Anti-Betting Bill Defeated

H. H. Miller's Measure Before Dominion Parliament Defeated by Narrow Margin.

WHAT THE MILLER BILL PROPOSED.

To abolish all gambling, particularly on horse races, but on any game of chance or anything else.

On April 7—After one of the most exciting nights witnessed in Parliament for some time, a majority of the House of Commons, with a sympathetic side towards the interests of the turf and the sporting instincts of the human race, blocked the bill introduced and ably sponsored by Mr. H. H. Miller of South Grey, to suppress race-track gambling. As the matter stands there is still a possibility of a compromise being reached before the end of the session, but with the opposition of the bill existing upon an amendment which in one respect at least would have the effect of accelerating the bookmaking evil, the chances of any legislation this session having a practical value, are slight. The promoters of the bill and those supporting it made a five night, resisting to the end all attempts to force upon the country what they regarded as a half measure that would defeat the reform aimed at but they encountered an opposition which derived strength from unexpected quarters, and which benefited from the fact that the issue was decided in committee, where members can vote assured of some degree of anonymity.

The climax of the struggle was reached when, after the debate on the general principle of the bill had been itself, the House in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to the consideration of the clauses. Mr.

McColl, the member for West Northumberland, who led the opposition to the bill, brought matters to a head by pressing his amendment embodying the English statute with respect to betting. This the Chairman of the Committee, Mr. McIntyre, declined to accept, on the ground that it was an amendment not to any particular clause in the bill, but to the bill itself.

The only alternative open to the opponents of the bill was to move that the first clause be struck out, and this course was followed by Mr. McColl. Amid considerable excitement a standing vote was taken with the result that the amendment was declared carried by 78 to 77, a majority of one. The narrowness of the majority and the division not only among the rank and file of both parties, but among the members of the Cabinet, revealed a situation that has seldom been paralleled in the history of important legislation.

It was now recognized that the fate of the bill was sealed, and this impression was confirmed when, on motion of Mr. McColl, the second clause was rejected by 87 to 74. Still the Chairman was firm in declining to accept Mr. McColl's substitute, and another vote was about to be taken on clause three, when Mr. Miller, determined to stall off the effect of practically exempting bookmakers from prosecution, since they could claim to be individuals in the sense of the English statute, and rather than have such a condition of affairs he was prepared to sacrifice his bill and leave matters as they are at present. In support of his contention he was able to quote the opinion of the Minister of Justice, who had condemned the bill in a speech which undoubtedly stiffened the opposition to the bill and had a pronounced effect on the result.

On the suggestion of Mr. Fielding, backed up by Sir Wilfred Laurier, however, the motion that the committee rise was withdrawn for one that the committee rise, report progress, and ask leave to sit again, and after a good deal of confusion this was carried, the effect of it being that the bill stands over.

Monument to Laura Secord

Will be Erected on Queenston Heights and Made of Native Granite.

A Laura Secord monument will be erected on Queenston Heights. It will cost about $2,000, consisting of an appropriation made by the Dominion Government. The monument will stand about twelve feet high. From a square base of Canadian granite, seven feet to the side, three steps will arise, surmounted by a square die of granite, with a plinth of carved maple leaves and pointed cap. On one side will be inserted a bronze medal of Laura Secord, with inscription, and on the opposite side will appear a record of the death of her husband. Above the medallion will be carved the words, "This monument has been erected by the Government of Canada to Laura Ingersoll Secord, and below the medallion the inscription will continue, "Who saved her husband's life in the battle on these heights Oct. 13, 1812, and who risked her own in conveying to Capt. Fitzgibbon information by which he won the victory of Beaver Dams, July 24, 1813."

Perfect Feet Growing Scarce

Professor Ascribes Fact to the High Heeled Shoe—Men Less at Fault than Fair Sex.

London, April 10.—Prof. Redorta of Bellinzona has been making a study of the feet of men and women of past and present generations. Photographs, paintings and statues have guided him to his present conclusions, as well as the examination of the feet of hundreds of men and women.

He declares that not one woman in a score has a perfect foot owing to the wearing of high-heeled and pointed-toed shoes. Men have somewhat the advantage in this respect, as they are less under the sway of fashion as regards their boots and so have preserved the beauty of their feet more fully.

Russian, German, American, Austrian and Dutch women all have feet too broad to be perfect, though in the case of American women the feet are small. English women's feet are too narrow to fulfill classical and healthy conditions. The women of the Latin races, excluding the French, have the best formed, and therefore the prettiest feet. The French woman has destroyed any semblance to beauty in her feet by her absurd shoes.

The professor urges the abolition of the modern boot and recommends walking in sandals and going barefoot in the house.

The "Village Smithy" Has Passed Away

Friend of Longfellow Who Inspired the Poet Dies at Old Age.

The late W. Tyler of Lynn, Mass., the original "Village Smithy," is dead. It was while watching him at work over his forge and anvil that Longfellow was inspired to write:

"Under the spreading chestnut,
The village smithy stands."
Tyler died at his home at Lynn, 76 years old, after an illness of but four days with pleuro-pneumonia. He was a blacksmith for but a few years. Not long after he had been immobilized by the poet, he went into the shoe manufacturing business, which he continued to his death. He invented the process of ironed stiffenings for shoes.

Mr. Tyler was a close friend of Longfellow, and a frequent visitor at his home.

There is a reason for the phenomenal sale of Parisian Sage in Canada during the past three years. And the reason is plain to all. Parisian Sage does just what it is advertised to do. Ask W. Turner & Co. about it. They will tell you that they rigidly guarantee it to cure dandruff, stop falling hair or itching scalp in two weeks or money back. There is no reason whatever why any man or woman should fail to take advantage of the above generous offer.

LA GRIPPE
Arrested, and Consumption Cured
Mr. G. D. Colwell, of Walkerville, Ontario, was stricken down with La Grippe in 1906 and it left him in a very bad condition. He says: I was all run down and I could not sleep at nights, had awful coughing and coughed nearly the whole time. This is how I felt when I began to take Psychine, in a low nervous state; but from the first bottle I began to improve. It did marvels for me and brought me back to health in no time, making a new man of me. I am now able to fight the body against the attacks of La Grippe and is a sure preventative. I always take Psychine if I feel a cold coming on and it puts me right in no time.
