HE DIDN'T LIKE DRIPPING.

And No Wonder, After He Had Read About Its Strength.

What is dripping?

Everybody knows that dripping is supposed to be the juices, the savory essences, that run from roasting meats.

That is the supposition. But what, really is dripping the dripping that the poor of England buy by the pound and smear upon their bread in lieu of butter?

The question perhaps will never be answered, but a partial solution is given to it by the fact that a London poorhouse recently bought at $7 a ton thirty-two tons of dripping from a soap works.

Alfred Noyes used to tell a dripping story.

"A little boy," he would begin, "complained bitterly about the bread and dripping that formed his daily breakfast.

"'It'll kill me,' he whined at last. 'I know it'll kill me.'

"'Kill you? What do you mean?'

"'Why, I've been feeling pretty bad lately, and now I know it's all this dripping what's the cause of the trouble. I read it in a book.'

"'Some pure food rubbish, I dare say! And what, precisely, did you read in this vile book, silly?'

"'I read,' whined the urchin, 'that constant dripping wears away a stone.'"—Exchange.

HUMOR OF A CANNIBAL.

He Enjoyed It Himself, but It Didn't Tickle the Victim.

A number of natives came to greet us when we landed at Bau, a Fiji island, among them a few whom the consul seemed to know. They volunteered to act as escorts for us and by various expressions tried to convey the idea that they were glad to see us.

A school forms one side of the square. Across from this stands the council chamber, built on the trench where the bodies were roasted for their former feasts. The old headstone against which Cacobau used to dash the brains of his victims still stands, and the anchor and rudder of a French ship wrecked near Bau lie beside it.

Beneath a picture of Queen Victoria I saw an old sword swinging. I examined it and found it was a French weapon, no doubt the arm of the unfortunate French vessel's commander.

During the time this was going on Jim, Ratu Kadavu's servant, who is a particularly good type of a large, muscular race, approached me, ran his hand around my waist and slowly down my thigh and smacked his lips with a wicked smile. I laughed at this display of aboriginal humor, but not very heartily, for the sword of the French captain still swung before my eyes.—Christian Herald.

Time For the Actor to Stop.

On the subject of playing the same part over an indefinite number of times David Warfield says:

"There is no such thing as playing a part too long. The mellowing process should never cease, but if it does, if spontaneity fails, if the actor feels that he is becoming at all mechanical in the part, he should abandon it at once—for his own salvation.

"The surest danger signal is half hearted applause. From this the actor knows that he has lost an essential quality of the character, and the tragedy of it is he cannot tell what that quality is or how he lost it. An actor may tell a joke a thousand times and provoke laughter, but suddenly it fails of response. That's the time for him to stop."—American Magazine.

A Cure For Mosquitoes.

The people of London have learned of an agreeable way to keep their houses free from flies and mosquitoes. They burn sandalwood, which has a pleasing odor, but one that the summer pests much dislike. The idea comes from the orient, where it has long been practiced.

The sandalwood can be bought at almost any Turkish or Japanese importing house. You prepare it for burning by cutting it into pieces about half an inch thick and three inches long and then bake or dry it in a slow oven for twenty-four hours. You light a piece of the wood and put it in a metal urn or saucer. After it has ignited well blow out the flame and leave the red ember to smolder until the wood is wholly consumed.

Father's Ultimatum.

The father of a large family of children was trying hard to read the evening paper.

"What's that terrible racket in the hall, Martha?"

"One of the children just fell down stairs."

"Well," he replied, turning over another page of the paper, "you tell the children if they can't fall downstairs quietly they'll have to stop it."—Lippincott's.

Showing Him How.

"You young scoundrel!" said the father, seizing his disobedient son by the hand. "I'll show you how to treat your mother!"

And he gave him several bangs on the ears and then shook him until his hair began to fall out.

Her Little Slip.

Departing Guest—We've had a simply delightful time. Hostess—I'm glad! At the same time I regret it the storm kept all our best men away.—Brooklyn Life.

PARISIAN SAGE

PUTS HAIR ON YOUR HEAD AND KEEPS IT THERE

What's the use of being bald? What sense is there in deliberately allowing your hair to turn gray!

Do you want to look old before your time? Give up the thought; old age will come only too soon.

Look after your hair. PARISIAN SAGE will kill the dandruff germs, and is the only preparation, so far as we know, that is guaranteed to do so.

Man or woman, no matter how old you are, PARISIAN SAGE will make you look young.

Come in and get a large bottle to-day, it only costs 50 cents, and your money back if it does not cure dandruff, stop falling hair, or itching of the scalp. It will make your hair luxuriant, lustrous and beautiful, and it is the most refreshing, pleasant and invigorating hair dressing made.

The Orator From Hamilton

VIA NEUVE CHAPELLE

(Telegram)

The greatest ten minutes in the recent local history of platform eloquence was filled with the oration of Lieut. G. R. Fornoret was wounded at Neuve Chapelle, fighting with the Tenth Battalion.

Eloquence speaks in the very presence of the Canadian who has seen his comrades die around him, and who comes back from the valley of the shadow of death to summon his fellow-countrymen to set their feet in the path of duty down which his own feet have travelled. Too many recruiting platforms in this city have served as shrines for the Worship of Cabinet Ministers and other civil dignitaries. Gifts of fluent speech have been honored. The only genuine orators, the speakers the people mainly want to listen to, are the men who have come out of the great tribulation. Lieut Florenet kindled his ten minutes into a flame that swept five thousand Canadians with the fire of sacrifice and the fervor of his sincerity as the wounded soldier cried aloud—

"The Germans have got their bloody hands on the flag and are you going to let them pull it down?"

Encouraging to Hydro Radials.

(Owen Sound Sun.

Ex-Mayor Lemon has called attention to the Sun to the progress made by the Lemon and Port Stanley Railway during the first three months of its operation and he sees in what has been accomplished by that road, bright prospects for the proposed Guelph to Owen Sound line. During the months of July, August, and September, its first quarter, the road has paid its own way and has netted a surplus of about $4000, this in view of the difficulties with which it has had to contend. It has made a success, notwithstanding

(1) that the road has been without the Grand Trunk Coal business and Michigan Central Railway traffic, the withdrawal of which, the people were told, meant utter ruin to the city's project.

(2) that the rate of interest paid is 5.5 per cent. which is one per cent. higher than the rate at which it was estimated money could be secured when figures on electrification were prepared in 1912.

(3) that practically every Railway in Canada and the United States has felt the pinch of stringency and war times in a falling off revenue.

(4) That the London and Port Stanley Railway has taken care of all expenditures, including the payment of taxes to various municipalities along the line.

(5) and that during the first month or more operating charges were several thousands of dollars higher than they would otherwise have been because of the fact that it was found necessary to lease a number of steam locomotives at a high rental.

Mr. Lemon, who is greatly interested in the progress of Hydro radials in Ontario believes that every effort should be made to have the road between here and Guelph built as speedily as possible, as it will mean the opening up of this section of the country to the trade channels to the south of us. "In times of war prepare for peace" Mr. Lemon thinks is a good motto for after this war is over, prosperity is bound to come to Canada and now is the time to get ready for it. What the London and Port Stanley road is doing, the Guelph and Owen Sound road can do, if only the municipalities interested put their shoulders to the wheel and push it to a successful finish.

Publishing Prize Lists.

Editor Standard,—

I am interested in your remarks in the last Standard, regarding Meaford paper publishing Prize Lists, I think it a great mistake to not publish them. Every member and his family is interested in the prize lists as much as in the fair. If the prize list was not published it would be almost a sealed book to each other and we would lose interest in the Fair. I have had some experience with Fairs for the past thrity years, and find every year some mistake. This year at Markdale Fair, I had three prizes on sheep credited to another man I had the same happen at Rocklyn. We wait until the prize list comes out, then we write a protest to the Secretary, they have a Directors meeting later; and hear from the other party, and it is straightened out all before any prize money is paid. If the prize list was not published, the other man would have his own, and the half of your money drawn out and you could do nothing. I am sure I would not stay in a society like that. The Directors could not otherwise give the same satisfaction. I really think it would pay the Society to give $5 or $10 to have the list published. I'll bet Meaford can't keep up the interest long if they don't publish the prize list, but I think that Editor is not much good if he thinks it doesn't matter whether it is printed or not. These are my views and experience in the business. Let us hear from others, I think Markdale Fair could pay a little to the Editor if they wished, and Rocklyn too.

Yours Truly,
John Barkin,

Tuberculosis Day in Ontario Schools.

The following is an extract from the circular issued by the Minister of Education to 11,823 school teachers throughout the province, with reference to the third Tuberculosis Day in the Schools, to be held on Monday, the 15th of November.

"A very special effort is now being made to save the lives of children. Education in the means of prevention and cure is one of the most powerful weapons that can be used. With this object in view there is a general movement to direct attention to the work of the National Sanitarium Association, and therefore the Minister desires to notify school boards, and through them the parents of the pupils and ratepayers generally, that the Department approves of the object aimed at by the Association and recommends that on Monday, 15th Nov., the Principals and Teachers of the schools call attention to the necessity of putting forth all possible efforts to prevent the spread of the disease, and of availing themselves of the means supplied for this purpose, and of making such use of the printed statements that have been issued as may be deemed expedient."

In addition to the Department Circular, an Outline of Lecture and a small pamphlet, "Tuberculosis, what it is?" will be distributed for use in the schools, asking and answering a number of popular questions regarding the nature of the disease and its prevention and cure, and giving in simple form a great deal of exceedingly useful information.

All the teachers, and particularly those who have been stimulated to action by sermons delivered from the pulpits on Tuberculosis Sunday, 14th Nov., will be able to give their scholars the benefit of their inspiration on the Monday.

Teachers in this district would be well advised to use the question, rather than the lecture method on this subject—finding out what the children already know and, instead of spending time on that, emphasize the important points about which they are still ignorant.

Teachers should also ascertain what are the local conditions? If 10 per cent. of all deaths are due to T. B. what does this mean to our community? What is actual Tuberculosis situation? What is being done to remedy it?

Teachers should endeavor to carry out some of the ways suggested in the material supplied to them, of giving the children some practical way of co-operating with the Anti-Tuberculosis Association; to emphasize in the minds of the children that their own active help is one of the most important weapons in combatting this deadly disease.
