

For Weal or for Woe;

Or, A Dark Temptation

CHAPTER XXV. (Cont'd.) Evelyn pretended to demur a little, but she was really pleased to see the strange glances which she cast upon her. "What is the matter with you?" she asked, looking at her with a look of inquiry. "I am not at all surprised," she said, "that you should be so interested in me. I am a very interesting person, and you will find me so."

A GOOD HABIT Tea when you are tired, particularly if it's LIPTON'S TEA Goes farthest for the money

LIPTON'S TEA Goes farthest for the money. A good habit to get into is to drink a cup of Lipton's Tea when you are tired, particularly if it is a hot day. Lipton's Tea is the best for the money, and it is the best for the health.

A CRIMEAN VETERAN Sir Evelyn Wood has just celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday. Despite his advanced age he is full of vigor, and is only troubled with a slight deafness. He is a regular soldier of the Crimean War, and has been in the service of the British Army for over forty years.

Sir Evelyn Wood.

Lord Raglan. While carrying a leading ladder to the Redan, he was severely wounded, and it was thought that his career was finished. However, he made an excellent recovery, and at the conclusion of the Crimean War entered the service of the British Army.

Will Tetterton on Man's Arm. The will found in a scapular which came prominently before Dumfries (Southland) is one of many that have been discovered in unbroken places. Even Mr. Belder Haggard's story of the will found in a woman's back is not proved in the case in the present case.

Disconcerting. "This high cost of living is a serious question," bawled the campaign orator. "It is a great question, a very serious question indeed." "We know it's a question," yelled a course man in the audience. "What's the answer?"

HOME Carpet Wisdom.

"In the spring the housewife's fancy lightly (D) turns to thoughts of carpets." Quite right, too, for the amount of dust and dirt, which even well-swept carpets will retain is marvellous. As a matter of health alone, they must come up for beating and cleaning. Dust is but dried mud, and what it might contain is best not thought about. This article is to help those who have not a vacuum cleaner, and have to seek the privacy or publicity of the back premises for carpet-beating.

Hints for the Home. Stamps which have become stuck together may be separated by passing a hot iron across their faces. After wringing clothes get a piece of old blanket and imagine it into three times. This will dry the collars and save them. Beat the carpet on the grass first. Then pull it away and brush the dirt from the grass or you will re-colour some of it.

Do a lot at a time like this, going round and round until finished. Now, taking a load of the brush handle rather low, walk backward and brush vigorously from left to right. The different angle of attack moves a lot of dust, and you get a stronger purchase on the bristles. Turn the carpet over again, beat the under side, and again beat. Reverse, brush, and beat the upper side. Do this systematically, so that the whole surface receives attention. Brush once more, and then test for dust. A little more rise for hand-beating never quite removes it all.

Now temporarily relax the carpet so that all spots and marks may be removed. Go carefully over the whole carpet with a hot iron and brown paper. This will remove grease spots, visible and invisible. If any remain not absorbed by the brown paper, scrub a little water leaving it there until dry, then brushing off. The dark will soon disappear.

For the Cook. Apparagus Salad—Arrange the cleaned apparagus tips on lettuce leaves on a dress and serve with French dressing with two tablespoons of tomato catsup.

The Word Was Coined in the Town of Preston, England.

The quaint sayings of "Dicky" Turner, one of the earliest advocates of temperance in rural England, are still remembered in the town of Preston, where the reformer began his attacks on the drinking habits of his fellow townsmen. "The Manchester and Glasgow Road," Mr. Charles G. Harper describes the work of this interesting man.

Salmon Croquettes—Take equal quantities of cold or hot boiled rice and capered salmon, add a little melted butter and salt and pepper shaped into balls and roll them first in beaten egg yolk and again in cracker crumbs. Fry in hot fat like doughnuts. A palatable nutritious food, easily prepared, and much liked by the young. The fish can also be baked as a soufflé.

Social Uplift. "Has Maud succeeded in getting into society yet?" "No, but she's rising in the social scale. She's been subbed by a better class of people this year than last."

She—It seems strange that you did not remember my face and yet (awkwardly)—Well, you know, you have an attractive sort of nose.

Half the Children Go to School on a Breakfast of Tea. A very painful and irritable condition of the bowels, which is often mistaken for the ordinary diarrhoea, is caused by the use of tea. The bowels are so irritated that the patient is unable to retain any food, and the result is a state of extreme weakness and emaciation.

When washing new milk to prevent a skin from forming on the top of the milk, add two tablespoons of cold milk to every pint when at boiling point, and stir for a minute. The so-called skin will then be re-absorbed, and the milk will not be so impoverished.

Black Cock Bird. A witness from the island of Rona, (Skye), which rarely visits, told of a black cock which had been seen on the island. The bird was described as being the size of a woman suffering from "Black Cock" disease, and was said to be very tame.

It is in such a field of faith that the "silly" practitioner of his art, with the greatest danger of where he is most in debt, is in cases of that kind. One doctor pointed out to me a case of a child, and at the age of months they are supposed to take porridge and milk of their mother's milk, and their mother's milk is not good, and they are not getting on.

The good old proverb (a doctor) has fallen for estate and the fact is stated in its place. 50 per cent. of the population of the United Kingdom are usually long-lived, and the fact is stated in its place.

There was no reference to tea, as is often supposed, nor was the word the result of a stuttering attempt at the word "total." For Turner was not a stammerer. He was a ready coiner of words upon any emergency, and often perpetrated what in an Irishman would be called "halfing."
