> HAGENBECK AND SEA-LION. Pollowed Him About the Grounds Like a Dog.

A sea-lion looks much like a seal, but it is larger, has a longer neck, and holds its head very upright. One of the largest sea-lions ever kept in captivity was once owned by Mr. Carl Hagenbeck, who buys and sells wild animals. It weighed nearly a ton, but it was so goodtempered and amiable that Mr. Hagenbeck's father took, a great liking to it, fed it himself every day, and made a great pet of it. fact, that all the thefts in a dog, stopped when he stopped, and then flopped on again after him n its clumsy way, giving peculiar ttle cries from time to time, as if to ask him to stop, or not to walk

One afternoon, when a good many eople were looking at the sea-lion, Mr. Hagenbeck took some pieces of fish in a basket, and went into the enclosure to feed his pet. A He threw one piece of fish at a time, and the sea-lien caught them in his mouth. Each time he caught a piece of fish he would gulp it down hurriedly, and then give one of his peculiar cries, as if begging for more.
