paid, but you want to make Belgium pay double!

"In spite of a thousand sophistries, you can never bring that into line with your conscience, as sure as it again makes itself heard, now with the conscience of the world.

"And now comes the news that Louvain, wonderful Louvain, has been destroyed, and the people put to the sword or driven out, destroyed by a German army, which should protect culture against Russian barbarism!

"Our dear, good German friends, we weep for the wonderful Louvain, brass, tapestry, sevres china, and we weep for the Belgians, but we weep still more for you. If the Russians in northeast Germany were to revenge town for town, and peasant for peasant, what would you be able to say?

"It all comes from the fact that you, as your Chancellor has admitted, have broken both werd and right. Thus you are come under the ban of the curse which the great schiller threatened. This is the curse of evil deeds, that they continue to beget evil."

MY RIVER.

By Dr. J. L. Hughes, Toronto.

Clear was the spring in the pasture field,
Close to the foot of the tall elm tree,
Source of my river a half yard wide,
Wonderful river it was to me.

Far to the heart of the woods it ran,
Often I followed it there alone,
Daring to go with a throbbing heart
Into the depths of the great unknown.

Barefoot and hatless I worked all day,
Changing its course with my wooden spade;
Building a bridge or a water wheel,
Sailing my ships on the lakes I made.

Mine were great visions of power to plan,
Mine were the joys of achievement too,
Mine were the glories of earth and sky,
Mine was a wonderful world all new.

Back to the farm as a man I went,
River and spring and tall elm had gone;
But all they started to grow in me,
Vision and power, and joy, live on.

A Long Good-By.

"Come on, Bill," whispered the old burglar in disgust. "It's no use wasting time her."

"Don't you think these lovers will get off the steps soon" queried the new burglar.

"No. I just heard him say that was the last kiss. They'll be an hour yet."

His Choice.

First Laborer (gazing into jeweler's window)—How would you like to have your pick amongst that lot, Bill?

Second Laborer—I'd sooner have my shovel.

Never say unkind things about acquaintances and friends. This world wants nothing so much as sunny people, who see the bright side of things, and find something good in others.

"I think, William, I'll ask the new people next door to take dinner with us to-night." "What for?" "Well, the butcher, by mistake, left their meat order here, and it's the only fact."

Lady—Is this a pedigreed dog? Dealer—Pedigreed! Why, if that dog could talk he wouldn't speak to either of us.

Easymark—I've loaned most all my money to my friends that I am in most broke. Owens—Let me make the finishing touch.

they not men who also have fulfilled their duty as you have done yours?" I could say nothing more; my voice broke in my throat. And what answer did I get? "What! They and duty! Swine they are—paid swine! They get money for their dirty jobs! Swine and nothing more!"

I did not say anything more. I simply could not, and felt that one word more might incite the mob to real madness. For some time I remained there staring at the monstrous scene and not knowing if I was really awake or under the clouds of a terrible nightmare. If I only had possessed the physical force of a Hercules I would have beaten back these cowards with one hand and with the other would have brought the invigorating soup to the trembling lips of these exhausted and most miserable of men.

No One Made Protest.

What struck me most was the fact that between these two or three hundred soldiers in front of this martyr pit there was not one human being who tried to put a stop to the hellish scene or who would take the part of the starving "enemies." Not one—nay, not one. I am perfectly aware of the terrible accusation I write down in these words, but I am willing to take the most solemn oath that nothing in my description is untrue, that not one word is exaggerated.

And to allow the German authorities to investigate this matter thoroughly I will give the following nearer details:—The scene I witnessed and tried to describe—for such scenes cannot be pictured in mere words—occurred at the railway station of Landen on Friday, October 9. In the train that arrived there from the direction of Brussels between noon and one o'clock.

After the train started again and some soldiers began speaking to me, as before, I could not give any more answer. I sat silent and stared at nothing, seeing nothing but the monstrous sight of these three miserable English soldiers, lying upon the dirty straw, dazed and almost starved to death, and in front of them this beastly multitude of spitting, swearing and menacing Germans.

Weeps Because of Scene.

Then all of a sudden I began to cry. I could not hold my nerves any longer under control and finally wept like a little child, and at last I gained thereby a crumb of comfort, a grain of solicitude. But I am ill again the moment I think of these Englishmen. It is the worst scene I witnessed yet, and I have been for two continuous months amid the most terrible horrors of this war, amid burned and pillaged villages, amid sacked towns whose inhabitants had lost all hope amid fire and bullets and shrapnel, destruction, devastation and death in its most horrible form.

Before our train had arrived at Landen some German soldiers had told me already that they simply murdered the English wounded that fell into their hands. Some others had denied this, it is true, or at least said that it had not happened in their regiments, but one of them told me that by his company alone no fewer than twenty-six English captives had been mutilated and finally murdered. I would not believe him then, and I actually asked why they made themselves worse than they really were, but after what I had seen at Landen, I—no, I will not draw conclusions. I know that I may not make the whole German army responsible for the beastly conduct of these three hundred monsters who did not possess the semblance of what is known as military honor. I only hope fervently that they may be punished yet.

LIKENESS OF BATTLEFIELDS.

Those of To-day to Those of Napoleonic Wars.

The latest number to hand of the London Times in its quotations from its files of a century ago has the following. The places mentioned as the sphere of operations a year before the Battle of Waterloo show remarkable similarity to the battlefields of the present day.

"Brussels, October 24.—The following is the position of the different corps that formed the army in Belgium: Ostend, Nieuport, Furnes, and Ypres, Menin and Courtrai have numerous garrisons consisting of English and Hanoverian troops. The other places in Flanders as Ghent, Bruges, and Tirlemond are also garrisoned by English and Hanoverian with the addition of Belgium troops. Tourney has a garrison of three English regiments. A corps of the Hanseatic legion, and some squadrons of horse. At Mons and Charleroy are Belgium infantry and Hanoverian dragoons and Hussars. In the villages between these places are cantoned troops of the same description. Namur is wholly garrisoned by Dutch troops. In the Interior the Hussars of Croy are at Ash, and the Belgium Light Horse with a strong division of artillery at Malines. The Congreve Rocket Division is at Vilverden. At Louvain are same battalions of Belgium infantry, and the garrison of Brussels consists of English guards and a corps of Horse Artillery and the Belgium regiment of Carabineers. To these troops must be added the garrison at Antwerp and those which are stationed at Maestricht and along the Maese as far as Namur."

Giving Pa Notice.

"I understand that you have called to ask for my daughter's hand?"

"Oh, no, nothing like that."

"Then——"

"She and I settled all that. What I have called for is to find out what part of the house you are going to turn over to us when we get married?"

WHITE AS A GHOST

Pale or Sallow Cheeks One of the First Signs of Anaemia.

Pale and sallow cheeks, with blanched lips and gums, and dark circles under the eyes, are the first signs that anaemia has begun its deadly progress. This first warning is followed by great weariness and breathlessness after any exertion. You grow melancholy, have frequent headaches, awake in the morning feeling tired. You become morbid and nervous, starting at the slightest noise, and your heart palpitates violently even on going upstairs. Most girls from fourteen to twenty suffer from anaemia. Neglect to supply new blood to the languishing, bloodless body, means a life of misery—indeed it is an open invitation to that most hopeless of all diseases, consumption.

The new, rich blood that cures anaemia and gives new health and strength is readily created by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. That is why these pills have cured more cases of bloodlessness and blood disorders than any other medicine. They have made thousands of girls and women strong, well and rosy, with bright eyes and new energy, just because they nourish the body with new, rich, red blood of health. Here is a typical instance. Miss Laura Dempsey, Auburn, N. Y., says: "For several months I was in a very bad state of health, with many of the symptoms that accompany anaemia. I was pale and bloodless, had terrible headaches, would be breathless at the least exertion. Having tried a number of medicines without relief I naturally became discouraged and began to fear that I was doomed to continued illness. At this stage a friend who had herself been benefitted by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills urged me to try them. I did so and thanks to the pills I am now enjoying the best of health, and feel that I cannot recommend this splendid medicine to highly."

Other weak and ailing girls can also obtain new health and strength through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer, or they will be sent by mail post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

COW-CODE USED BY GERMANS

System Was Used By Scouts to Direct the Armies.

Crude drawings of cows of varying proportions, some in attitudes of defence, belligerency, or in grazing positions, were noticed by French officers during the early days of the campaign on the Aisne. The sketches at first were considered the simple efforts of school children, but the frequency with which this subject appeared on walls, buildings, bridges and in every available place in the departments of Oise and Somme puzzled French officers who conducted a thorough investigation. They are now convinced that the system was used by German scouts to direct the armies that were to follow.

There was a great variety in the sizes of the drawings and in the positions of the heads and other particulars. By comparing notes and dates it was discovered that these crude pictures had a very intimate relation with passing events. Certain categories of the pictures coincided in every case with the same developments in the military operations and continuing their researches, they discovered a perfect system of communication had thus been organized, similar to the system often employed by gypsies and tramps for indicating information to those of their confreres that come after.

The position of the animal's head was made to indicate the direction in which the French troops were to be found, and the size of the animal indicated the importance of the forces. A very small cow meant that the route was not very strongly guarded; a cow in a natural position of defence indicated fortifications in the neighborhood, and the size of the animal indicated the strength of the fortifications. A cow with head raised high indicated that prudence was necessary in exploring the neighborhood before venturing farther.

CRYING CHILDREN

When baby cries it is because he is unwell—not because he is bad-natured as so many imagine. Crying is the way the little one has of telling of his pains and the wise mother can instantly tell what ails her little one simply by his cry. When baby cries a great deal give him Baby's Own Tablets and he will soon be happy again. Concerning the Tablets Mrs. Jas. Gaudreau, Notre Dame des Bois, Que., says: "My baby cried day and night and I was greatly discouraged. I began giving the Tablets and he was soon happy, healthy and fat. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Nova Scotia Case of Interest to All Women

Halifax Sends Out a Message of Help to Many People.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 15.—When interviewed at her home at 194 Argyle St., Mrs. Haverstock was quite willing to talk of her peculiarly unfortunate case. "I was always 'blue' and depressed, felt weak, languid and utterly unfit for any work. My stomach was so disordered that I had no appetite. What I did eat disagreed. I suffered greatly from dizziness and sick headache and feared a nervous breakdown. Upon my druggist's recommendation I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"I felt better at once. Every day I improved. In six weeks I was a well woman, cured completely after different physicians had failed to help me. It is for this reason that I strongly urge sufferers with stomach or digestive troubles to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

Dr. Hamilton's Pills strengthen the stomach, improve digestion, strengthen the nerves and restore debilitated systems to health. By cleansing the blood of long-standing impurities, by bringing the system to a high point of vigor, they effectually chase away weariness, depression and disease. Good for young or old, for men, for women, for children. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

GERMAN MACHINE TOOLS.

British Manufacturers Are After the Trade.

In most of the foreign markets in which Germany does much business in machine-tools the chief attraction is cheapness. This is the case in markets of so diverse a character as Denmark, Russia and the Argentine. In one or two valuable markets, such as Australia and Japan, we have the larger business, but a good deal of the more elementary work can be done on a cheap class of machine, which, if we make it at all, is certainly not properly marketed, or our business would be larger in those countries where cheapness is a prime consideration, says a Scotch paper. We have on other occasions referred to the selling matters and the value of a progressive attitude in this connection. Germany frequently sets about studying a market in a very methodical way, and before attempting to send goods finds out exactly what will suit it. All this costs a considerable amount of money, which must be spent before any returns can be expected. In the end results warrant the trouble. It is announced that a large Commission is shortly leaving the United States for South America for the purpose of studying the markets hitherto supplied from Germany. We ought to take a like step not only in South America but in other countries nearer home. It is essential to success, and whether done by firms individually or in combination, if good is to follow it must be taken.

"Father, don't men call themselves bachelors before they get married?" "Yes, my boy." "And what do they call themselves after, dad?" "Hush! It isn't fit for little boys to know."

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper.

Magic "Nerviline" Ends Stiff Neck, Lumbago

Any Curable Muscular or Joint Pain Is Instantly Relieved by Nerviline.

GET TRIAL BOTTLE TO-DAY.

You don't have to wait all day to get the kink out of a stiff neck if you rub on Nerviline. And you don't need to go around complaining about lumbago any more. You can rub such things away very quickly with Nerviline. It's the grandest liniment, the quickest to penetrate, the speediest to ease muscular pain of any kind.

One twenty-five cent trial bottle of Nerviline will cure any attack of lumbago or lame back. This has been proved a thousand times, just as it was in the case of Mrs. E. J. Graydon of Caledonia, who writes:—"I wouldn't think of going to bed without knowing we had Nerviline in the house. I have used it for twenty odd years and appreciate its value as a family remedy more and more every day. If any of the children gets a stiff neck, Nerviline cures quickly. If it is earache, toothache, cold on the chest, sore throat, Nerviline is always my standby. My husband once cured himself of a frightful attack of lumbago by Nerviline, and for a hundred ailments that turn up in a large family Nerviline is by far the best thing to have about you."

BRITAIN IS MAKING AN ARMY.

Ten Days Drill, Then Weeding Out, and Shooting Practice.

A British officer thus describes the process of building up "Kitchener's army":

The recruit begins with eight hours a day on the parade ground—one before breakfast, three in the forenoon, three after dinner, and one after tea. For the first few weeks the work consists entirely of elementary foot-drill, marching, the handling of the rifle, and, above all, physical training. Ten days of this weed out the unfit and the sluggards, and effect a vast improvement in the demeanor of those fitted to stand the strain. Chests expand, heads come up, shoulders square out, and the bodies move with a rhythm. The shop-walker, the ideal of ease and grace, begins to learn that he can't distinguish his right hand from his left when asked to do so without warning; the man who found the scythe an easy weapon to wield, finds that the simple-looking bayonet is far too much for him; the fluent speaker in the local debating society finds that it is beyond his art to explain how to form fours. But gradually we pull through and pass on to the handling of the rifle as a weapon of war. The air-gun enthusiast starts here full of confidence, until he finds himself placed in the "awkward squad" for further aiming instruction. The man who would be insulted if he were told that he could not tell the time finds that "six o'clock on the bull" takes a lot of finding.

The first essay on the miniature range is also usually something of a disappointment. But careful individual instruction works wonders, and the men are gradually get ready for field training. All this time the work of developing muscles and expanding chests has gone steadily on and the marches have become longer.

The battalion now sings the magic strains of "It's a Long Way to Tipperary," and "Hullo! Who's Your Lady Friend?" as it swings along dusty roads. In fact, the authors and composers of these ballads, aided by the forgotten genius who invented the mouth-organ, have done much to help in the training of our new soldiers. So now off we go in high spirits to spend long hours in an attack on more or less impregnable positions held by imaginary Germans, who are finally driven out at the bayonet's point. As the weeks roll on these practices will be carried out in heavier equipment, and in larger bodies, till finally our New Army is capable of going on manoeuvres and marching all night to attack at dawn, or of digging all night in preparation for the attack which is hourly expected.

By this time the men will have been trained in the use of ball ammunition, of which it is to be hoped the Government will not be niggardly.

An attractive little girl at a party was being questioned about a doll she had just received for her birthday. The mother was beaming with delight at the attention her daughter was receiving, when the little girl said, "Why, do you know, the hair on my doll's head comes off just like mamma's."

Weather Reports Forbidden.

The publication of weather reports has been forbidden by the French government, presumably for military reasons. Heretofore forecasts and meteorological conditions throughout France, in the English channel, southern Europe and the Mediterranean have been published daily. This has afforded course information useful to mariners. It is assumed that the government has in mind the possible use of this information by Germany in both naval and military operations along the western littoral. The part that fogs have played in the Belgian coast battles is recalled in this connection. By order of the government," reads the announcement in the Figaro, "communication of meteorological information is suspended. We are only able therefore to give the temperature of Paris."
