THE MARKDALE STANDARD

WEDNESDAY, MAY 13th, 1914.

Back to the Land.

An encouraging sign this year is noticeable in the falling off in the number of auction sales which are usually very plentiful at this season of the year. The tendency in the cities and larger towns is to get back to the land and no doubt this is having a certain influence on the rural population of Ontario. For a long time there has been a periodical push of the farming community to the west or the larger centres with the result that to-day the rural population of Ontario is very far below that of five or ten years ago. This has resulted in many valuable farms lying idle or only partially worked. This no doubt contributes in no small degree to the present high cost of living, or as someone has perhaps more aptly put it, the cost of high living.

A Good Spring Clean-up Essential

Many towns and cities have inaugurated what is styled a "clean-up day," which is observed each spring. Public attention is called to this day by official proclamation of the mayor, who urges its general observance, and local organizations, including civic clubs, women's societies, schools and churches, take an active part in making the occasion exactly what its name implies, a time to clean up some of the accumulated refuse of winter. This co-operative effort on the part of the majority of citizens to improve conditions about their homes and business places, adds much to the general appearance and healthfulness of the town. It also helps to interest the young people and instil in their minds the value and importance of clean, tidy surroundings. There is a lesson in this custom for rural sections. If observed, it would have the same good effect upon country conditions. A farm clean-up day may be made as productive of desirable results as a clean-up day in town or city. There is plenty of

Work for Express Companies

The successful operation of the parcel post system in Canada should not drive the express companies into bankruptcy. There is still plenty of work left, for them because they offer many advantages to shippers which are not afforded by parcel post, such as personal service, protection in transit, the option of exacting C.O.D. payment from consignees, and the privilege of stopping goods in transit.

The parcel post system, while it competes with the express companies to a certain degree, was principally designed to provide services which express companies cannot give. We need all the transportation systems. But the express companies should remember the warning given to them by the Dominion Railway Commission when it reduced their rates. If the express companies strive to furnish good service, and to make their charges reasonable for this service, they will get plenty of business, rates which should not dishearten their stockholders.

Any municipality in the province may hold its election on New Year's Day if it chooses. Toronto had this privilege, but the Legislature has now passed a bill removing the restrictions and permitting any municipality to change its election date to the first of the year.

Papers contain very many reports of operations for appendicitis, the ailment seeming to be epidemic. If people would observe the old rules for health—keep the bowels moving freely by drinking more water, eating more fruit and less rich cakes and pastry there would be fewer cases for doctors.
