We were pleased to receive the other day from a friend in Two Harbors, Minn., a newspaper clip which contained a flattering account of a generous shipment of clothing and comforts, from members of the Canadian Relief Society of that place, to the Canadian soldiers at the front. This splendid contribution was their second consignment.

Owing to the absence of snow during a portion of last winter, Jack Frost penetrated the earth to an unusual depth. This followed by excessive rains during spring months, has left the roads exceptionally rough. It might be a good idea to have the graders put on now, while the roadways are soft and pliable, thus greatly improving the roads at a very small cost.
Hotel keepers are reported to have already increased their rates for accommodation. The travelling public will have to pay for prohibition—Milton Champion. And why shouldn't they? Was there any sane reason why any man should pay for liquor at the hotel bar to help pay for the accommodation given the traveller who does not drink? By all means rates should be raised to pay a profit for lodgings and meals.—Acton, Free Press.

Soldier's Letter.

An interesting letter to Mrs. C. W. Bowler of the suburbs, which explains itself:
My Dear Mrs. Bowler—
Of course you have heard from Mr. Dundas, of my brother's death in action, but I thought you would like to hear from me as well, and indeed I think it is my duty to write you. Poor Alec was killed just after 8 p.m., on Jan. 20th. He had just written two letters, and when he came back from his duty he was going to write all the way round. Of course the poor boy never came back, as soon as he went on duty he was hit in the lungs and stomach with bullets from a machine gun, and he only lived two minutes after. His only words before he died, were: "I'm going to die boys, good bye." As you may imagine, the news of his death was a great blow to me, as I had always told myself that nothing could happen to him. However, now that the shock has passed away somewhat, I feel that, as he was a soldier, I could wish him no better end than fighting for his country, and I feel proud that my brother is a hero, although one of the unsung ones. He was buried the next day, with full military honours, and the whole company attended his funeral. He is buried in the Canadian soldiers cemetery, about a mile behind the firing line, and the grave has a wooden cross, with his name and number on it. When the war is over and traffic resumed in Belgium, I shall go out and erect a suitable memorial to him, and I wish you would collect a maple seed from your farm, and I will plant it on his grave. I will write you when I am going in time for you to send seed. I assume you would like a little keepsake in remembrance of him, so when I get his effects from the war office, I will send you something. He told me in the conversation I had with him, while on leave, that in case of anything happening to him you would know what to do with his belongings. I should be glad if you will let me know what his wishes were. Believe me, my Dear Mrs. Bowler, when I say I know how much I am indebted to you for your kindness to my brother, and I know that he will never be absent from your thoughts, but I also know that we shall meet in the life that is to come. Alec always spoke in the most glowing terms of you and your family and I know he was most grateful for all you did for him. Of course, you will understand why he did not write towards the end he was suffering badly from shell shock and his nerves had given way. I have not time to write any more now, as I have to go to work, but I should like to have a regular correspondence with you, that is if you wish it, do let me know, my dear Mrs. Bowler, and believe me to be Yours very sincerely,
Alec F. Clarke

From Cobalt.

From a copy of the Cobalt Daily Nugget of recent date, we learn that Cobalt has three schools with nineteen teachers, with an average attendance of 525 daily, and Mr. A. E. Bryson, a former popular Principal in Markdale school is the Principal. Among other things said in a lengthy report, the Nugget says: "There has been some difficulty in getting suitable teachers for the schools, but there is a very good staff in charge now. The Principal, Mr. Bryson, entered the school at a time when it was in a very bad condition, but by perseverance and hard work he has brought it up to its present good standing. The report of the Inspector is very satisfactory, showing a marked increase in the standing of the school over some of the previous years. This speaks well for the work of the teacher and the school board."

Death of Capt. Kylie.

Captain Edward Joseph Kylie, senior adjutant of the 147th (Grey County) Battalion, and prior to the outbreak of the war Associate Professor at the University of Toronto, died Sunday morning in the General and Marine Hospital, Owen Sound, from typhoid fever. As one of Toronto University's most brilliant students and most popular and capable professors, and later as recruiting officer for the University's military units, Captain Kylie formed a very wide circle of friends and acquaintances in Toronto. Some years ago, upon graduating from the university, he won the Joseph W. Flavell scholarship, which gave him a three-year course at Oxford University. Upon his return to Canada he was appointed to the faculty of Toronto University, and in that position he won the highest esteem of his fellow professors and of the student body. Immediately upon the outbreak of the war he volunteered his services for his country, and took the necessary courses to qualify as captain and major. He was then named at the University's recruiting officer, and in this position he showed the same proficiency that had been manifested in his educational pursuits. When the 147th (Grey) Battalion was organized, Captain Kylie was given an appointment as senior adjutant, shortly after he went to Owen Sound, where the unit's headquarters are.

Presentation to Lieut. and Mrs. Blain

A very pleasant surprise was provided for Lieut. R. I. Blain by members of the Excelsior Lacrosse Club last night. "Dick" Blain was one of the best of the champion Excelsior Lacrosse players, and was always popular with the boys. A few months ago he became somewhat of a joke among the 126th Peel Battalion, and the army of benedictus about the same time. That he was not forgotten by his former associates in lacrosse was made plain last night when about a dozen of the more active called at his home and presented Mrs. Blain with a beautiful cut glass water set. The presentation was made by Mr. Thaburn, who referred to the popularity of the young soldier athlete and the pleasure it was to all his associates not only to see him settled in life, but putting into his military life the same energy and ability, which characterized his efforts on the lacrosse field. Lieut. Blain, who was taken completely by surprise, acknowledged the kindness of his friends in a fitting manner. Before the close of the evening, which was very pleasantly spent in songs and the partaking of refreshments, Mrs. Blain had the honor of presenting to the players who were present the medals which she had purchased for them in 1914, the gifts of the O.V.A.—Brampton Conservator.

Boards of Agriculture

The Farmers' Institutes of Ontario, one of the oldest agricultural organizations of the Province, was established in 1884 by Dr. James Mills, ex-president of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. The Institute has been a medium through which most commendable work has been done in bringing to the Farmers of the Province up-to-date agricultural information. This organization has been most liberally supported, by the Provincial Department of Agriculture, and much appreciated by a large percentage of the farmers of the Province. Those who are closely associated with the Institute and other agricultural associations and efforts have developed a careful enquiry and consideration of its high standing as an educational, agricultural institution. It must be reorganized, and the new organization is to be known as the "Board of Agricultural covering the Province, which is the old Institute in all sections south and east of Muskoka. Any person, interested in Agriculture, on the payment of the annual fee of 25c, may become a member of this Board, whose representatives shall consist of:—one representative from each of the "Club or Junior Farmers' Association. One representative from each agricultural society. One representative from each town or township where there are some named organizations in the township, when two members may be appointed. His district representative from the District Women's Institute, one being the district secretary, and the president, vice-president and secretary of the Farmers' Institute for the previous year. The Board will have power to raise, and its members by including representatives from any other agricultural organization in the district or from a Board of Trade or Publicity Association. The Institute has been a medium through which most commendable work has been done in bringing to the Farmers of the Province up-to-date agricultural information. This organization has been most liberally supported, by the Provincial Department of Agriculture, and much appreciated by a large percentage of the farmers of the Province. Those who are closely associated with the Institute and other agricultural associations and efforts have developed a careful enquiry and consideration of its high standing as an educational, agricultural institution. It must be reorganized, and the new organization is to be known as the "Board of Agricultural covering the Province, which is the old Institute in all sections south and east of Muskoka. Any person, interested in Agriculture, on the payment of the annual fee of 25c, may become a member of this Board, whose representatives shall consist of:—one representative from each of the "Club or Junior Farmers' Association. One representative from each agricultural society. One representative from each town or township where there are some named organizations in the township, when two members may be appointed. His district representative from the District Women's Institute, one being the district secretary, and the president, vice-president and secretary of the Farmers' Institute for the previous year. The Board will have power to raise, and its members by including representatives from any other agricultural organization in the district or from a Board of Trade or Publicity Association. The Board shall also elect a representative executive committee, whose duty shall be to supervise all the work undertaken by A.L.A.—Brampton Conservator.

T. R. I. BLAIN.

A very pleasant surprise was provided for Lieut. R. I. Blain by members of the Excelsior Lacrosse Club last night. "Dick" Blain was one of the best of the champion Excelsior Lacrosse players, and was always popular with the boys. A few months ago he became somewhat of a joke among the 126th Peel Battalion, and the army of benedictus about the same time. That he was not forgotten by his former associates in lacrosse was made plain last night when about a dozen of the more active called at his home and presented Mrs. Blain with a beautiful cut glass water set. The presentation was made by Mr. Thaburn, who referred to the popularity of the young soldier athlete and the pleasure it was to all his associates not only to see him settled in life, but putting into his military life the same energy and ability, which characterized his efforts on the lacrosse field. Lieut. Blain, who was taken completely by surprise, acknowledged the kindness of his friends in a fitting manner. Before the close of the evening, which was very pleasantly spent in songs and the partaking of refreshments, Mrs. Blain had the honor of presenting to the players who were present the medals which she had purchased for them in 1914, the gifts of the O.V.A.—Brampton Conservator.
