In these days of high prices and gasoline, screws and nuts and furniture, machinery, stationery, and in fact, everything that is needed, from the superintendent's office to the workman's hands, it is a matter of some importance to choose a man who is not only a good manager but also a good business man.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON. MAY 3.

Lesson V. The Prodigal Son (Temperance Lesson)—Luke 15. (1-32). Golden Text, Luke 15.18.

Verse 11. And he said—This introduction separates the parable from the two preceding, and we cannot be sure it was spoken on the same occasion. However, that may be, the connection in thought must be recognized by all those who read these parables, and it could not have a more fitting position than the one in which Luke has placed it.

12. The younger... said. Give me the portion of thy substance that falleth to me. The portion of the younger was but half of what the elder received, that is, one-third of the estate, if the father had but two sons (Deut. 21. 17).

13. Not many days after, the younger son, gathered his possessions together. He had already made his plans; now he carried them out. Selling the land and turning everything into money, he takes his leave, apparently not to return.

14. Began to be in want. His living in his "riotous life" were not the kind of friends who would stand by him when his money was gone and he needed assistance.

15. Went and joined himself to one of the citizens of that country. From the luxurious quarters in which he had doubtless lived and entertained, he is thrust out to earn his food as best he may.

16. Husks to eat. The swine did eat the pods of the carob tree, still found in Palestine and other Mediterranean countries.

17. When he came to himself. His dissipation had shut out the thoughts of home. The loss of his money and his social degradation had made him lethargic.

18. Against heaven. That is, against God. The prodigal knew that misconduct toward parents was a sin utterly displeasing to God.

19. Make me as one of thy hired servants. His penitence is real. He asks this as a favor. It is so much better than his present position.

20. He arose. He acts upon his resolution at once. He makes his confession and offers no excuse.

The remainder of the parable should not be overlooked either in private study or in class discussion.

21. Make me as one of thy hired servants. His penitence is real. He asks this as a favor. It is so much better than his present position.

22. The father said to his servants. He speaks no word of reproach to the prodigal. Doubtless he recognizes the fact that the son has seen his own folly and learned his lesson.

23. Bring forth quickly the best robe. A long stately robe worn on ceremonial occasions.

24. Put a ring on his hand. Perhaps a signet ring, which gave the wearer some authority in the house.

25. Shoes on his feet. Sandals, as worn by free men. Slaves went barefoot.

26. Bring the fatted calf. Doubtless one being reserved for an approaching feast. But to the father this occasion is of far greater importance than the feast.

27. The father said to his servants. He speaks no word of reproach to the prodigal. Doubtless he recognizes the fact that the son has seen his own folly and learned his lesson.

28. Against heaven. That is, against God. The prodigal knew that misconduct toward parents was a sin utterly displeasing to God.

29. Make me as one of thy hired servants. His penitence is real. He asks this as a favor. It is so much better than his present position.

30. He arose. He acts upon his resolution at once. He makes his confession and offers no excuse.

31. Make me as one of thy hired servants. His penitence is real. He asks this as a favor. It is so much better than his present position.

32. The father said to his servants. He speaks no word of reproach to the prodigal. Doubtless he recognizes the fact that the son has seen his own folly and learned his lesson.

33. Bring forth quickly the best robe. A long stately robe worn on ceremonial occasions.
