Turning Over A New Leaf

It was the last day of the year, and there had been a week of bitterly cold weather, with a very heavy fall of snow. The morning dawned bright and beautiful, and the sunlight played on the long icicles that hung from the roofs and beautifully illuminated the snow laden branches of the trees. It had not at present much dissolving power, but as the sun reached the zenith there would no doubt be a rapid thaw. So, said James Turner, who in woollen comforter and gloves was industriously sweeping the snow from his doorway, and making a path by which himself and neighbor could cross over to the village shop. I suppose it is very rude to look in at people's windows, and yet I should like you to take a peep in at Mr. Turner's cottage window and admire little Johnnie. He is sitting on a footstool near the fire, and indeed everything about him is bright. There was no one else in the room but that did not signify. Having finished his sweeping, James Turner opened the cottage door and asked: "Where's your mother, Johnnie?" "Upstairs, father," was the reply.

"Never mind; I'm going to send poor little Tim in to get warm at that fire."
"All right, father," said Johnnie, "send him along."
Little Tim came in shivering with ragged clothing and bare feet. He was the same age as Johnnie, but much smaller in size, and very pale and fragile looking. His eyes sparkled when he saw the comfortable looking Johnnie, and he exclaimed, "Oh, how nice it is!"
"Come along, Tim," said Johnnie. "Here is plenty of room. Oh, my! how cold you are! Put your hands on my porringer, and that will warm them proper."
Tim accepted the invitation, and it must be confessed that when he held the porringer his eyes fell longingly on the bread and milk it contained.

"Have you had any breakfast?" asked Johnnie.
"No," said Tim sadly. "My mother has nothing for me this morning."
"Oh, my!" said Johnnie again. "Well, never mind; eat that up quick."
And poor little Tim emptied the porringer, and basked in the warmth of the fire until strange questions suggested themselves, and, childlike, he asked them: "Where do you get your milk?" "We buy it of old Styles. Where do you get yours?"
"We never have any. My mother never has any penny for it. I wonder why some people have money and other people have none."

Johnnie was puzzled now, but he said: "A long while ago I had no socks or shoes, and my mother had no money, and father was often cross with her. But one day we had such a jolly supper that I wondered about it, and asked if we should ever have another as good, and father said: 'Yes, Johnnie, plenty of them, for I have turned over a new leaf.' Since then we have had fire and milk, and puddings, and clothes, and I have a Sunday suit in the cupboard. Tomorrow we shall have a New Year's gift and it is to be a clock; and it all comes from father turning over a new leaf."
Just then Mrs. Turner came down stairs, and with true kindness spoke to little Tim and then asked Johnnie if he had given little Tim any pictures to look at.

"No, mother," said Johnnie, "we have been having a serious talk."
Mrs. Turner looked amused, but she asked: "What has Johnnie been saying to you, Tim?"
"He has told me about the new leaf, and I shall ask my father to get one."
"Poor little fellow! It will be a happy thing for you if your father will alter. God help you all this winter."
Mrs. Turner found some clothes that her own little son had outgrown, and they were plenty large enough for her neighbor's child, and the little fellows were both delighted in the change in Tim's appearance; but as Mr. Turner was coming to dinner now, they sent Tim to his mother to tell all his wonderful story, and to give her a new shilling as Mrs. Turner's New Year's gift.

That same night Tim Raglan the elder came home earlier than usual, and apparently in good spirits. "Tomorrow will be New Year's Day, mother," he said jocularly. "Will you stand-treat?"
"I wish I could," she said; "but, Tim, come and show yourself to your father."
Tim came willingly, and his clothes were felt and admired, until nobody could say any more

You Can Heal Yourself at Home.

Don't give up hope. Don't go away from home to seek a cure. Don't ruin your stomach with useless "dope" and patent medicines. Your lungs will heal themselves as readily as a cut on your finger, if you give them a chance. What they need is more oxygen—more pure air—and Lung Bath will destroy the most malignant germs of the disease. All competent physicians of today recognize that God's pure air is the first and last requisite in the treatment of all diseases of the lungs. Our method of treatment—which has been successful in hundreds and thousands of cases—discards drugs, and insinuates and develops every cell of the lungs, and at the same time destroys the virus of disease in the affected cells by the aid of Lung Food and allows nature to heal them. Our Lung Bath carries life-giving oxygen to every cell of your lungs, and increases your lung capacity from the first day of its use. Treatment physicians call this the Lung Bath the only real and safe method of restoring the Great White Lung.

Don't let it do you no harm, and never failed in a single case. To keep him alive for 90 further days, this has enabled or cured of these same people who live for to live only 30 days to breathe at home. If you can live 90 have a chance out of 10 of all. These are results—not words not worthy your investment. A treatment with such a record is a first! Live you more than half way. The treatment is inexpensive—average improvement from the first thirty days) or refund. Don't incur the slightest expense until your friends see benefit. You're physician, if he or with modern practice in the of pulmonary tuberculosis, will use Lung Bath and its use. It is best a medicine but a tried it in your case and a verified it in your case. Ask for pamphlet and test.

Write today for particulars. Describe and test. Lung Bath Manufacturing Company. 23 Scott St., Toronto, Ont.

GLAD IT DID SO MUCH GOOD.

Lots of Men and Women Here had the Simple Home-Made Mixture Prepared, Says Druggist.

Some remarkable stories are being told about town and among the country people coming in of this simple home-made mixture curing Rheumatism and Kidney trouble. Here is the recipe and directions for making: Mix by shaking well in a bottle one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kagon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Take as a dose one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime. No change need be made in your usual diet, but drink plenty of good water.

This mixture has a peculiar tonic effect upon the kidneys; cleansing the clogged-up pores of the eliminative tissues, forcing the kidneys to sift and strain from the blood the uric acid and other poisonous waste matter overcoming Rheumatism, Bladder and Urinary troubles in a short while. A druggist here who has had hundreds of calls for these ingredients since the first announcement in the newspapers last October stated that the people who once try it "swear by it," especially those who have Urinary and Kidney trouble and suffer with Rheumatism.

All the druggists in this neighborhood say they can supply the ingredients, which are easily mixed at home. There is said to be no better blood-cleansing agent or system tonic known, and certainly none more harmless or simple to use.

A crowd of small boys were gathered about the entrance of a circus tent in one of the small cities in New Hampshire one day trying to get a glimpse of the interior. A man standing near watched them for a few moments; then, walking up to the ticket taker, he said: "Let all these boys in, and count them as they pass." The man did as requested, and when the last one had gone in he turned and said: "Twenty-eight." "Good!" said the man; "I guessed just right," and walked off. Philadelphia Ledger.
