WHAT OF WOMEN AFTER THE WAR?

FRANCE IS NOW STUDYING THE PROBLEM.

Having Filled Men's Positions They Will Not Wish to Leave Them.

The question of what the fate of the women of France will be after the war is generally occupying the French mind.

Madame Brieux, the well-known author of "La Femme Soule" and member of the French academy, has written on this subject:

When our soldiers return from the front and have received all the honors due them and hung up their laurel wreaths they will want to take up their occupations, but they will find that in many places occupied by women forced by necessity to do this work, and who have succeeded to get out.

The women will say: 'I have grown accustomed to my own living. I can support myself, which you thought impossible, and I have proved it. I have become attached to the feeling of independence which a salary gives. I am here, and here I will remain. Go back to live alone.'

The men will answer: 'The war made us suffer, but there was the country, my freedom and the right to work. I have come back victorious. I was tired, but I had had a rest. Give me back my position.'

Both Will Be Right.

Men and women will both be right, as they always when two adversaries each claim that the fight becomes further.

M. Brieux says that it is well that the question of this dispute should be taken up now and, if possible, some means found to arrive at a solution.

He thinks that the woman of France has been wonderful during the war, that she has won the admiration of the future world, and that she has the right to be treated as the equal of man. "If you say to her that blood for blood is her share," he goes on to say, "she will reply that she ought to sit her son the flesh of her flesh and blood of her blood. To that argument there will be unanswerable.

"It is not only on the farms that our women have done men's work. In the munitions and cafes we have seen waitresses in the cafes and female conductors on our street cars. Women have worthily and effectively worn the policeman's helmet. We have seen women perform work which we thought far beyond their physical strength, and in the future it will be ridiculous to speak of 'woman's weak physique.' The 'weak physique' has been strong enough to do work in foundries and arms factories. Women have even helped to make heavy guns.

"Our women of to-day have eaten of the forbidden fruit—forbidden to them but by God, but by man. They have learned and they know what they are capable of doing. The veil has been torn asunder.

Suggested Remedies.

"What is going to happen then? We do not know, but we must find remedies. Here are the only ones I see:

"Man must give up alcoholism, and we must help him to do so by doing away with the excuse that the saloon is the poor man's club.

"Man must respect woman and no longer treat her as a frail, ignorant creature predestined to submission.

"The abominable institution of dowry must disappear. People must give up marrying merely to establish themselves at the end of their youth. They must marry while they are young with the intention of living together all their lives, sharing the struggles, the miseries and the successes.

"Mothers must teach their sons to respect woman.

"No honest woman must rest as long as she knows that there exist women who are forced to sell themselves for physical or moral reasons."

HANDSOME SOLDIERS.

Drill Makes the Women Look to Their Laurels.

In a busy hive of war work a group of beautiful young women were, in an off moment, discussing the merits of various systems of physical exercises to which they are devoted, says the London Express.

"I would not have said so," how I keep it I owe much just quarter of an hour each day to a few simple exercises." Another was equally enthusiastic, and, with commendable frankness, admitted at the beginning of the war her desire for exercise was to avoid putting on flesh. She was looking at her work in the munition factory to counteract the effects of sedentary work.

No one was at a loss to explain why this activity had become a fashion. The reason is not far to seek. The example of the soldier is the incentive. Men are being trained for such purpose that their physique is improving wonderfully, and their well set up and splendid figures are reminding their sisters that they must look to their laurels.

Sub-Lieut. H.R.H. Prince Albert

It was announced officially in May that Prince Albert, second son of the King, had been promoted from Acting Sub-Lieutenant to Sub-Lieutenant in His Majesty's Navy. His Royal Highness, who is in his twenty-first year, entered the Royal Naval College, Osborne, in January, 1909, and became a midshipman in September, 1913. He was promoted to Acting Sub-Lieutenant in September, 1915. When war broke out he was serving in a flagship of the Grand Fleet, but in September, 1914, he was compelled to go on sick leave, and was operated upon for appendicitis. He was unable to rejoin his ship until February of the following year. In the following November he was again on sick leave, with an obstinate gastric disorder. He returned to active duty in May of this year.

THANKFUL MOTHERS

Thousands of thankful mothers throughout Canada—many of them your own neighbors—speak with the greatest praise of that splendid medicine, Baby's Own Tablets. Many mothers would have no other medicine for their little ones. Among these is Mrs. Albert Nie, St. Brieux, Sask., who says: 'I have been using Baby's Own Tablets for the past seven years and they have done my four children a world of good. I would not be without them.' The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

KASHA THE SMASHER.

Something About the Famous Russian General.

The Russian soldier's nickname for General Brussiloff, the man who has driven the Austrians before him in Galicia in a dozen battles, is "Papa Kasha." "Kasha," a writer in a British periodical tells us, is a breakfast dish greatly beloved by the Russian soldier. It is made principally of dry buckwheat mixed with sour clotted milk, and Brussiloff was the first to introduce it as a regular ration for the Russian soldier.

Although his name was not widely known before the recent campaign, General Alexei Grussiloff has for some time been recognized in Russian military circles as a brilliant strategist and tactician. When the war broke out he was in command of the 14th Army Corps on the Galician frontier, and he took a prominent part in all the earlier operations in that part of the eastern front.

Early in April last he succeeded General Ivanoff in command of the southern Russian army, and at once he began to prepare assiduously for the great offensive.

Trained as a cavalry leader, he insisted that that army must play a prominent part in his plan of operations. Only through cavalry, he said, could a rout, as distinguished from a mere withdrawal, be assured. And only cavalry, he thought, could act as quickly as the occasion would demand in the broad intervals of open country between the lines of the enemy's intrenchments.

The Russian military wiseacres shook their heads. But Brussiloff had shown marvelous skill and adaptability in manœuvring large bodies of men, and he was permitted to have his own way.

The victorious commander, like most of the other successful generals in this war, is well advanced in years. He is sixty-four years of age. His vitality, however, is amazing. He is reported to be the picture of health at present, in spite of sixteen hours' work a day. In all weathers he will inspect his troops and visit the vital points along his front. If his motor car cannot take him where he wants to go on account of the bad roads, he will continue his journey for many miles if necessary on horseback.

"We have undertaken a big operation. With God's help we will conduct it to a successful conclusion," was all he said when he was congratulated on his victories. Brussiloff is a man of very few words.

The Folly Of Taking Digestive Pills

A Warning to Dyspeptics.

The habit of taking digestive pills after meals makes chronic dyspeptics of many thousands of men and women because artificial digestents, drugs and medicines have practically no influence upon the excessively acid condition of the stomach contents which is the cause of most forms of indigestion and dyspepsia.

The after dinner pill merely lessens the sensitiveness of the stomach nerves and thus gives a false sense of freedom from pain. If those who are subject to indigestion, gas, flatulence, belching, bloating, heartburn, etc., after eating, would get about an ounce of pure bisurated magnesia from their druggist and take a teaspoonful in a little water after meals, there would be no further necessity for drugs or medicines because bisurated magnesia instantly neutralizes stomach acidity, stops food fermentation and thus insures normal, painless digestion by enabling the stomach to do its work without hindrance.

41 ZEPPELIN RAIDS.

1,334 People Killed and Wounded in England.

The New York Times prints the following story from London:

In the last two years there have been 41 Zeppelin raids on England—23 in 1915 and 18 in 1916. This summary does not take into account the many aero and seaplane attacks and the numerous abortive attempts which have been driven back at the coast or balked by shifting winds and misty weather.

If in these raids we take three Zeppelins as the average number, and allow three tons of explosives and incendiary bombs as the capacity of each dirigible, we have an aggregate of 370 tons of death-dealing missiles. Supposing each bomb weighs 50 pounds, we have approximately 15,000 as the number dropped on England or in the North Sea in the last two years.

The British Government has made public the number of casualties after each raid, and these aggregate 366 dead and 980 wounded. This means that it has taken more than a ton of German bombs for every British man, woman and child who has been killed. A military expert figures that for every soldier killed the enemy must expend his weight in lead. Before the British perfected their defences against air attack the loss of life was much greater, the casualties steadily decreasing as the difficulties of attack increased.

Since the war began it has been definitely reported that fourteen Zeppelins have been wrecked; the real number is probably much larger. It is estimated that it costs at least $250,000 to build a Zeppelin. Multiplying this sum by 14, we have $3,500,000 as the amount the Germans have lost through the wrecking of Zeppelins alone. This sum would build 500 aeroplanes at $7,000 each, 35 submarines at $100,000 each, or pay for 70,000 shells at $500 each. These 14 Zeppelins did no military damage; their only value to Germany has been in reconnaissance work over the North Sea.

MORE BABIES FOR EMPIRE.

Large Family Will be Regarded As a National Asset.

"The war after the war will be won by the nation which encourages early marriages and large families."

These words were used by an eminent London physician in an interview with the London Daily Express. He spoke on the subjects which Sir Leo Chiozza Money, M.P., dealt with recently—the need for more abundantly populating the British Empire and the peril of the families of one or two children.

"My experience shows that, given good stock to start with, large families show no deterioration among the younger branches," said the physician. "On the contrary, I frequently find that the best bodies, and emphatically the best brains, occur, say, with the fourth, fifth, sixth or seventh child.

"Married people who prefer small families risk the possibility of losing a genius which might have come in a fourth or fifth child. Parsons set a good example, as a rule, in the size of their families, and they are usually fine families, too.

"In Germany, early marriages and large, very large, families are the rule. I have seen a father, mother, and twenty-four children, all robust and bright, going to church.

"Bachelors who postpone marrying until they are thirty-five or forty act foolishly for themselves and the race. It is one of the weak points in our social system that men do not marry young."

She Knew Better.

Mrs. Wiseman was one of those women who always know. Whatever the subject under discussion, she had her own opinions, and made other people have them, too.

"Joshua," said she to her husband one evening, "I saw in this morning's paper that old Mr. Biffer died on Saturday."

"It was a mistake," mumbled Joshua, as he bent down to unlace his shoes; "he died on Friday."

"But the paper said Saturday," repeated Mrs. Wiseman, firmly.

"I know it did," persisted Joshua, "but it was an error in the print."

"I thought that at first," said the lady decidedly, "but I got half a dozen copies of the paper and it was the same in all of them. And they certainly couldn't have made the same mistake over and over again like that!"

As evidenced by an advertisement which appeared in last week's issue, the Toronto Fat Stock Show are giving special attention to farmers and breeders, and are offering many handsome prizes for classes where stock must be bred, fed and owned by the exhibitors. This is work along the right lines and should bring out a good entry.

A NEW SERVICE.

Now Possible to Send a Day Letter by Telegraph.

Mr. J. McMillan, who has initiated many notable improvements since he became General Manager of the C.P.R. Telegraphs eighteen months ago, has just decided to inaugurate an important service entirely new to Canada over the hundred and ten thousand miles of wire under his immediate control, namely, the day letter which may now be sent between points in Canada on the Canadian Pacific system at a rate very much reduced as compared with the usual commercial rush telegram. Mr. McMillan is convinced that many of those who send telegrams would be quite satisfied if these arrived on the same day, whereas a proportion of the cost of the rush telegram is due to the cost of speedy delivery. The day letter of fifty words will be rated at one and a half times the cost of a regular rush message of ten words and can still bring an answer the same day, which is as quick as many people desire. There are sixteen hundred C.P.R. telegraph offices throughout Canada, at each of which the new service will be in force, so that it will be a Dominion-wide service stretching from Louisburg, Nova Scotia, to Victoria, B.C. Messages will be taken in either French or English, code words not being permissible.

Mr. John McMillan owes his success to a genial and tactful disposition which made him one of the most popular C.P.R. officials in the West, where his work centred until he was called to the head office in Montreal last year. Although less than fifty years of age, he joined the C.P.R. at its inception, working on construction in 1883. After acting for a number of years as operator at Donald, B.C., he became Inspector of Telegraphs at Winnipeg in 1902, Assistant Superintendent in 1906, Superintendent Calgary in 1907, General Superintendent at Winnipeg in 1913, and final Manager of the whole telegraph system in March, 1915.

How To Get Rid Of Catarrh

Catarrhal Deafness or Head Noises.

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises caused by catarrh or if phlegm drops in your throat has caused catarrh of the stomach or bowels you will be glad to know these distressing symptoms can be entirely overcome in many instances, the following treatment which you can easily prepare in your own home at little cost. Secure from your druggist one ounce of Parmint (Double Strength). This will not cost you more than 75c. Take this home and add to it 2 pints hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. A decided improvement is sometimes noted after the first day's treatment. Breathing becomes easy, while the distressing head noises, headache, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., gradually disappear under the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell, taste, defective hearing and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms which suggest the presence of catarrh and which are often overcome by this effective treatment. Nearly ninety per cent. of ear troubles are said to be directly caused by catarrh, therefore, there must be many people whose hearing can be restored by this simple home treatment.

Plain Talk.

On His Furlough.

The reading lesson was on, and the word "furlough" occurred. Miss Jones, the teacher, asked if any little girl or boy knew the meaning of the word. One small hand was raised. "Furlough means a mule," said the child. "Oh, no, it doesn't," said the teacher. "Yes, ma'am," insisted the little girl, "I have a book at home that says so." Miss Jones told the child to bring the book to school. The next morning the child came armed with a book, and triumphantly showed a picture of an American soldier riding a mule, under which was the caption—"Going home on his furlough."

Attending to Business.

"You say the officer arrested you while you were quietly minding your own business?"

"Yes, your honor. He caught me suddenly by the coat-collar and threatened to truncheon me unless I accompanied him quietly to the station."

"You were peaceably attending to your own business, making no noise or disturbance of any kind?"

"None whatever, sir."

"It seems very strange. What is your business?"

"I'm a burglar."

And many a man's belief in his superior wisdom makes a fool of him.
