W. J. McFarland Meets Tragic End

This community had a tragic shock last Friday, in the death of an old and respected citizen in the person of W. J. McFarland. The old gentleman was spending a few weeks with his family at their summer home at English Lake, six miles west of Markdale, when he met with his fatal accident.

THE LATE W. J. MCFARLAND. This community had a tragic shock last Friday, in the death of an old and respected citizen in the person of W. J. McFarland. The old gentleman was spending a few weeks with his family at their summer home at English Lake, six miles west of Markdale, when he met with his fatal accident.

The car was brushed to a tangled mass and W. J. McFarland, who was driving, was thrown some distance but escaped with serious bruises and a severe cut in his leg. His niece had her leg broken and was otherwise badly shaken up while his daughter miraculously escaped unhurt. The body was removed to the undertaker's rooms and a coroner's inquest held the following morning and adjourned on Wednesday.
