The most interesting of the new departures made at the War Office is the appointment of a lady on 'the staff. This is the first time a lady has had a local habitation in the building. The lady in question served at the front as a nurse, and having recently returned has been appointed to a position at the War Office. She has a private office and a separate little sub-department of her own. She is to have charge within the War Office of the affairs of the Army Nursing Department. As a practical step this new departure is heartily approved.

Of all wonderful cannons, the electric magnetic gun invented by a Christiania professor is the most remarkable. The professor culates that the performances of his weapon will increase with the length of the barrel. For instance, with a tule 328ft. long it could throw two-ton projectile a distance of 932 miles !
