DRAMATIC ARREST OF DR. CRIPPEN AND MISS LENEVE BY DEW

Am. Glad the Suspense is Over, the Anxiety Was Too Much For Me to Bear," Was Crippen's Response.

Particulars of the Arrest--Incidents of the Voyage--How They Were Recognized--Will They Be Deported?

Day of the Case

February 2.—A letter purporting to be signed by Miss Crippen in the name of Mrs. H. O. Crippen, that she was going to America, was received at Los Angeles.

February 7.—Letter written by Dr. Crippen to Mrs. Crippen's sister-in-law in Brooklyn announcing her death.

February 9.—Letter written by Mr. H. O. Crippen, son of the doctor by a first wife, living at Los Angeles, California, saying that the first he knew of the death was a letter from his father.

February 20.—Scotland Yard informed of the dissatisfaction of Mrs. Crippen's friends with the report of her death. Chief Inspector Dew questioned Dr. Crippen.

February 21.—Dr. Crippen and Miss Le Neve disappeared from Alhambra about 1 p.m. She may be traced as a boy.

February 21.—Body discovered in the St. Lawrence river. Dr. Crippen was seen in Alhambra every quarter of the hour.

February 21.—A guard on the London and North Western railway was told that a man resembling Dr. Crippen and Miss Le Neve travelled on his train from Dieppe to Paris.

February 21.—Attention directed to the fact that the front of the boat was a man resembling Crippen was reported to have spent Sunday night in Paris.

February 21.—Reported that the suspect escaped from a cafe when surprised at lunch on the boat and gained the Spanish frontier. Man resembling Crippen also seen at Madrid.

February 21.—Dew arrived at Rimouski, Que.

February 21.—Crippen and his companion arrested.

February 21.—Dr. Crippen and Miss Le Neve were arrested at 9 this morning on the steamship Montrose, off Father Point.

February 21.—The arrest was made in a cabin on the steamship Montrose. Dr. Crippen was seen by Supt. Stewart, who saw the pilot boat.

February 21.—The pilot boat was seen by Supt. Stewart, who saw the pilot boat.

six miles down the river, a nervous, careworn passenger passed the deck about 10 p.m. "What are we doing now?" enquired the passenger of Dr. Stewart, the ship's surgeon.

"This is Father Point, Mr. Robinson, and we are slowing up to take a boat aboard," replied the medical man. "You can see the boat coming out to meet us there."

"There seems to be a good many pilots in the boat, doctor," remarked Mr. Robinson, scanning the approaching craft with anxiety of his face.

"Yes," said Dr. Stewart, "there are four."

"Stop," changed the bell from the bridge to the engine room.

The men in the small boat were now alongside and rested on their oars. A boy was thrown to the craft and it was watched alongside the larger vessel.

A second later Inspector Dew, of Scotland Yard, dressed in the pilot's uniform, McCarthy and ex-Capt. Dew, both armed with revolvers, stepped on the actual pilot, instead of the deck of the Montrose.

"Dew's hand was extended to the captain, but his eye passed on."

"That's my man," he said, quietly, but the jubilant, thankful ring in his voice could not be distinguished. "It was not hard to see that he was having a difficult time in playing the role of pilot and that he itched to assert himself as an officer of the law. Captain Kendall, McCarthy and Dew chatted at the companionway. Denis and Gaudreau turned toward the wheelhouse.

Dr. Stewart and Robinson were walking up the deck. Robinson passed so close to Dew that the latter could have touched him. Still not a move was made. Dew was sizing up his quarry carefully, pitilessly. Robinson coughed slightly and turned towards the captain, as though to ask a question. He was perfectly unconscious of the true state of affairs.

"I want to see you below a moment," said Dew, with his characteristic lip. Then, turning to Chief McCarthy, he said: "That's the man."

"I arrest you in the name of the King," said McCarthy. "You are my prisoner. Anything you say will be taken down in writing and may be used against you at your trial."

The passengers and crew, knowing for the first time that something out of the ordinary was going on, crowded to the front and McCarthy hustled his prisoner below. As they were descending the narrow ship's stairs Crippen said: "Have you a warrant? What's the charge?"

GLAD IT WAS OVER.

Crippen Had Many Diamonds Found Pinned to His Undershirt.

On Board the Steamship Montrose, below Quebec, July 31.—Dr. Stewart, in describing the arrest, said that while Crippen had been very nervous since the Gulf was reached, he did not seem to be apprehensive of the short stop at Father Point until he saw the boatload of men pulling the ship. Then he turned pale. Inspector Dew walked up the deck and when he got near to where Crippen and Dr. Stewart were standing he stopped and beckoned to Crippen. He did not falter for a moment, but walked straight over to where the sleuth from Scotland Yard was standing. Dew took him by the arm and led him to the captain's room under the bridge, where the arrest was made by Detectives McCarthy and Denis.

HAD MANY DIAMONDS. As the steel bracelets clamped his wrists he looked at Dew for a moment and said he was glad the suspense was over. Then he was quickly led down to a vacant cabin, where he was searched. The first search of his outer clothing revealed only a ten-dollar bill, a watch and a pencil. No revolver, not even a knife, was found.

Pinned to his undershirt, however, were five ladies' diamond rings and a diamond pin.

There is nothing of a prepossessing character about the man at all. It seemed almost a travesty to handcuff him. When Dew produced the diamond rings from the undershirt, Crippen gave a half smile.

In Cabin 5 Miss Le Neve, alias John George Robinson, was searched after she revived from the collapse which followed her arrest. She was given brandy, and then Inspector Dew and a stewardess went through her clothing. Nothing was found of any consequence, save the diamond brooch and Dew asked her several questions, trying to draw from her what knowledge she had of the crime. She volunteered little information, however.

She was dressed in a brown suit, trousers and coat and vest, with a low collar and tie her hair was cut short. She is slightly taller than Crippen, with grey eyes, unusually large, and although she was crying in a frightened sort of way when being questioned, it was evident, in spite of her tear-stained face, that she was a decidedly pretty girl. Twice during the morning Miss Le Neve had to give brandy to revive her from fainting spells. The boy's clothing was taken away and she was given young woman's apparel.

SUSPECTED "SON" WAS A GIRL. David Keen, of Liverpool, the bed-room steward, who looked after Cabin 5, said the boat was only two days out from Antwerp when he suspected the so-called boy in that room was a girl. He informed the captain, chief steward and the captain had already had their suspicions aroused about Master Robinson on account of his feminine voice, his carriage and the full bust and hips, which are not usually to be found in lads of 16. Keen said that "Robinson and his son" always retired in good time, invariably sipping a bottle of beer in their room each night and were regular attendants in the saloon, not missing a meal. Both were constant readers.

Dr. Stewart, who witnessed the arrest, saw quite a lot of Crippen and his companion during the voyage. He sat next to Crippen for several days at the table and engaged the man in conversation. Stewart used to jump the man as to where he was going and what his occupation was. Crippen replied that he was an American who had been in Europe for a month's holidays. He said he had a fruit farm in California. Asked if he intended to put his "son" on the farm, Crippen replied, "No, he is too delicate."

Captain Kendall, whose information to Scotland Yard when his vessel had sailed from Antwerp led to the successful tracking of the pair by Inspector Dew, said he was confident in his own mind that he had Crippen and Miss Le Neve on board, as soon as his attention was called to the fact that the girl was masquerading as a boy.

His demeanor throughout the voyage was quiet and reserved, and it was only during the past two or three days that he began to show signs of nervousness. The sight of that little pilot boat this morning brought the hunted look into his eyes, and, according to Dr. Stewart, who was with him at the time Dew climbed on board, Crippen immediately recognized the man from Scotland Yard and answered his beckoning finger like a sheep dog follows the call of his master.

Crippen and Miss Le Neve were arrested on the same warrant by Detective Denis, of the Provincial police.

TO BE EXTRADITED. Dr. Crippen Appears in Court and Remanded for 15 Days.

Quebec, Aug. 1.—Dr. Crippen, who was arrested on the steamer Montrose at Father Point on Sunday for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore, in London, appeared before Magistrate Angers, in private chambers this morning, for formal arraignment, and was remanded to jail for fifteen days. The questions put to him were the usual ones in such cases, and the prisoner admitted he was Dr. Crippen and declared that he would not fight extradition. The probability is that he will be deported under the undesirable clause of the Immigration Act, together with Miss Le Neve, at the end of the period fixed by Judge Angers, by which time another detective will have arrived from Scotland Yard to assist Inspector Dew in taking the couple back to England to stand their trial. MISS LENEVE IN SERIOUS CONDITION.

Ethel Clara Le Neve did not appear before Judge Angers. Since her arrest yesterday morning in the stateroom of the Montrose, Crippen's companion has been in a state of collapse. She has eaten nothing and has spent the whole of the time weeping hysterically or sinking into a fitful slumber of exhaustion, only to wake and burst into another paroxysm of tears. The condition of the girl is somewhat serious. It was stated at the Provincial buildings, where she is incarcerated, that Miss Le Neve was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. Three cables have been received from her father and mother and the authorities have consented to permit her to read them. They contain messages of comfort and cheer. The feeling is growing in Quebec that the young woman was completely under the spell of Crippen, and while it is yet too soon to say whether she was aware or not of the crime when she left London with the man, there is a strong undercurrent of sympathy for the girl, who, in spite of her 27 years, is really a child in manner.

SAYS HE IS A SURGEON. Crippen has recovered from the reaction which set in when he was brought face to face with Inspector Dew in the cabin of the captain of the Montrose. All the way up from Father Point to Quebec he lay on the lounge holding in his manacled hands a copy of "A Business Man's Letters to His Son." He asked also for magazines and disposed of a bottle of beer with evident relish. He never spoke to Detective Denis, who was guarding him, and there was almost a spirit of latent bravado about the man who a few hours before had cringed like a whipped dog before the men from Scotland Yard as the handcuffs slipped on his wrists.

Crippen told the magistrate that he was an American citizen, born in the State of Michigan; that he had been admitted to practice as a surgeon after having obtained a diploma from the Medical College of Cleveland, Ohio, and that he was 43 years old.

CRIPPEN CALM AND UNCONCERNED. At 11:20 Crippen left the provincial buildings in a cab with Inspector Dew and Detectives McCarthy and Denis. He appeared to be quite cool and collected, but he grew pale when he saw the crowds which thronged the outside of the court house. He was literally rushed through the jam of people into the magistrate's room, but even then the door could not be shut, so great was the pressure of those outside. He regained his calm, however, when Judge Angers asked and answered the questions put to him clearly and distinctly. A night's beard did not improve his appearance, and he was wearing the same brown suit in which he boarded the Montrose at Antwerp.

The proceedings were brief. Judge Angers asked the prisoner if he was Crippen and the reply was in the affirmative. Do you know what you are here for?—Yes. Do you acknowledge that the lady who came with you is Miss Le Neve?—Yes.

It is proposed to extradite you to England. Do you wish to fight the extradition proceedings?—No. Crippen admitted he was an American, born in Michigan. He was a Roman Catholic.

Are you ready to go back to England with Inspector Dew?—Yes, or with any other qualified officer.

This ended the formal proceedings and Crippen was remanded to jail for 15 days. It is understood that Scotland Yard asked for this remand in order to get the proper forms and brought to Canada for service, to ensure that Crippen will not slip through their hands by reason of a technicality.

Crippen's manner to-day did not leave the impression that he has yet realized his serious position. There was a tinge of bravado about it. With his remand he will disappear temporarily from the scene and interest will now centre in the proceedings for his return to London to face the ordeal which awaits him.

NO HURRY. All Formalities of Canadian Extradition Law to be Complied With.

London, Aug. 1.—With a view to preventing the remote possibility of the escape of Dr. Crippen and Miss Le Neve through a technicality, Scotland Yard to-day decided, upon the advice of the Attorney-General, that so far as they have control in the matter, all formalities involved in the extradition laws of Canada shall be complied with in the case of the prisoners under arrest at Quebec.

Accordingly, Inspector Dew was instructed to ask simply that the Canadian court remand the accused until the arrival from London of a formal application for their extradition to England, with evidence supporting the request.

Sergt. Mitchell, who assisted Dew in the preliminary investigation, will leave for Canada as soon as the necessary papers are ready, which will be either on Wednesday or Thursday of the present week.

The evidence to be submitted to the Canadian authorities will include that taken at the inquest over the mutilated body unearthed in the Crippen cellar. This will be supported by more detailed depositions of the witnesses who were examined at the inquest and all of the additional testimony gathered by the police. It may probably include the preliminary report of Prof. Pepper, who made the analytical examination of the body.

Prof. Pepper is now preparing his conclusion, which, it is said, will establish the sex of the victim, a point upon which the physicians were unable to swear at the inquest.

"So far as we are concerned," said Supt. Froest, of Scotland Yard, to-day, "we are satisfied that we have got the most complete chain of evidence. Still, we are busy picking up the threads, but the evidence already in our hands is believed by the law officers of the Crown to be quite sufficient to convict." Supt. Froest added that any stories that Dew had or would subject the fugitives to a "third degree" grilling must not be believed. The inspector, he said, was too careful an officer, and knew that any evidence obtained in such a way would upset completely the case in the English courts. Dew's own evidence was sufficient, Froest said, to justify Canada in holding the prisoners until Mitchell arrives.

In the meantime Scotland Yard does not expect anything from Dew, but will keep him informed of developments there. If the wishes of the police respecting the formalities of extradition are complied with the case is not likely to be opened in the city until September.

GLAD SHE IS ALIVE. Miss Le Neve's Parents Not Worrying Over Her Arrest.

London, Aug. 1.—Walter Le Neve, the father of Ethel Le Neve, who was arrested with Dr. Crippen on the steamship Montrose yesterday, was interviewed by a correspondent to-day. Mr. Le Neve said: "Thank God that she is in safe custody out of the reach of that man, I have been almost overcome with anxiety for the past week or two as to the uncertainty of her fate. I have felt that my daughter might have been treated in a manner similar to the other woman. The horror of the thought was almost more than I could bear."

Continuing, Mr. Le Neve said: "I am convinced that my daughter was ignorant of the murder. She was never nervous at being left alone in the Hill-drop Crescent residence of Dr. Crippen. When her little brother stayed there with her they played hide-and-seek all over the house, even in the cellar, where the mutilated body of the supposed Belle Elmore was found."

THE MOTHER TAKES. Mrs. Le Neve, crying said: "I cannot say how glad I am at last to know where my girl is. The suspense has been awful, almost more than I could bear. My only hope now is that she will tell everything she knows. He must have a terrible influence over her, but perhaps when she knows what he is accused of she will come to her senses. Nothing can make me believe she would have anything to do with the crime. When I look back twelve years to the days of Ethel's early childhood," said Mrs. Le Neve, "sadness for her position becomes intensified. From earliest childhood she displayed fondness for pretty things, and I am afraid that love for nice things gave her just a trace of selfishness. Ethel had little vanity. She hated to carry even the smallest parcels in the streets. The last time she was here she insisted that her little brother should bring to Hill-drop Crescent some uniforms I gave her. Ethel always wore her heart on her sleeve. I am convinced that Crippen hypnotized her. During the past year I haven't seen much of her. How sorry I am that I didn't watch her more carefully."

BELLE ELMORE'S STEPFATHER. New York, Aug. 1.—News of the arrest of Dr. Crippen and his companion, Ethel Le Neve, pleased nobody more to-day than Frederick Mersinger, the stepfather of Belle Elmore, Crippen's missing wife.

"I have not seen Dr. Crippen for years," he said, "but I would know him the instant I set eyes on him. When he married Cora (Belle Elmore's name at home) she was nineteen years old. Two years later they came to live with me in this house. Business had been against the doctor, and it was later his wife's ability that pushed him ahead again. The couple never had any children, but I think they were happy until that other woman came into their lives."

"It was through my efforts to obtain a death certificate on which to collect a little insurance that I held on Cora's life that the investigation was brought about which ended in the arrest on board the Montrose."

VICTIMS' HALF SISTERS. Newport, R.I., Aug. 1.—Not until this morning did Mrs. Robert H. Mills learn of the positive capture of her brother-in-law, Dr. Crippen, and his typical Miss Le Neve, on board the steamship Montrose bound for Quebec.

Mrs. Mills stated that her worry was over now that the couple were caught, and she hopes to go to Canada to see Dr. Crippen before he is taken back to England.

"I am overjoyed over the capture of Dr. Crippen, and I expect to go to England when he is arraigned on the charge of killing my half sister, Belle Elmore."

"The English police have asked me to come over and to expect to do so with my sister, Mrs. Terese Hann, at 49 Locust avenue, Brooklyn, has been made so ill over this affair she will be unable to go to England as she had hoped to do."

LESE MAJESTE. Lovers in Austria Indignant at New Rule of Law Courts.

Vienna, Aug. 2.—A decision of the courts at Trieste is causing great indignation among young people in Austria.

Henceforth lovers will be liable to a summons for less majeste if they take the official position of a card or a letter to indicate their sentiment. To stick a postage stamp at a certain angle to express "undying love," "disappointment," "tender memories," and so forth is decidedly a mark of disrespect to the sovereign, say the courts.

The sender of a postcard at Cattaro who had used the emperor's effigy to tell his sweetheart that he would love her always has been condemned and fined for the offence.

FIFTEEN DROWNED. Munich, Aug. 2.—Nine young men and six girls were drowned in the lake of Traun by the capsizing of a barge in storm yesterday. Four of their companions were saved by fishermen.

SPAIN AND THE VATICAN

Agreement Between Government and His Holiness.

Press Makes Denial of Insinuation.

Foreign Affairs and Merry Del. Vas Disagree.

Madrid, Aug. 2.—The Liberal press of the nation, which has demanded the fulfilment of the bill prohibiting further orders until the concordat is revised, and also points out that in question did not violate the concordat which recognizes only the papal orders, says Pope Pius X., saying what will be replied in the advice of two Spanish bishops.

INSURER GIVES VIEWS. Madrid, Aug. 2.—Garcia Pardo, minister of Foreign Affairs, in an interview to-day in which he related the negotiations between the Vatican, denied that the government had adopted a conciliatory attitude.

The government asked only two things, the suppression of the all monasteries which entered Spain, and, second, that the pope should authorize the bishops to transform the established monasteries, to the aid of the State's institutions.

Senor Pardo declared that Cardinal Merry del Val, the Papal Secretary of State, had adopted dilatory tactics from the beginning, that the speech from the throne contained points against the concordat.

"We pressed our good faith and desire for an agreement," said the minister, "but we enforced the decree against which neither Curia nor pope has protested. Cardinal Merry del Val has said that the decree is not a violation of the concordat, although the Vatican has said that it is granted unconditionally without the sanction of the Spanish Government."

The demand of the Vatican for the withdrawal of the bill permitting the organization to display the papal worship was denied. Merry del Val continued: "The cardinal of Madrid, our ambassador in the Vatican, was in full possession of his faculties when he signed the concordat, and he is in a position to admit the invalidity of the concordat or accept an agreement."

SAD AFFAIR.

Lea Tries Twice to Commit Suicide in Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 2.—Despondent because he had taken drink for the first time in his life and had been robbed of all his money, Edward Matthews, aged 29 years, of Toronto, attempted last night to commit suicide by jumping into an excavation in front of Kinross' drug store, and was rescued by the police. He then jumped on the street car track on Grand street, near Fort street, and was rescued.

OFFICER KILLED.

Widow Shot Near Esquimault by An Insane Soldier.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 1.—Capt. Peter Elliott, commanding No. 5 Company, Royal Canadian Garrison Artillery, was murdered this morning at Esquimault Barracks by Gunner Albert Barr, of No. 5 Company, who shot through the throat from the chest the second story of No. 2 block. Capt. Elliott was in the act of crossing the barracks yard.

FIREMAN'S BUSY DAY. Detroit, Mich., Aug. 1.—Det. S. Ducharme, a former fireman, after killing one city fireman, wounded a second, and wounded a third, near a fire from which he had sent in an alarm, in an effort for revenge. He went to his home and wife and children to death. He then made his escape.

DOMINICK'S ODD DEATH. Detroit, Mich., Aug. 1.—Death of Dominick Finson, an Italian, to-day. The man who was laborer in the quarry of the Quarry Company, was working in the quarry when a stone was dislodged. It fell to the bottom of the quarry, and rebounding, struck him on the leg. He was hurled to the ground by the force of the impact, and his neck was broken in the fall.

FIREMEN'S CONVENTION. Toronto, Ont., Aug. 1.—The 11th annual convention of the Volunteer Firemen's Association of Ontario opened at the Town Hall yesterday afternoon, prophesied some time ago. It is by far the largest in the history of the association. Eight new companies were admitted on the opening day.

Wm. Birrell, of Hamilton, the president, and R. Blair, Hamilton, were present to-night. There will be fireworks by Hand, of Hamilton.
