Mr. Arthur Tomison, 88 Dundas Street, Toronto, writes enthusiastically of the merits of Psychine for all stomach troubles.

"For seven years I have had indigestion and dyspepsia. I tried scores of remedies. My room resembled a dog stable with nostrums which I had bought for nothing. I used Psychine, and it cured me. I bought permanent relief. All that I ate and stomach troubles quickly ended by Psychine. It is a prescription of a great specialist. At all drug stores, 50c and $1.00, or at A. Sloam, Limited, Toronto."

What had happened? The old streets were a different aspect. It was only the fresh coat of paint on the houses that put on the made the alteration, but the merry girls' faces that looked out of the windows, the street who, in a state of perfect chatter over the pavement, their wooden shoes, making enough to overpower all the horses' feet and the music which already sounded the streets from a distance, men and women of doors.

"Hurrah! The Chlan's coming back from the parade!"

The golden morning sun shined on the tips of the bay black and white hound, the warm summer wind stirred the staff trumpeter with the bay horses, then the manner with the admiral behind them, the long, dusty from their warm, low magnificently straight the young fellows, their saddles, how they parked through the window, the young girls looked on, officer gazed at the corner of the old game on the house of the French on Tollen a window, open, and a brown pair of eyes with a pair of magnificent, eyes on the glittering, wound beneath his black, with shining scales, as Katie's foot kept the salt, her hair was over the narrow, delicate nostrils.

The officers all greeted her, lowering and she returned smiling and blushing, teeth gleamed out, looked up and admired the picture. At the street the band went, squadrons separated, their various stable officers came back, stopped before Katie, "Fraulen von Tollen," the commanding going to drive this afternoon, you with us, will you not? very much hurt, our refusal of yesterday, "I should, but I cannot, my mamma will never let me." "I will speak to my father the young officer, spring off his horse, to a soldier, who had the Tollen's house, to me, Fraulen Katie smiled at the girl, captured eyes as he spoke, "Alas, do, Herr Stedt, Mamma is a strict Katie."

"This minute," was the officer and clattered into the elder officer's called out, "Aut, wig, called away."

Katie clapped the without perceiving, Schomburg was coming street, and had been a long time as he approached.
