

WINTER GOODS

Another club woman, Mrs. Hauke, of Edgerton, Wis., tells how she was cured of irregularities and uterine trouble, terrible pains and backache, by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—A while ago my trouble began to fall because of female troubles. The doctor did not help me. I remembered that my mother had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on many occasions for irregularities and uterine troubles, and I felt sure that it could not harm me at any rate to give it a trial. It was certainly glad to find that within a week I felt much better. My terrible pains in the back and legs were beginning to cease, and at the time of menstruation I did not have nearly as serious a time as heretofore. So I continued its use for two months, and at the end of that time I was like a new woman. I really have never felt better in my life, have not had a sick headache since, and weigh 20 pounds more than I ever did, so I unhesitatingly recommend your medicine."—MRS. M. HAUKE, Edgerton, Wis. Pres. Household Economics Club.—$3.00 for 12 original of above letter, proving genuine Pinkham's Compound.

Changes in School System.

New Regulations and Revised Curriculum for Public and High Schools of Ontario.

Complete and radical will be the changes instituted in the Public and High Schools of the Province by the revised regulations which have been prepared by the Minister of Education and his assistants, and which were endorsed by the Provincial Cabinet at the meeting last week.

The regulations are of the greatest importance, and the influence of them on the provincial school system will be far-reaching.

Speaking generally, the regulations have been based on the drafts submitted by the Minister to the Educational Association two years ago, and the subsequent report of the Committee of nineteen, but neither of these documents has been slavishly followed.

Briefly, the general instructions to teachers and the subjects for study or examination in the Public Schools will be as follows:

In all the forms the teachers are instructed not to neglect any opportunity to give instruction in moral principles and practices, and in good manners. The other subjects in the various forms will be as follows:

First, Second and Third Books—Reading, literature, composition, history, geography, arithmetic, writing, constructive work, clay modeling, physiology and hygiene and nature study. Needle work is added for second and third classes.

Fourth Book—Reading, spelling, literature, composition, history, English grammar, geography, arithmetic, writing, bookkeeping, manual training, household science, physiology and hygiene and nature study.

For the Fifth Form of the Public School the following subjects are obligatory: Reading, literature, grammar, composition, history, geography, writing, arithmetic and mensuration and elementary science. From the other subjects of this form, Boards of Trustees may select, with the concurrence of the Inspector, such subjects or such parts of the courses therein, as may, in their judgment, suit the requirements of their localities.

When, from any cause, teachers properly prepared to teach the courses in art, constructive work, clay modeling, elementary science and nature study are not available, the Inspector shall authorize such modifications of the courses in these subjects as he may deem expedient.

Classes in Latin, Greek, French or German may be provided in Fifth Forms or Continuation classes, with the concurrence of the Inspector, and with a time table provided by him. Teachers of these subjects shall hold at least a second class certificate and have passed a departmental or a university examination in the language they undertake to teach.

It is distinctly stated, however, that for Fifth Form classes, where the candidates are prepared for the district junior or senior examinations, the High School regulations regarding equipment, apparatus, etc., must be complied with. On application to the Minister of Education, a list of the apparatus required will be furnished, but the amount to be purchased will be in the discretion of the Inspector.

The Minister of Education has held to his opinion concerning Latin, despite the vigorous criticisms which have emanated from the "Latinists" during the past year. In other words, Latin will be a "bonus optional subject."

Value of the Apple.

There is scarcely an article of vegetable food more widely useful and more universally liked than the apple. Let every family in autumn lay in from two to ten barrels or more, and it will be to them the most economical investment in the whole range of culinary supplies. The most healthful dessert that can be placed on the table is baked apples. If taken freely at breakfast, with coarse bread, and without meat or flesh of any kind, it has an admirable effect on the general system. If families could be induced to substitute the apple—sound, ripe and luscious—for pies, cakes, candies and other sweetmeats, with which children are too often fondly stuffed, there would be a diminution of doctor's bills sufficient in a single year to lay up a stock of this delicious fruit for a season's use.

The Wrong Reward.

How apt we are to look upon life as a popular novel or story. The villain receives his punishment and the hero becomes wealthy and lives happily ever after. We think the hero, the man who has done nobly, must be rewarded in a definite, material way. If he has acted well his part, honor and fame must surely come. How often our standard of reward is rudely shattered in real life. Then when we see some really noble human being who has not gained wealth, or honor or fame we murmur against Providence and complain that the world is not managed just right. We do not accept piece of conscience, self-content or a good name as sufficient rewards for a virtuous life. We feel that the hero should be rewarded with wealth and the glamour of worldly honor. We continually find ourselves looking at things from a materialistic standpoint, not from a divine standpoint. Our spiritual discernment is dead. But if we can only bring ourselves to look at things about us from the right standpoint the reward within us is the greatest reward for well doing. The consciousness that our conduct has the approval of the Divine Father, that is greater than houses or lands or earthly rewards.

Not a minute should be lost after a child shows symptoms of cholera in the bowels should be sufficient warning. If immediate and proper treatment is given serious consequences will be averted. Animals Becoming Extinct.

Every century sees several species of animal becoming extinct. In the struggle for life the weak must yield to the strong, and because they are persistently sought for food or for feathers cease to exist. The disappearance of the great auk can be laid to the nineteenth century. It became extinct on the American side of the Atlantic about 1840 and in Europe about 1844. The South African quagga disappeared about 1870 owing to the slaughter by hide hunters. The twin isle birds of the Galapagos Islands became extinct in all probability about 1878. The black emu of South Australia was also exterminated during the century, though it was abundant in 1808. The great curlew was last seen alive about 1830, and many other species of birds from all parts of the world have likewise been exterminated. In the Danish West India Islands, for example, out of fourteen species catalogued in 1795 only six still exist, and a similar history can be told of many other localities.

'Shelley Liked Bread.

The poet Shelley was very simple in his tastes and found his chief pleasure in long, solitary rambles. Bread became his chief sustenance when his regimen attained to that austerity which afterward distinguished it. He could have lived on bread alone without repining.

"Do you know," he said one day to a friend, with much surprise, "that Mr. G. does not like bread? Did you ever know a person who disliked bread?" His friend explained to him that Mr. G. probably had no objection to bread in moderate quantity at a proper time and with the usual adjuncts and was only unwilling to devour several pounds of dry bread at a meal.

Shelley had no such objection; his pockets were generally well stocked with bread. Sometimes he ate with his bread the common raisins which he bought at small grocers' shops.

Sea Serpents Breathe Air.

Like all other serpents, the sea serpents, though permanently inhabiting the sea, are air breathers. The lateral flattening of their tails greatly helps them to swim in any direction, and it specially enables them to rise rapidly to the surface of the water to breathe. That they may do this the more easily and securely their nostrils are placed at the very end of the muzzle and are furnished with valves, which secure them from being entered by the water in which they live.

Unlike other snakes, they cast their skins in small pieces. Their eyes are not adapted to see well out of water, and thus they cannot when in the air take a good aim to bite. They feed on small fishes, which they pry open by means of their poison, and thus they have nothing to fear from the spines of the fishes they eat.

Two Tales of Truffed Turkeys.

The Abbe Morelet was accustomed to say: "There needs be two to eat a truffed turkey. I never do otherwise. I have one today. We will be two—the turkey and myself."

The archbishop of Sanzal was another truffed turkey lover. His grand vicar had lost a turkey to him on a bet and delayed saying up because, as he alleged, "truffles were bad that year."

"Bah! Bah!" said the archbishop. "We will chance the truffles. This is a false report that has been circulated by the turkeys."—The Pleasures of the Table, by G. H. Edwinger.

Victoria Corners

The thunderstorms of last Friday put a stop to harvesting operations around here.

Mr. John Warner has had a cement floor put in the basement of his barn; Mr. Joseph Strain is preparing to have his barn done likewise.

We are pleased to hear that Mr. Richard Stinson who has been very sick is able to be around again.

Mr. M. G. Orr has the outside work of his handsome new residence about completed.

Potatoes are likely to be scarce this year as the blight has appeared even earlier than last year.

Mr. Joseph Strain shipped another car of last to Toronto last week.
