OLDER BUT STRONGER

To be healthy at seventy, prepare at forty. It is good advice, because in the strength of middle life, we too often forget that neglected old age or careless treatment of slight aches and pains, simply undermine strength and bring chronic weakness for later years.

To be stronger when older, keep your blood pure and rich and active, with the strength-building and blood-nourishing properties of Scott's Remulsion which is a good, a tonic and a medicine to keep your blood rich, alleviate rheumatism and avoid sickness. At any drug store.
