An At-Home.

The Ladies At-Home on Tuesday night in Marsh's Hall was certainly a sociable and very enjoyable event temperature. The attendance was not readily. Ample provision had been made for games of various kinds. The program was really choice and ably rendered. Mr. Wilson with his gramaphone was generous in renderings of selections both before and during the program, and is specially entitled to the thanks of the management. The refreshments, which came last, were certainly not least, and the delicious coffee was much relished by all. Proceçds $23.00.

Recent Improvements.

Among the numerous farm buildings erected in this vicinity during the past season, the dwelling of Mr. Thomas Whitten, of Artemesia, takes a foremost place. The "laying out" of the building from cellar to attic is a model of convenience, and the exterior is a pattern of neatness and artistic beauty his credit as a first-class piece of workmanship. The wood-work, by Father, always cheery and barring the discomfort from the low genial, felt a deep sense of sadness on too large to admit of moving around strong social ties here. He had made himself singularly popular as a citizen, and his departure is the cause of universal regret.

Muster Willie McFudden, of: THE STANDARD staff, had his left hand severely bruised on Saturday last by the job press, which was running at the time. By the manner in which it was caught it was indeed lucky that the hand was not more severely injured, and, as no bones were broken, it is expected that after a few days' rest at his home in the suburbs he will be able to take his position in the office again without any permanent effects.

A pleasaut event took place at Granton on Wednesday, Nov. 4th, 1903, when Thomas J. Gould of Grey County was united in marriage to Sarah, youngest daughter of Mrs. Thos. Foster of Granton. The ceremony was performed in the drawing room under an arch of evergreens, by Rev. F. W. Gilmour, at the bride's home. The bride was becomingly attired in white organdie trimmed with all-over lace and ribbon, and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums. She was assisted by Miss Vina Gould, sister of the groom, who was dressed in cream velour with trimmings of silk and lace, Party counts for anything—and it and carried a bouquet of white chrystoughtto—Mr Little certainly has strong anthemums. Mr. Will Foster, cousing Robes and Blankets of the bride, acted as groomsman. After the ceremony a reception was held, at which about seventy guests spent. Keeping in Touch. In these days of history-making in he Empire, and of great national development and political growth in Canada, all classes of people are realizing the necessity of following the world's doings day by day, more than ever before. The public must have the news and have it immediately, and (so the daily newspaper sppplants the city weekly among all classes. The kaleido scope of human affairs is rapid in its movements. A week is too long to wait for the world's news. In these days of keen business competition, merchants and farmers must have market quotations from day to day. Moreover, it is now possible to obtain one of Toronto's greatest dailies-The News-for the price of the city weekly, $1.00 a year by mail. The News sets forth the news of the day in an attractive form. Its political reports are free from party bias, and its market reports compre-hensive and accurate, Every day a chapter of a first-class serial appears just enough for, say, a half hour's reading. Neither does The News lack the magazine features of the city weekly. The Saturday edition, containing twenty-four pages, is of special interest to women, and, indeed, to every member of the family. Everyone should write for a sample copy of The News, and particulars of their
