SCORES PERISH IN WRECK

Steamer With 18 Passengers and Crew Driven Ashore.

A despatch from London says: The steamer, "Perish," was driven ashore by the busy cross-channel traffic between England and the continent on Friday morning, when the Red Star Line steamer, "Berlin," from Holland, having safely weathered the hurricane, was suddenly driven ashore as she was entering port. The tempestuous seas broke up the steamer with such suddenness that all efforts to save her appear to have been utterly徒劳.

A despatch from London says: The terrible accident, and it probably never known how the steamer came to miss the channel, which, although three hundred yards wide, was well navigated and lighted, is always out of access in rough weather. It is conjectured that some derangement in the machinery caused the vessel to run aground, and the German crew, who had been on board since the vessel left Hamburg, had no time to get off. The captain of the "Berlin" had a record of fourteen years' service, and the list of passengers on the steamer was lost, and all the names those who were on board have not been learned.

GERMAN OPERA SINGERS LOST.

The Berlin carried passengers to the number of 141. Among them were nineteen members of the German Opera Company, who had concluded their season at Covent Garden. The manager of the Covent Garden confirmed the statement that nineteen members of the German Opera Company left Thursday night on the steamer Berlin. "So far as we know, no one of these did not intend to return to Germany. The company was made up of members of the chorus returning to Germany. They made arrangements with the railway company to have a special train to get an early start of the names. The disaster forced the most intense alarm among the older members of the company.
