Welsh Miners' Superstitions. Women, like rabbits, are of ill. omen to the miner. In many places particularly in Wales, if a pitman meets or sees a woman on his way to work, he will turn back; for such an encounter is held to forebode evil not only to the man himself but all his associates. At Oswestry, some years ago, a woman was employed as messenger by one of the collieries, and in the course of her duties met many of the colliers on their way to work. The men immediately told the manager that they could not run the risk of illluck entailed in meeting a woman on the way to the pit, and threatened to strike if she were not dismissed.-London Chronicle.
