CHAPTER XVI.
The guests had been up, and the decorations had been going on since long before the light of Leighton Hall on this morning. The hall was a scene of gold and silver, of red and blue, of green and white, of purple and yellow, of every color that the rainbow could show. The guests were all dressed in their best, and the atmosphere was one of high spirits and good cheer.

The window of the hall was open, and the fresh air of the morning was blowing in. The guests were all looking out at the garden, which was in full bloom. The flowers were all in their glory, and the air was filled with their sweet fragrance.

Percey Granville was rather late in arriving. He had been out for a walk in the garden, and had seen some very beautiful flowers. He was looking at them when he saw a young girl standing in the garden. She was looking at him with a curious expression, and he was looking at her with a curious expression.

Winter Puddings for Children.

Contrary to popular belief, sweet puddings, although heat-giving and nourishing, are not good for young children, who find them difficult of digestion. By substituting vegetable butter or nut lard for suet, and following the recipes given below, delicious puddings may be placed before the little ones, nourishing them as well as pleasing their palates.

Feather Pudding.—Mix together 6 ounces of flour, 3 ounces of granulated sugar, and 3 ounces of vegetable butter or nut lard. Add a teaspoonful of baking powder, a pinch of salt, and a pinch of nutmeg. Rub together the flour, sugar, and butter, and add the baking powder and salt. Add the nutmeg and mix well. Add 1/2 pint of milk and 1/2 pint of water, and mix well. Cook in a greased pudding basin for 1 1/2 hours.

Apple Pudding.—Mix together 6 ounces of flour, 3 ounces of granulated sugar, and 3 ounces of vegetable butter or nut lard. Add a teaspoonful of baking powder, a pinch of salt, and a pinch of nutmeg. Rub together the flour, sugar, and butter, and add the baking powder and salt. Add the nutmeg and mix well. Add 1/2 pint of milk and 1/2 pint of water, and mix well. Cook in a greased pudding basin for 1 1/2 hours.

RED FLAG IN THE LORDS.
The House of Lords has undergone many shocks of late, and nervous peers are anxiously inquiring: "Where's it all going to end?" The Hon. Charles Lister, heir of Lord Ribblesdale, is a Socialist, and so also is the Countess of Warwick. Not long ago the Duchess of Devonshire confessed to a Socialism, and now Earl Russell has joined the Fabians.

Earl Russell is not a sentimental youth who has been seized with a sudden fit of Socialism. He is 47 years of age, and has been a member of the House of Commons for 24 years. He has succeeded his grandfather, the great Lord John Russell, so that he has been in the peer business for quite a long time. He is related to both Lord Ribblesdale and the Stansfelds of Alderley, and is a member of the great house of Bedford.

In the time Earl Russell has played many parts. He has served in the army, and has been a barrister, and has a proof of literary abilities. He has served on the London County Council and is credited with the responsibility for some of the most advanced proposals made by the recent Divorce Commission.

Earl Russell has declared himself in favor of the nationalization of the army, and has been a member of the House of Commons for 24 years. Useful Hints.
Clothes will not freeze fast to the line if a cloth is dipped in salt water and rubbed over the line when the clothes are ready to hang up.

If there is too much blurring in the rising water, all bad effects can be avoided by adding three or four tablespoonfuls of household ammonia.

To wind a curtain, remove it from the brackets, wind it up by hand and then put it into the brackets, and pull it out full length. Repeat if necessary.

Towels should not be put in the guest-room when they are damp. Use them until they have been laundered several times and lose their stiffness.

When using oil for frying the oily taste can be taken away by making the oil very hot, and then fry a piece of onion in it. When brown, take it out.

When the vinegar cruet has become clouded, clean it by putting a teaspoonful of lye in it; let this remain for a few days; then wash out. It will be perfectly clean.

Two Spinach Dishes.
Spinach Soup.—Wash the spinach well in three or four waters and cook it in as little water as would keep it from burning, stirring it constantly. Boil from 10 to 15 minutes, according to its age. Drain it and take five or six tablespoonfuls for the soup. Slice one large onion, dip it in boiling salted water, drain it and fry in one heaping tablespoonful of butter to a light brown. Rub one quart of milk with one dozen whole white peppers and add the onion. Simmer it gently for half an hour, strain out the onion and whole peppers and add the prepared spinach. Mix all smoothly and boil up thickening it, if necessary, with butter and flour worked together. Serve with croutons of fried bread.

Spinach Pudding.—Three or four rolls are soaked in water or milk, and when soft pressed and rubbed through a sieve; add one chopped and prowned onion, four heaping tablespoonfuls of cooked spinach, four yolks of eggs, seasoning of salt and grated nutmeg. When everything has been well mixed the stiff beaten whites are folded in. Butter a mold, sprinkle with fine breadcrumbs, fill with the mixture, cover with a buttered paper and steam for two hours. When cooked the mixture is turned out of the
