An Honest Expression. A Credit to Canada.

A marked feature of Dundalk fair was the absence of intoxicated persons either at the grounds, on the streets or about the hotels. There was no fighting, not even harsh words anywhere. The constables' duties were exceedingly light, and the big crowd went home sober and happy. This is a condition which is certainly very satisfactory to everyone.—Dundalk Herald.

(Sorry to say we cannot say so much for Markdale. The evenings of the fair, the horse races, and also of Thanksgiving were record occasions for drunkenness in our village, and the great majority of our ratepayers now agree that it's time for a change.—Standard.)

Canada can boast of many great enterprises but the one in particular that all Canada is proud of is that great weekly printed in Montreal, The Family Herald and Weekly Star with its 28 and 32 pages every week of the best reading matter, it certainly is a big dollar's worth, and then again every subscriber for 1911 has an opportunity to win a free trip to the Old Country next June. Anyone who is not already a reader of that great weekly should lose no time in sending in an order. The price is only one dollar.

A dollar in your hand is worth a thousand in the hands of your ex-teutors.

Since the 8-hour law became effective, and since the Wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country there is a great shortage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from £20 to $90 per month with good chance of advancement. The National Telegraph Institute operates six official institutes in America, under supervision of R.R. and Wireless Officials, and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write them for full details at Cincinnati, O., or Philadelphia, Pa.

HEROES REWARDED.

An interesting event took place in Durham Baptist Church on Monday night last when James Erwin was presented with a medal from the Royal Canadian Humane Society and Joe Whitchurch and Bryson Morlock with watches for saving little Eddie Hildebrandt from drowning last May. The little fellow was fishing in McKechnie's dam when he slipped into the deep water. He was accompanied at the time, says the Chronicle, by Joe Whitchurch and Bryson Morlock, two other little lads about his own age; and seeing the danger their little comrade was in, they exercised great presence of mind first running for assistance, and soon Adam Robertson and James Erwin, both employees in the mill, were notified, and lost no time in hastening to the scene. Erwin got there first, and although he could not swim, he plunged into the water and rescued the boy just in time to save his life, though several days elapsed before he was fully recovered.

Mr. Sparling was an official in the Methodist church, Ebenezer appointment, and for quarter of a century superintendent of the Sunday School. The following excerpt from the letter of a wholesale carriage Hardware, with whom he had business relations for many years is but a sample of those he has been receiving on going out of business: "We are very sorry that this winds up our business dealings, as the trade which you have turned our way has been very much appreciated, and we can truly say that the account has been very satisfactory in every respect. It has been one of the cleanest we have on our books."

Mr. Sparling and family have the best wishes of the Standard in their new home.
