THE MARKDALE STANDARD

THURSDAY, JUNE 5th, 1913.

A Landmark Disappearing

With the selling out of the firm of McFarland & Company, one of the landmarks of Markdale is passing out of existence.

McFarland & Co.'s store was the first place of business established on the spot where Markdale now stands. It started away back in 1862 — sixty one years ago—when this vicinity was a deep, dark wilderness, and it has grown from a little shack to one of the finest department stores outside the cities.

For the first fifty years of its existence it was conducted by Mr. W. J. McFarland, who is still hale and hearty, and who with his old time energy and business acumen is assisting in the sale which is now in progress.

Markdale citizens regret the circumstances which make it imperative for the disposal of this old-established business. Owing to failing health, Mr. W. L. McFarland has found himself obliged to relinquish the duties devolving upon him in the managership of this large store, and must find other occupations, possibly in another clime.

It is therefore with some feeling that in their announcement, Mr. McFarland expresses himself as follows:

> No one can regret so much as ourselves the closing out of this business which started away back in 1862.
>
> It means to us not only a big loss financially, but the breaking of innumerable ties of friendship and of home.
> However, health is a supreme thing. And we are assured we can obtain it only in other occupations. This, and this only, is our reason for selling out.

It is the earnest hope of Mr. McFarland's many friends in Markdale and elsewhere that, he will secure the benefit he is seeking at so much sacrifice.

New System of Buying Market Eggs

On Monday morning, June 2nd, an important change went into effect in Ontario in regard to the buying and selling of eggs. All the large dealers have agreed to buy eggs only on the "loss off" plan. This means that instead of paying for all eggs, good and bad, as in the past, the dealers will cull out the bad ones, and pay only for those that are fresh and fit for use.

If the big dealers follow this plan the local buyers will have to follow it, too. They cannot afford to buy bad eggs which they cannot sell.

It is expected that the adoption of this plan will result in all-round benefit, as it will enable higher prices to be paid to the producers whose goods are fresh and fit, and it will give the consumer either cheaper eggs or better value for his money. The dealers did not bear the losses entailed by the case-count system followed until now. Knowing that there would be a high percentage of useless eggs in what they purchased, they paid less than good eggs were worth, and the consumer had to pay more than good eggs were worth because he had to help bear the loss on those that were valueless.

The bad egg is to be outlawed. It is of no use to anybody. The village merchant has always found it difficult, if not impossible, to reject the henfruit brought to him by customers even when he knew that it was stale. He figured that if he refused to buy his rival across the street would. Now, if a merchant buys worthless eggs he will sustain a dead loss, and if his rival does it he will not long remain a rival.

It is expected that the egg business will be put on a better footing for producer, dealer, and consumer. Those who keep wild hens and think an egg is an egg as long as the shell holds it together will be compelled to market their eggs fresh or not at all. Those who produce fresh goods will receive better prices and will be encouraged to greater production. In short, the hope is that the whole business will be put on a sane basis.

Cadet System in Schools

There are Canadians who object to the introduction of cadet drill into the schools because they think it develops a spirit of militarism. Experience has proved that this view is incorrect. Boys thoroughly enjoy cadet work without any direct consciousness of its relationship to war. The boy thinks only of the immediate effort, the immediate discipline and the immediate enjoyment, and not of any ultimate and distinct possibility. This well-known psychological principle has a most important bearing on the whole question of the desirability of introducing cadet work into the schools. The advocates of Cadet System do not wish any change in the law which makes every man between the age of eighteen and forty-five years responsible for the defence of his country. They do, however, regard it as a grievous mistake to make all men within these age limits liable for military service, as the law now does, without providing in some way for their training in order that they may be able to render efficient service without the terrible sacrifice of life that would naturally result from the vain attempts of masses of untrained men to perform the duty required of them. A pamphlet on "Cadet Systems in Schools" forwarded to this office for publication contains 6 merits from a national standpoint, as well as 9 general advantages of cadet training to the cadets themselves.

Maple trees in front of the Brantford Collegiate institute are said to be dying as the result of injury caused by electric wires strung near them.

Good Friday

The funeral of the late Mrs. Beer which took place on Wednesday afternoon last was largely attended. The service at the house and church was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Reid, of Heathcote. Mrs Birch, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Robinson, was born near Aurora in the Township of Whitechurch, on Feb. 8th, 1836, being in her 72nd year. She was married to Frederick Birch at Malton on the 24th [illegible], by the Rev. Wm. Ireland. They moved to Euphrasia [illegible] over forty years ago and settled on the farm on which she died, being one of the oldest residents of this vicinity and highly respected by all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance. She and her life partner, who is also left to mourn the loss of a loving wife, endured the hardships and struggles of Pioneer life when this part was a wilderness. As a neighbor she was always willing to do all in her power to help and cheer those in trouble of any kind. She was a useful and earnest member of the New England church and was promoted from her membership to the Other large family of children only four survive, viz: Aaron, Mary and Hannah at home, Mrs. Victor Bowes, of Strathroy. The sad circumstances in connection with the death of her youngest son Fred, about one year and a half ago was a blow from which she never fully recovered. The sincere sympathy of the many friends of the family in this neighborhood are extended to them in their loss. The Lord of our Souls. Thy Sovereign will [illegible]
