Are Not Playmates, Because Their Mothers Do Not Agree.

Considering the fact that Princesses Victoria and Helen of Teck, the daughters of the Duke of Teck. Queen Mary's eldest brother, are about the same age as Princes Mary, it is curious that she should not find in them the playmates she has so often longed for, and that it has been necessary to find companions for her in the daughters of Lord Salisbury and the Duke. Devonshire, writes a London co

The real reason for this is found n a series of disagreements which has grown up in the Teck familyin the old White Lodge days, surely the most united family to be found anywhere. The original cause of the trouble is the Duke of Teck wife, formerly Lady Margaret Gro venor, daughter of the late Duk of Westminster. The Queen's favorite brother is Prince Alexander known among his pals as Prince Algy," and the-as the Duches considered - undue prominence given to him, made her Highness iealous. This, of course, caused ill feeling between the two brothers and did not improve matters be tween the royal house and the Tecks; eventually it reached the "little pitchers," who, never very congenial to their shy little cousin, formed an alliance against he which the parents have been unable to break.
