A Glorious Victory.

"Good morning, Harry," said Ned, "lection's over and local option didn't carry. Isn't it too bad? That's the way they protect us boys."

"Yes, Ned, you remember what I told you about the almighty dollar. Father says he remembers in one county during the Scott Act campaign, a few cents more on a bushel of barley and a cent or two on a pound of hops decided the contest, and out-weighed the well-being of sons and daughters. He said such a failure was enough to make angels weep."

"Wasn't that a shame, Harry?" said Ned. "I guess the recording angel must have dropped lots of tears last Monday when he was putting down the doins of some of our christian voters."

"That reminds me of a verse I once heard that will just fit in here," said Harry.

"The recording angel's sheet was quite black,

As the tears trickled down on his pen,
And he wearily cried, alas, alack,
How fallen the children of men."

"That's just it, Harry," said Ned. "What if the angel Gabriel had come down on Monday and blown his trumpet, wouldn't it have made a stir?"

"Ah, Ned," said Harry, "that is the saddest part of it, and we know not when he may come so we ought to be ready anyway. Father says," continued Harry, "that he cannot understand why one good, right-living temperance man's vote is not at least equal to one vote of the liquor party, but according to our present law the former have to have 60 votes while the latter only require 40. He says considering the great obstacle in the way after all we have had a glorious victory for temperance. Three years ago in a majority vote we were 12 behind, and this time with the three-fifths clause we were only nine, so that we have really gained between 70 and 80 votes."

"That's so, Harry, and if these men who were sittin' on the fence hadn't toppled over backwards on the whiskey side we might have carried it."

"I guess, Ned," said Harry, "you forgot to take that electric battery along."

"Father was saying last night," said Harry, "that a licensed liquor traffic is a disgrace to our christianity, for out in heathen China, when they were just awakening to civilization they began to realize the demoralizing effect of the opium traffic and their statesmen said 'Opium must go, and at once they devised a scheme to accomplish their purpose. He says 'What have our christian statesmen done to wipe out of existence this cruel traffic in intoxicating liquor, which has had such a debasing and paralyzing effect on the moral and religious welfare of our country. And, Ned, I remember reading myself that at the close of the opium war in 1842 the poor old Emperor of China said: 'It is true, I cannot prevent the introduction of the flowing poison, but nothing will induce me to receive a 'revenue' from the 'vice and misery' of my people. How these heathen people do shame us christians," said Ned. "I am sure when I grow up I will be 'man enough to take a stand for the right."

"Well, Ned," said Harry, "I will have to go, but I will say, not in the language of Tennyson, but in the language of Harry Black, 'Ring out the unjust three-fifths clause. That makes a most unequal fight, and robs us of our lawful right. Ring in God's Just and Righteous laws."

Presentation.

On Monday evening, Dec. 27, a number of the neighbors of Mr. William Cullis, of Euphrasia, took possession of his old home and read him a complimentary address and presented him with a gold watch previous to his intended removal from the neighborhood. The address was read by Miss Clara Buskin, and the presentation made by Mr. John Hutchinson. Mr. Willford Cullis gave a talk on "New Ontario," which was much enjoyed. The address read as follows: December 27, 1909.

Mr. William Cullis,
Euphrasia Township,

Dear Mr. Cullis—Some of your friends, learning of your proposed removal from our settlement, have gathered here this evening to express by our presence our regret at losing from our midst an old neighbor. You have lived for over thirty years amongst us. You have shared our joys and sorrows, and we have always found you a good citizen, a kind neighbor and a true and loyal friend. We are glad to find you are not removing so far away, that you cannot often revisit us, and your friends and neighbors will always gladly welcome you back. For you we know Time's older memories, good and sweet, must still linger around the old homestead to which your son has brought his bride. We hope to often see you, at the old home. As an expression of good-will from friends and neighbors to yourself and family, please accept this gold watch for yourself and these two small handbags for Edith and Emily, and we close by wishing you good health and happiness, and may God bless and keep you all.

Signed on behalf of your neighbors,
John Hutchinson.

IRISH LAKE

Happy New Year to The Standard and its numerous readers. Christmas has come and gone, bringing with it its usual number of visitors, which tends to make it the more enjoyable for all.

Mr. W. H. Martin, of the Soo, accompanied by his little daughter, are visiting the Ryan and Martin families.

Mr. P. J. Butler, of Owen Sound, combined business with pleasure and visited friends for a few days.

Mrs. James Kerley intends spending the New Year with Dornoch friends.

Mr. James Day, of Buffalo, is spending the holidays with the Campbell family. Mrs. Day, who has been visiting her parents, will return with him.

Mrs. Jack Quinlan is away on a visit to Detroit, where her aunt, Mrs. J. Webster, resides.

The teacher and pupils held a pleasing entertainment in the school Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 22. The several parts taken by the children were very creditable to them and highly commendable to their teacher, Miss Walker, of Durham.

Miss Nellie Hearn, of Toronto, spent the holiday with her parents.

There was a happy re-union at Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sullivan's cosy home Christmas, when there was gathered around them all the children and grandchildren, with the exception of Tom, who is a member of the police force, Toronto.

Messrs. Douglas, Grasby, McDonald and Morris, who are working in the Piper woods near the Lake, spent Christmas and New Year at their respective homes in Durham.

Bowles-Sprung.

A quiet wedding ceremony was performed at the Central Methodist parsonage by the Rev. G. M. Kerby, when Christina A., daughter of R. A. Sprung, Alberta, was united in marriage to Allan S. Bowles, B.A., of Vancouver. Both bride and groom are well and favorably known in their home County, Huron, Ontario, and Mr. Bowles has made for himself a splendid reputation in his chosen calling in his adopted city in the coast province. Mr. and Mrs. Bowles left on the evening train for their home in Vancouver. Their large circle of friends join in wishing them a happy and prosperous journey through life.—Com.
