

GOLDEN SILENCE

REPORTS TO UNJUST LARGES.

A Victim of Verbal Abuse in the European Press.

Some features of the war which, if they were to be described by a European, would be a very little like the London Times, or the Japanese Journal of St. Petersburg, or the doctrine of the Russian religion, or the Mikado's anti-Christianity, or the pugnaciousness of the Japanese, and so on, and so forth.

It is a temporary measure, but it is a measure which will be of great benefit to the world.

THE KHEDIVE OF EGYPT EMPEROR OF GERMANY

HE HAS TURNED OUT PRETTY WELL AFTER ALL. KAISER WILLIAM IS POVERTY STRUCK.

He is a Student, With a Wonderful Capacity as a Linguist. Spite of Four Millions a Year He Has Difficulty in Making Ends Meet.

The Khedive, who has again arrived in London, is a fine specimen of the all-around man—the student and the athlete, says the Westminster Gazette. He learned English as a child, under tutors specially selected and sent to Cairo for his benefit, and that of his brother, Prince Mehmet. When two years of age he entered the celebrated Haxius School at Geneva, and afterwards continued his scholastic career at the Theresianum at Vienna, from which he was called by the sudden death of his father, the Khedive, to ascend the throne of Egypt at the age of eighteen in 1892. At Vienna he was something of a favorite with the Austrian Emperor.

The Khedive's knowledge of languages is extensive. During the course of an "AUDIENSCE DAY" it frequently happens that he discusses questions of State with the British and United States diplomatic agents in excellent English, with the representative of France in faultless French, and with the German in the choicest language of the Austrian Court. Later he conducts affairs with the Sultan's representatives in Turkish, and may conclude the day by presiding over a council of his Ministry, when all sorts of intricate details of policy are arranged in Arabic, the native tongue of Egypt, and one of the most difficult of languages. But even this does not complete the list. The Khedive may see his highness at the bath, and understand the opera rendered in Italian.

The Khedive is a strict Mohammedan, and as such eschews both wine and spirits. His abstinance goes even further, for in a country where every one smokes he will have nothing to do with the fragrant weed. Like his father, he is a monogamist, although his religion allows him four wives. He is known to be greatly attached to his consort, who was a Circassian lady of the Khedivial household before her marriage. In fact he is essentially a domestic man, and is very fond of his children.

When at his palace at Koubbeh, some five miles from Cairo, the Khedive lives after the same fashion as might a great English land-owner of the most modern type. He keeps a splendid stud, and his beautiful horses, English-bred as well as Arabs, are his special pride. On the estate itself he has brought into use the latest things in American agricultural machinery, and he takes an active part in the supervision of his numerous farms and cotton plantations in the Nile valley—from which, indeed, he derives the larger part of his vast private wealth. His official income is £1,000,000 a year, but an equal amount is paid to the other members of the Khedivial family.

AS KING OF PRUSSIA.—Though Emperor William receives no income as German Emperor, his income as King of Prussia amounts to about $4,000,000 per annum. The Emperor of Russia receives an annual allowance of approximately $5,000,000, and the Emperor of Austria an annual allowance of more than $4,000,000.

ANXIOUS MOTHERS.—The summer months are a bad time for little ones and an anxious time for mothers. Stomach and bowel troubles come quickly during the hot weather, and it is dangerous the mother to let her little one get beyond aid.

ROTSHCHILD'S SANITARIUM.—Left Fortune to Found New Institution in Vienna. Baron Nathaniel Rothschild, whose death was announced a few days ago, has left the sum of $4,250,000 to found a sanitarium for persons suffering from nervous diseases.
