A woman whose daughter was recently married writes to "Harper's Bazaar" that as the bride left the house she was showered with rose leaves instead of rice. Neither was anybody exposed to the danger of having eyes or ears injured by the flying pellets.

Another matter in which I am sure you are all interested and which doubtless has been a source of regret to every member of this Council, are the statements contained in the Presentment of the Grand Jury at the Fall Assizes, in which serious charges of mismanagement are brought against the officials of the County House of Refuge. As a member of the Standing Committee of the House of Refuge, I feel that I am in a position, from personal knowledge, to give a flat contradiction to the charges contained in the said Presentment. Visiting the House of Refuge once in every quarter of the present year, I know whereof I speak, when I say that the statements contained in that document as to the inmates not being properly fed and cared for, is entirely without foundation. The Inspector, Dr. Bruce Smith, I am glad to know, has made an investigation into the whole matter and his report, now in the hands of the County Clerk, will be laid before you. Cleanliness and contentment reign supreme in the House of Refuge, and every comfort which could be reasonably expected by the inmates, is freely furnished them; and I have heard from many of them hearty expressions of thankfulness for the comforts with which they are surrounded. I fear there have been some chronic fault-finders on that Grand Jury—we find them everywhere—and that even these have gone somewhat out of their way to malign the management, perhaps from some petty personal motive. One thing deserving of passing notice is the fact that though the members of the Grand Jury who signed the Presentment were all notified by the County Clerk to be present at Dr. Smith's inquiry, only one of the three attended; and although the Foreman of the Grand Jury was in Markdale at the time of the investigation, and was personally asked to be present, he curtly sent back the message, that if Dr. Smith wanted him, he might come where he was. You can draw your own inference as to the reliability of the statements contained in that Presentment. I will ask you, through the appointment of a special committee, or in whatever manner may to you seem best, to make full inquiry, and report at this session upon the whole matter.

THE WARDEN'S ADDRESS

At the County Council in Session at Owen Sound This Week. Some Pointed Remarks.

Gentlemen of the County Council: It is my privilege and pleasure to again welcome you to the Council Board, at this the closing session of this year's labors, and I am very pleased to see your smiling countenances, and to feel assured that you have come prompted with a desire to discharge, with wisdom and prudence, the various duties appertaining to the County Council of this important County.

The recent harvest seems to have been of variable quantity in different parts of our County; but on the whole, I have no doubt, there is room for thankfulness to the giver of all good, and that there is abundance for man and beast throughout our borders.

Among the many railway accidents which have been occurring of late—and they have indeed been many—one seemed to come nearer home to us of the County of Grey, I refer to the accident at Caledon mountain, at that point on the Canadian Pacific railway known as the "Horse Shoe." The train starting from Markdale, with happy excursionists, and meeting so suddenly and unexpectedly, with so serious a catastrophe, resulting in the death of seven of our citizens, was indeed a sad occurrence. I telegraphed, as Warden of the County, expressions of sympathy to the bereaved and afflicted ones, and I am sure all felt strong sympathy with the sufferers.

There are several matters of importance which will engross your attention during the Session and First—I would refer to the expected visit of A. W. Campbell, the Deputy Minister of Public Works, whom we invited to be present at this session, to explain to us the working of the Act of the Ontario Legislature, in aiding what is known as the Good Roads System of Ontario. I anticipate an interesting address from Mr. Campbell, fraught with abundance of information; and as I know that the farming community would be greatly benefitted by the extensive improvement of roads in this County, I trust that you will be able to carry home with you such suggestions as to desirable improvements of our County system of roads as will enable you to formulate a system which will prove of advantage to the entire County. I expect Mr. Campbell will be with us on Wednesday afternoon.

Another matter in which I am sure you are all interested and which doubtless has been a source of regret to every member of this Council, are the statements contained in the Presentment of the Grand Jury at the Fall Assizes, in which serious charges of mismanagement are brought against the officials of the County House of Refuge. As a member of the Standing Committee of the House of Refuge, I feel that I am in a position, from personal knowledge, to give a flat contradiction to the charges contained in the said Presentment. Visiting the House of Refuge once in every quarter of the present year, I know whereof I speak, when I say that the statements contained in that document as to the inmates not being properly fed and cared for, is entirely without foundation. Cleanliness and contentment reign supreme in the House of Refuge, and every comfort which could be reasonably expected by the inmates, is freely furnished them; and I have heard from many of them hearty expressions of thankfulness for the comforts with which they are surrounded. I fear there have been some chronic fault-finders on that Grand Jury—we find them everywhere—and that even these have gone somewhat out of their way to malign the management, perhaps from some petty personal motive. One thing deserving of passing notice is the fact that though the members of the Grand Jury who signed the Presentment were all notified by the County Clerk to be present at Dr. Smith's inquiry, only one of the three attended; and although the Foreman of the Grand Jury was in Markdale at the time of the investigation, and was personally asked to be present, he curtly sent back the message, that if Dr. Smith wanted him, he might come where he was. You can draw your own inference as to the reliability of the statements contained in that Presentment. I will ask you, through the appointment of a special committee, or in whatever manner may to you seem best, to make full inquiry, and report at this session upon the whole matter.

I understand that some of the bridges which were recommended to be built at the June session, have been completed. I might mention among these, the steel and concrete bridge at Preeceville, (which had been left over from 1906), being on the towline of Artemesia and Glenelg; also the cement bridge over the Pottawatamie river, on the boundary line between Owen Sound and Sarawak. No doubt the Chairman of the Road and Bridge Committee will place the particulars of these matters before you.

Trusting that we shall have an interesting session, and that the County's business may be completed for the year, and left in good shape for our successors, believe me to be, gentlemen, Your obedient servant, H. V. PEDWELL, Warden.

Train Men Acquitted.

Engineer Hodge and Conductor Grimes Both Found Innocent of Criminal Negligence in the Caledon Wreck.—Evidence Was Contradictory.—Counsel's Address.

The trial of Engineer George Hodge and Conductor Matthew Grimes, charged with criminal negligence, which caused the wreck on the C.P.R. at Caledon Horseshoe Curve on September 3rd, took place last week at Brampton. Six attended from Markdale as witnesses, viz: H. Mercer, J. A. Croyston, A. Plewes, G. E. Gray, J. H. Stephenson and T. Roberts.

The evidence was contradictory and lacking in definiteness as to the real speed of the train at the dangerous point.

Mr. Robinette, in his address to the jury, held that the crown had not proved that the train had been illegally run at excessive speed. Hodge had applied the air brake sufficient for a freight engine, but not for a passenger train. His fault was one of omission, due to ignorance, and for this the system was at fault. He also urged the possible effect of a broken brakeshoe on the engine.

N. F. Davidson, K.C., for the crown, said the train had been going at least 30 miles an hour. It was going fast to make up the scheduled time at McGee Road. The evidence proved criminal negligence. None of the crown witnesses had wanted to say anything to injure the two accused.

Justice Magee reviewed the evidence. Railway employees had to protect the lives of thousands of passengers and the accused had left anything under that might have prevented the accident. Carelessness should be punished, but it did not follow that the first person called before a jury should be convicted. He commented on the disappearance of the train bulletins at Orangeville and Toronto.

At the conclusion of the trial Saturday evening the court-room was packed, the gallery being filled with women, who sat for over an hour awaiting the result.

At exactly 8.50 the jury came into the room, two hours after Justice Magee had given his charge, explaining the legal points.

There was complete silence, and Court Dickson asked the foreman if a verdict had been reached. The foreman rose slowly and in a quiet voice said: "Not Guilty."

There was great applause, despite the protestations of the court officials.

When order had been restored, Justice Magee said to the prisoners: "I am glad for your sake that this verdict has been reached. I trust it will be a warning to both of you through their whole lives. I release you from attendance at the court."

Conductor Grimes will go back to work. Hodge has not yet decided what he will do. Both were heartily congratulated on the result of the trial. Grimes expected no other verdict. Hodge was glad the strain was over.

Five minutes after the jury were packed up a ballot taken stood eight to four for conviction. The four jurymen who were in favor of the accused commenced in earnest to explain and argue every point. It took over an hour, when one by one the others fell into line, until the twelve were convinced that the accident was not caused through any negligence of Hodge and Grimes.

T. C. Robinette, counsel for the accused, expected the verdict, and was naturally pleased. Crown Prosecutor Davidson thought the charge of Justice Magee had largely to do with the verdict.
