The market for municipal bonds has been pretty quiet during the pass few months. Prices have declined and the amount of business has slackened, all because of the fact that the London market is not in a recentive mood. The reasons for London's bresent attitude are several. First, of course, comes the uncasiness in the political situation; then the same feeling prespecting the foreign outuation. The trapiculous amount of issues of recent years has too caused a glut in the market. And, finally there is always necessary a period of satisfying that has offered for a long time past, and is now quietly enjoying a reat, while the process of assimilation proceeds.

In Canada there is no great slackening in the demands for numricipals, although the green of course, quiet spells. The quie ness in Englant has resulted in a lowering of prices in many cases, and consequently there are many municipal bonds on the market at present selling considerably below the prices of even average. It is quite possible that if the London market remains quiet that if the long that the long that if the long that it is the long that if the long that if the long that it is the long that the long that it is the long that it is the long that the long that it is the long that the lon considerably below the prices of even a vear ago. It is quite possible that if the Loudon market remains quiet for a long period, these prices have shade a bit further. Happilly, however, the probability of a long period of quiet in England is not likely, and as a natural corollary prices are not likely to depress further. Probably after a period of quietness the prices will begin to apply unward for there is observable at present a tendency for makey to cheapen and with cheaper was done, buildings and bridges

Mr. Fleming has had reverses; he intrices them by his energy and his daring. He was caught financially in the land bloom in the ninetics, and he has suffered defeat at the rolls. But he has a philopolical temperament. The sears of the land smash are now being wined our, for his salary is said to be in the neighborhood of $20,000 a year, with an occasional, $10,000 bonus thrown in.

If however, he is a specialtor he can be shown shares, and stand a fair chame of making a profit if he uses discretion and does not buy on margin. At the present time, though I do not think shares a wise him to buy. Most of them are pretty high, means a good chance for a fall.
