Hermit In London.

There was a hermit in the centre of London only a few years ago, according to the London Ohronicle. His hermitage consisted of a cellar the sole vestige of a house in Clare Street pulled down and forgotten by its owners. He lived there for a long time, supported by scraps of food from the tradesme of the neighborhood, and might have lived there longer still if a journalist had not "discovered" him He was interviewed and photographed to death, for the workhouse' authorities, nearly next door, who had hitherto turned la blind eye toward him, were compelled to oust him from his hermitage and make him clean and respectable—a process to which he succumbed.
