

UNHAPPPIEST OF MORTALS

King Solomon's Method of Enjoying Himself Was Erroneous.

THE OJIBWAY INDIANS

30,000 HEAR THE CALL OF THE WILD.

They Are the Most Powerful of all the Indian Nations of the North.

Most powerful of all the Indian nations of the continent to-day are the Ojibways. They inhabit that expanse of territory, south and west of Hudson Bay. Their number nearly 30,000, and represent almost all of that host of Americans whose domain two centuries ago extended over the eastern portion of the continent.

As far back in history as one finds traces of this nation are recorded deeds which indicate their superior strength. Seldom have they been defeated in conflict, and until the Americans crowded them northward the Ojibways were ever acquiring new lands and increasing in numbers. For the last decade, however, the Ojibways have held their own, through the liberality of the Canadian government, which has encouraged the race to become better citizens and has provided opportunities for education.

Time has brought a transformation of the Indian's nature. Instead of the brutal and wild disposition he originally possessed, there are traits of character which endear him to the whites and toward better conditions for the tribes and the Americans with whom they come in contact.

Canadian profit considerably from the Ojibways, who are active in agricultural pursuits and for trading. Many Indians have acquired considerable wealth in dealing with the Canadians. The fur trade in the Hudson Bay country has no mean proportions and summer finds the Indians active in in.

THEIR CORN FIELDS.

They are learning to provide better homes for their families. The old saying that "An Indian once will be an Indian still," although disputed by Indians, has truth in it, for to-day one of the greatest lights of the earth is the torch his offspring the蒙古族 of his race and the legends of his ancestors.

The Ojibways have many traditions. Some are historical; some are of mythical origin. "The Long Chase" is one of the principal traditions of the Ojibways. Others almost as sacred to their tribes are "The Star and Lily," "Thunder's Nest," "The Two Cousins," "The Effects of Liquor," and the legends composing the fabric upon which Henry W. Longfellow wove the famous poem of "Hiawatha." Chiefs are regarded as the best repositories for the Ojibway legends. The chiefs attend to their duty of preserving these legends well. They tell them on various occasions and see to it that young Indians are instructed in the same.

The trouble with Solomon and all other men who have sought happiness is that he has been the failure to enter this clever, upper region, where all lower pleasures are subordinated into hoarser, diviner forms.

Other men have been stripped of every outer good, of every comfort of the body and of every enjoyment of the senses, but they have entered into joys so sublime, so transcendental, that all other pleasures became insignificant in comparison.

He was granted unto Zerubbabel, the prophet a message of encouragement unto Zerubbabel, saying, Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith Jehovah of hosts—that is, the weak and taken and superinduced by Zerubbabel was to be carried on and completed not in the strength of those engaged in it, but by Jehovah himself.

The Ojibways several years ago produced the play of "Hiawatha." The Indian as a dramatist had hitherto been undiscovered, but the ability to act has been demonstrated in the production of the play. Each summer the Indians troupe down to the northern shores of Lake Huron, where they see the play produced by a company of their own people. The spot selected has been an island near the Huron shore, about thirty miles east of Sault Ste. Marie.

This is the fifth season that the Indians have produced "Hiawatha." Chief Kakaosa, one of the most eloquent of Indians, is a central figure in the play. His Indian title is "Chief Obosaway," meaning "Cloud of the South Land." The Indian who gathered the legends for Longfellow died six years ago.

CAREY W. HARTMAN. formerly of Toronto, is probably more familiar with the Ojibway Indians than most men. When a lad he was adopted into one of their tribes and can speak the language fluently. He has many friends among the red men. Although it is now more than seven years since he left them, he frequently returns to visit them. On a recent visit, he went through their country in a canoe, making use of a camera as he went. Ojibways who belong to the company playing "Hiawatha" don't mind their best leggings and war paint and gave the play for him. That was in the forest between Lake Huron and St. James' Bay. The Indians call him Inianahpiyah. Mrs. Hartman a few years ago was formally adopted into the same tribe in which her husband was adopted.

"The Ojibways are a great nation of Indians," said Mr. Hartman. "Few persons know of the strength of these people. They have wonderful endurance and great courage. Originally they were great fighters, and provocation would not take long to start them in their old ways. They used to be a very cruel nation. Just how the Canadian government is doing much to better their education. Naturally they are a very intelligent people and they learn easily."

Royal records abound with similar stories of great sovereigns—of the playfellow of children—from Ages past.

It is evident that the Ojibways are more familiar with the Ojibway Indians than most men. Although it is now more than seven years since he left them, he frequently returns to visit them. On a recent visit, he went through their country in a canoe, making use of a camera as he went. Ojibways who belong to the company playing "Hiawatha" don't mind their best leggings and war paint and gave the play for him. That was in the forest between Lake Huron and St. James' Bay. The Indians call him Inianahpiyah. Mrs. Hartman a few years ago was formally adopted into the same tribe in which her husband was adopted.

"The Ojibways are a great nation of Indians," said Mr. Hartman. "Few persons know of the strength of these people. They have wonderful endurance and great courage. Originally they were great fighters, and provocation would not take long to start them in their old ways. They used to be a very cruel nation. Just how the Canadian government is doing much to better their education. Naturally they are a very intelligent people and they learn easily."

Royal records abound with similar stories of great sovereigns—of the playfellow of children—from Ages past.

It is evident that the Ojibways are

more familiar with the Ojibway Indians than most men. Although it is now more than seven years since he left them, he frequently returns to visit them. On a recent visit, he went through their country in a canoe, making use of a camera as he went. Ojibways who belong to the company playing "Hiawatha" don't mind their best leggings and war paint and gave the play for him. That was in the forest between Lake Huron and St. James' Bay. The Indians call him Inianahpiyah. Mrs. Hartman a few years ago was formally adopted into the same tribe in which her husband was adopted.

"The Ojibways are a great nation of Indians," said Mr. Hartman. "Few persons know of the strength of these people. They have wonderful endurance and great courage. Originally they were great fighters, and provocation would not take long to start them in their old ways. They used to be a very cruel nation. Just how the Canadian government is doing much to better their education. Naturally they are a very intelligent people and they learn easily."

Royal records abound with similar stories of great sovereigns—of the playfellow of children—from Ages past.

It is evident that the Ojibways are

more familiar with the Ojibway Indians than most men. Although it is now more than seven years since he left them, he frequently returns to visit them. On a recent visit, he went through their country in a canoe, making use of a camera as he went. Ojibways who belong to the company playing "Hiawatha" don't mind their best leggings and war paint and gave the play for him. That was in the forest between Lake Huron and St. James' Bay. The Indians call him Inianahpiyah. Mrs. Hartman a few years ago was formally adopted into the same tribe in which her husband was adopted.

"The Ojibways are a great nation of Indians," said Mr. Hartman. "Few persons know of the strength of these people. They have wonderful endurance and great courage. Originally they were great fighters, and provocation would not take long to start them in their old ways. They used to be a very cruel nation. Just how the Canadian government is doing much to better their education. Naturally they are a very intelligent people and they learn easily."

Royal records abound with similar stories of great sovereigns—of the playfellow of children—from Ages past.

It is evident that the Ojibways are

more familiar with the Ojibway Indians than most men. Although it is now more than seven years since he left them, he frequently returns to visit them. On a recent visit, he went through their country in a canoe, making use of a camera as he went. Ojibways who belong to the company playing "Hiawatha" don't mind their best leggings and war paint and gave the play for him. That was in the forest between Lake Huron and St. James' Bay. The Indians call him Inianahpiyah. Mrs. Hartman a few years ago was formally adopted into the same tribe in which her husband was adopted.

"The Ojibways are a great nation of Indians," said Mr. Hartman. "Few persons know of the strength of these people. They have wonderful endurance and great courage. Originally they were great fighters, and provocation would not take long to start them in their old ways. They used to be a very cruel nation. Just how the Canadian government is doing much to better their education. Naturally they are a very intelligent people and they learn easily."

Royal records abound with similar stories of great sovereigns—of the playfellow of children—from Ages past.

It is evident that the Ojibways are

more familiar with the Ojibway Indians than most men. Although it is now more than seven years since he left them, he frequently returns to visit them. On a recent visit, he went through their country in a canoe, making use of a camera as he went. Ojibways who belong to the company playing "Hiawatha" don't mind their best leggings and war paint and gave the play for him. That was in the forest between Lake Huron and St. James' Bay. The Indians call him Inianahpiyah. Mrs. Hartman a few years ago was formally adopted into the same tribe in which her husband was adopted.

"The Ojibways are a great nation of Indians," said Mr. Hartman. "Few persons know of the strength of these people. They have wonderful endurance and great courage. Originally they were great fighters, and provocation would not take long to start them in their old ways. They used to be a very cruel nation. Just how the Canadian government is doing much to better their education. Naturally they are a very intelligent people and they learn easily."

Royal records abound with similar stories of great sovereigns—of the playfellow of children—from Ages past.

It is evident that the Ojibways are

more familiar with the Ojibway Indians than most men. Although it is now more than seven years since he left them, he frequently returns to visit them. On a recent visit, he went through their country in a canoe, making use of a camera as he went. Ojibways who belong to the company playing "Hiawatha" don't mind their best leggings and war paint and gave the play for him. That was in the forest between Lake Huron and St. James' Bay. The Indians call him Inianahpiyah. Mrs. Hartman a few years ago was formally adopted into the same tribe in which her husband was adopted.

"The Ojibways are a great nation of Indians," said Mr. Hartman. "Few persons know of the strength of these people. They have wonderful endurance and great courage. Originally they were great fighters, and provocation would not take long to start them in their old ways. They used to be a very cruel nation. Just how the Canadian government is doing much to better their education. Naturally they are a very intelligent people and they learn easily."

Royal records abound with similar stories of great sovereigns—of the playfellow of children—from Ages past.

It is evident that the Ojibways are

more familiar with the Ojibway Indians than most men. Although it is now more than seven years since he left them, he frequently returns to visit them. On a recent visit, he went through their country in a canoe, making use of a camera as he went. Ojibways who belong to the company playing "Hiawatha" don't mind their best leggings and war paint and gave the play for him. That was in the forest between Lake Huron and St. James' Bay. The Indians call him Inianahpiyah. Mrs. Hartman a few years ago was formally adopted into the same tribe in which her husband was adopted.

"The Ojibways are a great nation of Indians," said Mr. Hartman. "Few persons know of the strength of these people. They have wonderful endurance and great courage. Originally they were great fighters, and provocation would not take long to start them in their old ways. They used to be a very cruel nation. Just how the Canadian government is doing much to better their education. Naturally they are a very intelligent people and they learn easily."

Royal records abound with similar stories of great sovereigns—of the playfellow of children—from Ages past.

It is evident that the Ojibways are

more familiar with the Ojibway Indians than most men. Although it is now more than seven years since he left them, he frequently returns to visit them. On a recent visit, he went through their country in a canoe, making use of a camera as he went. Ojibways who belong to the company playing "Hiawatha" don't mind their best leggings and war paint and gave the play for him. That was in the forest between Lake Huron and St. James' Bay. The Indians call him Inianahpiyah. Mrs. Hartman a few years ago was formally adopted into the same tribe in which her husband was adopted.

"The Ojibways are a great nation of Indians," said Mr. Hartman. "Few persons know of the strength of these people. They have wonderful endurance and great courage. Originally they were great fighters, and provocation would not take long to start them in their old ways. They used to be a very cruel nation. Just how the Canadian government is doing much to better their education. Naturally they are a very intelligent people and they learn easily."

Royal records abound with similar stories of great sovereigns—of the playfellow of children—from Ages past.

It is evident that the Ojibways are

more familiar with the Ojibway Indians than most men. Although it is now more than seven years since he left them, he frequently returns to visit them. On a recent visit, he went through their country in a canoe, making use of a camera as he went. Ojibways who belong to the company playing "Hiawatha" don't mind their best leggings and war paint and gave the play for him. That was in the forest between Lake Huron and St. James' Bay. The Indians call him Inianahpiyah. Mrs. Hartman a few years ago was formally adopted into the same tribe in which her husband was adopted.

"The Ojibways are a great nation of Indians," said Mr. Hartman. "Few persons know of the strength of these people. They have wonderful endurance and great courage. Originally they were great fighters, and provocation would not take long to start them in their old ways. They used to be a very cruel nation. Just how the Canadian government is doing much to better their education. Naturally they are a very intelligent people and they learn easily."

Royal records abound with similar stories of great sovereigns—of the playfellow of children—from Ages past.

It is evident that the Ojibways are

more familiar with the Ojibway Indians than most men. Although it is now more than seven years since he left them, he frequently returns to visit them. On a recent visit, he went through their country in a canoe, making use of a camera as he went. Ojibways who belong to the company playing "Hiawatha" don't mind their best leggings and war paint and gave the play for him. That was in the forest between Lake Huron and St. James' Bay. The Indians call him Inianahpiyah. Mrs. Hartman a few years ago was formally adopted into the same tribe in which her husband was adopted.

"The Ojibways are a great nation of Indians," said Mr. Hartman. "Few persons know of the strength of these people. They have wonderful endurance and great courage. Originally they were great fighters, and provocation would not take long to start them in their old ways. They used to be a very cruel nation. Just how the Canadian government is doing much to better their education. Naturally they are a very intelligent people and they learn easily."

Royal records abound with similar stories of great sovereigns—of the playfellow of children—from Ages past.

It is evident that the Ojibways are

more familiar with the Ojibway Indians than most men. Although it is now more than seven years since he left them, he frequently returns to visit them. On a recent visit, he went through their country in a canoe, making use of a camera as he went. Ojibways who belong to the company playing "Hiawatha" don't mind their best leggings and war paint and gave the play for him. That was in the forest between Lake Huron and St. James' Bay. The Indians call him Inianahpiyah. Mrs. Hartman a few years ago was formally adopted into the same tribe in which her husband was adopted.

"The Ojibways are a great nation of Indians," said Mr. Hartman. "Few persons know of the strength of these people. They have wonderful endurance and great courage. Originally they were great fighters, and provocation would not take long to start them in their old ways. They used to be a very cruel nation. Just how the Canadian government is doing much to better their education. Naturally they are a very intelligent people and they learn easily."

Royal records abound with similar stories of great sovereigns—of the playfellow of children—from Ages past.

It is evident that the Ojibways are

more familiar with the Ojibway Indians than most men. Although it is now more than seven years since he left them, he frequently returns to visit them. On a recent visit, he went through their country in a canoe, making use of a camera as he went. Ojibways who belong to the company playing "Hiawatha" don't mind their best leggings and war paint and gave the play for him. That was in the forest between Lake Huron and St. James' Bay. The Indians call him Inianahpiyah. Mrs. Hartman a few years ago was formally adopted into the same tribe in which her husband was adopted.

"The Ojibways are a great nation of Indians," said Mr. Hartman. "Few persons know of the strength of these people. They have wonderful endurance and great courage. Originally they were great fighters, and provocation would not take long to start them in their old ways. They used to be a very cruel nation. Just how the Canadian government is doing much to better their education. Naturally they are a very intelligent people and they learn easily."

Royal records abound with similar stories of great sovereigns—of the playfellow of children—from Ages past.

It is evident that the Ojibways are

more familiar with the Ojibway Indians than most men. Although it is now more than seven years since he left them, he frequently returns to visit them. On a recent visit, he went through their country in a canoe, making use of a camera as he went. Ojibways who belong to the company playing "Hiawatha" don't mind their best leggings and war paint and gave the play for him. That was in the forest between Lake Huron and St. James' Bay. The Indians call him Inianahpiyah. Mrs. Hartman a few years ago was formally adopted into the same tribe in which her husband was adopted.

"The Ojibways are a great nation of Indians," said Mr. Hartman. "Few persons know of the strength of these people. They have wonderful endurance and great courage. Originally they were great fighters, and provocation would not take long to start them in their old ways. They used to be a very cruel nation. Just how the Canadian government is doing much to better their education. Naturally they are a very intelligent people and they learn easily."

Royal records abound with similar stories of great sovereigns—of the playfellow of children—from Ages past.

It is evident that the Ojibways are

more familiar with the Ojibway Indians than most men. Although it is now more than seven years since he left them, he frequently returns to visit them. On a recent visit, he went through their country in a canoe, making use of a camera as he went. Ojibways who belong to the company playing "Hiawatha" don't mind their best leggings and war paint and gave the play for him. That was in the forest between Lake Huron and St. James' Bay. The Indians call him Inianahpiyah. Mrs. Hartman a few years ago was formally adopted into the same tribe in which her husband was adopted.

"The Ojibways are a great nation of Indians," said Mr. Hartman. "Few persons know of the strength of these people. They have wonderful endurance and great courage. Originally they were great fighters, and provocation would not take long to start them in their old ways. They used to be a very cruel nation. Just how the Canadian government is doing much to better their education. Naturally they are a very intelligent people and they learn easily."

Royal records abound with similar stories of great sovereigns—of the playfellow of children—from Ages past.

It is evident that the Ojibways are

more familiar with the Ojibway Indians than most men. Although it is now more than seven years since he left them, he frequently returns to visit them. On a recent visit, he went through their country in a canoe, making use of a camera as he went. Ojibways who belong to the company playing "Hiawatha" don't mind their best leggings and war paint and gave the play for him. That was in the forest between Lake Huron and St. James' Bay. The Indians call him Inianahpiyah. Mrs. Hartman a few years ago was formally adopted into the same tribe in which her husband was adopted.

"The Ojibways are a great nation of Indians," said Mr. Hartman. "Few persons know of the strength of these people. They have wonderful endurance and great courage. Originally they were great fighters, and provocation would not take long to start them in their old ways. They used to be a very cruel nation. Just how the Canadian government is doing much to better their education. Naturally they are a very intelligent people and they learn easily."

Royal records abound with similar stories of great sovereigns—of the playfellow of children—from Ages past.