EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS.

The spirit of union among the religious bodies is in the air, and a union evangelistic effort is in harmony with this benign tendency. Leading laymen as well as clergymen in every part of our fair Dominion are speaking and writing along the line of the union of Churches, and a very general spirit of Christian unity seems to have taken hold of the people. This being the case an evangelistic effort should be all the more harmoniously and spontaneously patronized. The interest in and popularity of Crossley and Hunter continues to grow and widen. Their earnestness and personal magnetism render the meetings attractive, while their methods are simple and unobjectionable. They do not believe in creating a religious furor but proceed on the lines of good common sense, and their reasons for and appeals to, a better life are most convincing. These meetings will begin next Lord's Day in this town at 10:30 in both Presbyterian and Methodist churches.

I wish all those who are contemplating buying a Heintzman, or any other make of piano, to order direct from me, as I can meet all competition on any make of instrument. I wish also to state that my opposition has been running down the "Morris-Field" piano, which I am authorized agent for here.
