Odds and Ends.
Slow cooking is the best cooking for children's food.
The most economical way of cooking meat is to stew it.
Plenty of time should always be allowed for a child's meal.
Wrap cut bread in waxed paper if you would keep it fresh.
Try scrambling eggs with mixed green peppers for a change.
Keep a pair of ordinary pliers in the kitchen for lifting intensely hot pans.
Keep an egg timer near the telephone to gauge your long-distance calls.
Hang very dusty skirts out on the clothesline in a high wind.
The smoke from burning sugar is one of the very best disinfectants.
To keep a chimney free from soot sprinkle a little saltpeter over the fire occasionally.
To sit ashes without raising dust sprinkle them with water and let them get wet with rain before sifting.

Temperance Workers.
(From The Pioneer.)
One of our subscribers, Mr. J. W. Kerr, of Erin, Ontario, who is one of the splendid band of temperance enthusiasts working to drive the liquor traffic out of this fair Province, sends us the following communication, which we have pleasure in passing on to our readers.

An Irish lad named George Kerr, born on July 12th, 1800, early in his life left his native land for Canada. After a long voyage in a sailing vessel—a voyage which took about thirteen weeks—he settled in Leeds County, near the present village of Greenbush, again finding employment with Mr. Samuel Olds. Going to work in the harvest field, he was offered whiskey, it being the universal custom of that day for farmers to provide their help with strong drink. Young Kerr, however, was a total abstainer and refused to partake. He was assured by his fellow laborers that it would be impossible for him to work in the trying summer of Canada without using intoxicating liquors, but the young man remained firm to his convictions and proved to his companions and to his employer that he could do better work and more of it than those who indulged. His influence was soon felt along total abstinence lines, and his employer, Mr. Samuel Olds, his companion, John Keeler, with himself, drew up a temperance pledge, reading as follows: "We three agree to each other and to our God that we will never have anything to do with liquor in any shape or form—a pledge that all three observed during their lifetime. These men all spent their life near the village of Greenbush.

Mr. Kerr and his wife had six boys and five girls, twenty-seven grand children, and forty great grandchildren. This whole family was trained in temperance principles, and most of those living in the place are active workers in the temperance cause. To Mr. Samuel Olds and his wife, who were pioneers here, were born four children, and thirty great grandchildren. All of these without exception grew up to be temperance workers. John Keeler and his wife had eleven children, fifteen grand children, and ten great grandchildren.
