FOR HER FAN

CHAPTER XXXIV

The general had engaged the little apartment near the Forum. In spite of the animosity the old gentleman had named longer in Berlin than he needed; first, in order to be with the deeply-tired sister-in-law at the time her daughter's marriage.

It was not until he took to his bed with an attack of rheumatism, brought on by the cold autumn weather, that she wavered in her resolution; and when he went to his wedding and Lora, who accompanied him, saw with her own eyes, she yielded and agreed to accompany him to his beloved home.

Whether the old gentleman would have himself out worse than was really the case, she could not determine. At all events, as soon as the train had passed the St. Catharines and was rushing toward Niagara, he had seemed quite another being, and had become entirely the erect old soldier, the tentative cavalier.

They had stayed in Naples until Christmas, spending the day before in Capri, in Pagano's comfortable hotel, with its garden of palm-trees. On New Year's Day they went to Pompeii, and had looked back with various feelings on all that the last year had brought them. Three hundred and sixty-five days, what were they in comparison with these things, which were a thousand years old, and yet what had they brought to them of joy and peace?

She sat on the steps of the forum and written a telegram to her mother and aunt, and sent it from the station at Pompeii. A greeting for the present, to denote antiquity. "Time, roll on, pass away with it, and with our poor little joys and sorrows, that seem so important in our blind arrogance," she thought. "How, in an old woman, who used to come here for his summer vacation, would he be a summer at the railroad and the graph."

ENTITLED TO PARTICULARS

One ounce Fluid Extract Date-Lion. One ounce Compound Salutaria. Four ounces Compound Syrup Scamapilla. Take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime, drinking plenty of water.

The above prescription has been found invaluable in the treatment of kidney, bladder and urinary troubles, and diseases arising therefrom, such as rheumatism, sciatica, lame back, and indigestion, and we feel that the public are entitled to particulars concerning it. A prominent physician states that the excellent results that have been obtained from the use of the mixture are due to its direct action upon the kidneys, assisting them in their work and filtering all poisonous waste matter and acids from the blood and expelling them in the urine, and at the same time restoring the kidneys to healthy condition. He further states that anyone suffering from affections of this nature should not be given a trial, and that it will be very beneficial and that it can be given a trial.
