HER SKIN SEEMED ON FIRE

Every Other Treatment Failed But "Fruit-a-tives" Cures

GRANDE LIGNE, QUE., Jan. 2nd, 1910. "My wife was greatly distressed for three years with chronic Eczema on the hands, and the disease was so severe that it almost prevented her from using her hands. The doctor gave her several ointments to use, but none of them did any good. He also advised her to wear rubber gloves and she wore out three pairs without getting any benefit. As a list resort, I persuaded her to try "Fruit-a-tives", and the effect was marvellous. Not only did "Fruit-atives" entirely cure the Eczema, but the Asthma, which she suffered from, was also completely cured.

We both attribute our present good health to "Fruit-a-tives". N. JOUBERT. "Fruit-a-tives" will always cure Eczema or Salt Rheum because "Fruita-tives" purifies the blood, corrects the Indigestion and Constipation, and tones up the Nervous System.

INSECT SENSE OF SMELL Ants Are Said to Recognize Their Different Species By Odor. Students of the behavior of ante are well aware of the fact that they will not tolerate strange ants in their nests. If a foreign, even though of the same species and indistinguish able to human eyes from the lawful inhabitants of the nest, strays in from another nest she is apt to emerge hastily, pursued and attacked by the ants which belong there. How do they know that she is a foreigner? It does not seem likely that among the thousands of ants belonging to the nest another ant of exactly the same species should be recognized as a stranger by her appearance. The English | naturalist Lord, Avebury in his book on "Ants, Bees and Wasps" records some experiments to test the possibility that ants may recognize heir nest mates through some move-ment of the feelers or antennae, with which they sometimes seem to gree each other when they meet. He stupefied with alcohol ants from one of the nests. The ants from that nest came out and carried their helpless nest mates home, but threw the bodies of their enemies away. Eviriend and foe were distinby something other than their ehavior. A German physiologist, Bethe, solv ed the problem in the following way: He suspected that ants from a foreign nest might have an odor that excited the warlike instincts of anta the home nest. Accordingly he ook a number of ants from one nest, killed them and crushed their bodies so that the body fluids were pressed cut. Taking some live ants from a second nest, he first dipped them in water and a cohol and then into the body fluids of the other ants. He theu returned them to their own nest. Their est mates fell upon them as if they were driven out and in some instances

On the other hand, Bethe found that the foreign nest, the odor of they now presumably bore would receive peaceably the ants which had undergone the transforming treatment.

Other observers have confirmed these results of Bethe's for many species of ants. The truth, then, seems to be that any ant odor differing from heir own puts the ants into a war-

It is true that this explanation requires one to suppose that a different odor belongs to every ant nest, and this seems hard to believe, yet nothing else appears to account for the

There are many other remarkable about the sense of small in and it must be remembered that the sense of smell in human beings is ar inferior to that of some animals for example, the dog. Man cannot judge the capacities of other animals in the matter of smell by his own poor performances.

A Costly Grudge. The most expensive act of damage ever committed by a railway worker. on the construction of a tunnel through one of the mountains in the Black Forest Having a grudge against his foreman, he succeeded one night in altering the position of the stakes which marked the course of the work. The excavators were working upon the tunnel in two sections, one from the north and one from the south. Owing to the shifting of the stakes the sections instead of being directed to the same point were found to be twenty-six feet apart when they reached the middle of the mountain. The northern half of the tunnel had there-

Retold Stories.

The girl was telling the man anecdote, and a queer look passed () his face. The girl stopped, embarrassd. "I am afraid I have told y this story before," she stammered "Yes, you have," the man admie dfrankly, "but don't worry. It is n't half so bad as what happened me yesterday. A man told me a story that I had originally told him. Worse yet, he got all mixed on it, lost the point entirely and then expected me o laugh at it." "And you couldn't?"

"Oh, yes, I could, but not the war " thought."

Prepared For the Worst. "Out in the cyclone district," cor-

Two Flowers

The dahlia was named after Amdrew Dahl, a Danish botanist, who was a pupil of Linnaeus. The flower is a native of Mexico, but was first cultivated in Europe by Dahl. It was taken to England about 1804. The word daisy is a corruption of "day" a eye," as the pretty flower used to be called, The old English form was "daye-sye."
