FLESHERTON HAPPENINGS

On Tuesday of last week George Tucker and Clifford Blakely, both about 18 years of age, were out together with a loaded shotgun which was disharged in the hands of the former, part of the charge lodging in the back and legs of the latter: How the scoident happened is not satisfactorily explained as the boys differ in their story about it. Dr. Carter examined the wounded lad and found that about dozen grains of shot were embedded in his flesh, one only of which he suceeded in removing. The soreness is assing away and nothing serious now anticipated, but it was a close

A. Matheson, of Priceville, the Society's agent, delivered an appropriate address. The treasurer's reporting showed the receipts for this branch last year to be nearly $75.00, about $9.00 of which was from sales of Bibles in the depository. The officers were re-elected as follows: Pres, William Clayton; Sec., Rev. L. W. Thom; freas. and Depository, W. H. Bunt; Representatives, D. McMullen, W. J. Bellamy, Dr. Murray, A. S. VanDusen, F. their returns by Nov. 19. Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Blakely met with very sore bereavement on Thursday last when after but two or three days' illness their only and beloved young daughter, Gladys Irene, succumbed to an affection of the brain. The community was deeply moved with the suddenness of the death and the widespread sympathy felt for the griefstricken parents was manifested by the large turnout at the funeral on Satur the paper would not suffer in his abday. Rev. Mr. Wilson conducted the burial service and delivered a comforting address from Matt. 9: 24: "The maid is not dead but sleepeth." The deceased, who was 14 years and two months of age, was a member of the Methodist Church and Junior League. She was also a bright pupil in the public school which was largely represented at the funeral. The scholars in her room, as a token of affection, placed

There was a large congregation present, and the singing was greatly assisted by the presence of Miss Eval Ford, of Markdale, in the choir. The Rev. J. R.
