Sinking Spells Every Few Days

"At the time I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I was having sinking spells every few days. My hands and feet would get cold; I could scarcely breathe, and could feel myself gradually sinking away until I would be unconscious. Those about me could not tell there was life in me. After these spells I would be very weak and nervous, sleepless and without appetite; had neuralgia in my head and heart. After taking the remedy a short time all this disappeared and in a few weeks all the heart-trouble was gone."

MRS. LIZZIE PAINTER, 803 1/2 3d Ave. Evansville, Ind.

For twenty years we have been constantly receiving just such letters as these. There is scarcely a locality in the United States where there is not some one who can testify to the merits of this remarkably successful Heart Remedy.

Halley's Comet, which is now visible to the naked eye in the eastern sky in the morning, is erroneously contemplated by many to be the approaching end of the world. But inferring from the recorded inoffensiveness of a similar occurrence seventy-five years ago, we can rest assured that no disastrous results will be experienced by this visit of this luminous heavenly body.

The Montreal Circuit Court is three thousand suits behind its schedule. Although the number of cases has increased from 11,139 in 1893 to 25,733 in 1909, there has been no increase in the number of judges.

W. C. T. U. COLUMN

"A NICE FELLOW WHEN SOBER."

His neighbor bore this testimony: "He was a nice fellow when sober, but his habit of drinking led to trouble in the home." The constable said: "The money had to do with the tragedy, but, of course, intemperance was the real cause." This is the result: the mother murdered, the father a suicide, the three orphan children under ten years of age burdened and branded for life.

That instance reported in the Globe yesterday is only one out of the almost daily murders and suicides and other crimes of violence charged up against the drink habit and barroom. Every newspaper that reports the day's events, even in Canada, bears witness to the ruin wrought by the liquor traffic. The incidents reported are only those of open and public violence. No note is made of the unnumbered tragedies that fall short of public crime. The hearts that suffer in silence, the lives that are slowly blighted, the service that never is rendered, and the success that is never won—of these no mention is made in the newspapers. But these, too, are the natural and inevitable issue of the drink habit and the legalized liquor traffic.

And we are told that society must not step in and prohibit a traffic that every day blasts a new home here, destroys a fresh life there, and yonder turns "a nice fellow when sober" into a murderer and suicide. Society, forsooth, may stand guard at the ports of entry and turn back the "undesirables" from beyond the seas, but it would be an encroachment on British liberties were society to refuse legal authority to these institutions which take the brightest of our own youths and the most alert of our own workmen and turn them into incapables and criminals!

This very man who was "a nice fellow when sober" was also a good workman. His work was of positive economic value to society. He made his contribution to the wealth of the country. As a result of the operations of the barroom and the drink traffic he destroyed himself, murdered his wife, and left his children to be cared for by others. In one form or another that same tragedy is played over and over again in all parts of Canada, and the agent of it all is the legalized liquor trade.

The time will come when intelligence and reason will mock at this boasted "British liberty" of ours. It is done in England; of course, and England is our model. But surely this aping of England's shame is no part of the Imperial policy. Let Canada strike for the higher social standard and give to liberty the larger meaning. The barroom and the gambling house have had their change, and the best they can show is the wreckage of those whom they changed from "nice fellows" to wastrels and criminals.
