ball. There is no crucifix or cross, but over the altar is a fine painting of the Madonna; by Rubens, which, however, is too large for its place.

There are sittings for about two hundred people—long pews running on either side of a single aisle to the wall.

Rev. Sam Talks Guff.

Many Canadians who attended the Pan-American on Saturday last heard Rev. Sam Small of Georgia, deliver a speech that will cause them to keep away from this reverend gentleman if he is ever again brought to Toronto to talk. It was a rare bit of gascade.

He described the United States as being bounded on the south by the Gulf of Mexico and on the north by the aurora borealis. He predicted that one of these days Canada would be taken into the Union, where, in reason, it belonged. His country was the greatest on earth. It could feed and clothe itself and have enough left to feed "the starved people of Canada, Europe and Asia."

If Sam Small were seriously minded to do the people of his own country a service he would not thus intoxicate them. There is nothing they need less than stimulants to vanity. That the people of Canada are not starved Small knows very well, for he has marketed some of his sensational preaching here. Not only can this country feed her own people, but the United States finds it necessary to maintain a tariff of about 60 per cent, to keep out our produce and man ufactures, while this country keeps up a tariff only half as high. The great nation bounded by the aurora borealis seems to find it necessary to resort to very elaborate devices to reduce the competition of this young country in the trade of the continent; and yet the percentage of growth of trade is greater here than in the United States, Canada is coming along in spite of the "heads I win, tails you lose," policy followed at Washington for twenty years.

According to the Flesherston Advance Dr. Bibby, of Kimberley, has a bill of $500 against the township of Euphrasia for his charges for the alleged small pox case, which existed in Kimberley a short time ago. The Dr. was put in charge of the patient when he was isolated, and when the authorities discovered that his charges were ten dollars a day his services were dispensed with. The doctor will likely be able to collect a neat sum from the township, but whether he can secure all he demands remains to be seen.

The public will do well to remember that according to departmental regulations post office money orders are not issued after six o'clock in the evening. The Department would do well to abandon either the money order or the postal note system. One would surely be sufficient at a time. Another decided improvement would be to have but one rate of postage on newspapers. The perplexing ordeal in every printing office of sorting the parcels each week on account of two different classes or rates is a perpetual annoyance. Why not make one flat universal rate?

Wedding Bells. A very pleasant event occurred July 24th at the residence of Mr. James Walker, of Euphrasia, when his eldest daughter, Elizabeth Eya, was united in marriage to Abraham Hannah, son of the late William Robert Hannah, of Holland. The ceremony was solemnized at 7 o'clock p. m. in the presence of a large company of relatives and friends by the Rev. J. K. Newell. The bride was attended by Miss Edith Elliott, and the groom by his brother, Mr. Robert Hannah. Miss Clarissa Coleman presided at the organ and played an appropriate wedding march. After the ceremony the guests, to the number of about fifty, sat down to a sumptuous feast of good things provided for their refreshment. The company remained until a late hour, when Mr. and Mrs. Hannah, after receiving the best wishes of their friends, were bidden good-bye, and all wended their several ways homeward. The presents were numerous and well selected, and testified to the high respect in which the bride was held by her many friends.

The STANDARD has a creditable and valued staff of correspondents, which adds prestige to the paper, and has proven a material aid in its constant increase from year to year of its circulation. We regret, however, that occasionally a fresh addition to the staff, in order to get a hit at a neighbor, will furnish items that are exceedingly offensive if not slanderous, and also a reproach to the publisher. In future we will reserve the right to publish the name of any correspondent who should thus offend.

Bronchitic Asthma. Is now easily cured, not by pouring nauseous doses of drugs into the stomach, but by inhaling Catarrhoxone. A Laudable Act. Not long ago some person ventured the prediction that the time would yet come when by the use of the telephone one could listen in his own home to the gospel being preached in the church, and also enjoy the music and service generally. This is now about to be experienced by Mr. Joseph Blackburn, our able and respected correspondent at Flesherston. Mr. B. has been an invalid for twelve years, and by his spirit of cheerful Christian resignation all these years has won the deep sympathy and universal admiration of character of all who have come within the circle of his acquaintance. The good people of Flesherston have put their heads together and are placing the necessary telephone connection between Mr. Blackburn's residence and the Methodist church, which is but one block distant, so that he will be enabled to participate in the public service. Mr. B. N. Henderson, we believe, was the prime moving spirit in this laudable undertaking.
