

It! Clean and—
Free from Dust
GLADA!
Sockets Only - Never in Bulk —Natural Green
E212

Bride's Name;
Adventures of Captain Fraser

"That is telling me to go, I suppose?" said Fraser, looking at her frankly. "I wish I knew how to talk to you. When I think of you here all alone, without friends and without employment, it seems wrong for me to go and leave you here."
Miss Tyrell gave a faint gasp and glanced anxiously at the door. Fraser hesitated a moment, and then rose to his feet.
"If I hear anything more, may I come and tell you?" he asked.
"Yes," said Poppy, "or write; perhaps it would be better to write; I might not be at home. Good-by!"
The mate shook hands, and blundering down the stairs, shouted good-night to a segment of the Wheeler family visible through the half-open door. He walked for some time rapidly, gradually slowing down as he collected his thoughts. "Flowers, a fool," he said, bitterly; "and as for me, I don't know what I am. It's so long since I told the truth I forget what it's like, and I'd sooner toll lies in a church than tell them to her."
CHAPTER X.
He looked expectedly on the cabin table for a letter upon his return to the ship, but was disappointed, and the only letter yielded by the post next morning came from Captain Barber. It was couched in terms of great resignation, and after bemoaning the unfortunate skipper's untimely demise, in language of great strength, wound up with a little Scripture, and asked the mate to act as master and sail the schooner home.
"You'll act as mate, Ben, to take her back," said the new skipper, thrusting the letter in his pocket.
"Aye, aye, sir," said Ben, with a side glance at Joe, "but I'll keep forward, if you don't mind."
"As you please," said Fraser, starting.
"And you're master, I s'pose?" said Joe, turning to Fraser.
Fraser, whose manner had already effected the little change rendered necessary by his promotion from mate to master, nodded curtly, and the crew after another exchange of looks, their behaviour all day was docile, not to say lamb-like, and it was not until evening that the new skipper found it necessary to enforce his authority.
The exciting cause of the unpleasantness was Mr. William Green a slim, furtive-eyed young man, whom Fraser took on in the afternoon to fill the vacancy caused by Ben's departure. He had not been on board half an hour before trouble arose from his attempt to introduce the manners of the drawing-room into the forecastle.
"Mine, too," said Fraser, gazing steadily at the pretty picture of indignation before him. "I was Flowers' friend as well as his mate, and you are only a girl." The indignation became impatience. "Little more than a child," he murmured scrutinizing her.
"I am quite big enough to mind my own business," said Poppy, reverting to her politeness.
"I wish you would promise me you won't leave here or do anything until I have seen you again," said Fraser, who was anxious to consult his captain on this new phase of affairs.
"Certainly not," said Miss Tyrell, rising and standing by her chair, "and Fraser rubbed his chin helplessly.
"Thank you for calling," repeated the girl, still standing.

Use Comfortable Old
Shoes This Winter
Your Patriotism and Thrift Will Rubbers or Over-will Protect Your Feet

rise in leather prices has a significant effect on our personal coming a serious matter for the soldiers at the front.
The reserve, particularly of the steady diminishing. If the plenty for shoes and equipment, it is to be able to procure it at an, civilians must economize on it well-worn shoes are no longer honor—an evidence that the wearer fore pride, thrift before vanity.
The prevailing moderate prices of shoes make this practicable. In little more than before the war, expenditure for either will protect through the winter, keep the comfortable, and guard the wearer's also following the sensible course of rubbers and socks for stables, in the woods, or in the field, wet weather. Not the least of their cleanliness around the house.
or over shoes is one of the rare brings its own reward, for in considerable money saving, what such solid comfort as a well-

Leather Is a Public
as a Private Economy

Practical Farming

Cooperative Bull Clubs.

The breeders' club has become quite common in Canada, and as an association is, no doubt playing a large part in the production of good pure bred cattle. But their usefulness has never been extended very far beyond the holding of consignment sales. One article of the things which they might do to make a cooperative effort to obtain and retain better sires. It is not, even in districts where breeders' clubs have been established the long-est, that almost every breeder supports a sire in his herd. This animal, with good care and feeding, could easily have two or more herds, says Farm and Dairy.

A scheme for the cooperative ownership of sires requires careful planning. A well laid plan to work on is reported in a recent issue of the Holstein-Friesian World. A part of the article in question is reprinted here, with for the benefit of our readers: "The dairy farmers near Roland, Iowa, have formed the first Holstein-Friesian Bull Association in the state, and they have done this, not as large or accomplished Holstein breeders, but as younger breeders of Holsteins and enthusiasts can do anywhere. To Mr. Winkler, goes the credit for starting this association, although the extension workers of the Iowa State College, Professors Barker and Cort, have also materially helped with the work. After corresponding with some of the breeders near Roland and receiving satisfactory assurances, Mr. Winkler personally visited the men and secured their cooperation in the project.

"Fourteen breeders of grade and pure bred Holstein-Friesians (form the association. These are divided into five blocks, one of which registered bull being secured for each block. The number of breeders in each block depends upon the number of cattle kept, and also somewhat upon the location of the different men forming that group. There are two blocks with only two men each; two with three each, and the remaining one with four. The expenses for the five bulls needed are pre-rated equally among the different blocks; and also, equally among the members of each individual block. Thus a member of the group composed of four pays only half as much as one in a block containing two breeders. This plan seems to be the most satisfactory and equitable of any suggested. The bulls will be changed to different blocks every two years. Bull A, in block 1, going to block 2. Bull B, in block 2, to block 3, etc.

"One of the provisions of the constitution provides that each herd in the association must be tested for tuberculosis annually. It is further provided that any bull must be purchased subject to the tuberculin test after being subjected to a 60-day quarantine. The quarantine prevents the bull's infection after being purchased, and also affords an adequate safeguard against any illegitimate practices on the part of the seller. It is interesting to note that the larger number of breeders did not object to this clause, but appreciated the value of having it in force, to protect the discharge by mistake. Let me tell you call 'im Slushy. Go on, now."

"I've no call to address 'im at all just now," said Mr. Green, lightly.
"You call 'im Slushy," roared Joe, advancing upon him; "call 'im Slushy until I tell you to stop."
"Slushy," said Mr. Green, suddenly, "that you can't see through them doors; Slushy, Slushy, Slushy. Sweep 'em down."

"That'll do," said the cook, rising with a scowl. "You don't want to make a song about it."
Joe, content with his victory, resumed his seat on the locker, Ben exchanged a reassuring glance with Mr. Green, with a deprecatory glance at the cook, sat down and offered him a pipe of tobacco.
"Been to sea long?" inquired the cook, accepting it.
"Not long," said the other, speaking very distinctly. "It was brought up for something quite different. I'm just doing this till something better turns up. I find it very difficult to be a gentleman at sea."
The cook, with an eye on Joe, ventured on a gentle murmur of sympathy, and said that he had experienced some of the same thing.
"I had money," continued Mr. Green, "and I ran through it."
"Ben," said Joe, suddenly, "pass me over that boot of yours."
"What for?" inquired Ben, who had just taken it off.
"To chuck at that swab there," said the indignant seaman.
Ben passed it over without a word, and his irritated friend, taking care, flung it at Mr. Green and caught him on the side of the head with it. Pain standing, the latter in lieu of courage, he snatched it up and returned it, and the next moment the whole forecastle was punching somebody else's head, while Tim, in a state of fearful joy, peered down on it from his bunk.
Victory, rendered cheap and easy by reason of the purliness of the fran-

FOR 40 YEARS THE STANDARD REMEDY

MOTHER'S SUCCESSFUL RUSSIAN

FOR STOMACH AND LIVER TROUBLE

YOUR puddings are really able, why use Five Roses? Simply because you want them more digestible. Five Roses puddings digest unconsciously every spoonful is a tasty source of vitality.

Why Shouldn't You

enjoy, in your own home, as smooth, clean and comfortable a shave as the city man, or as anyone else in this broad Dominion? Why shouldn't you own and use the keenest, speediest, most convenient shaving tool in the world—the

Gillette Safety Razor

The thin Gillette blades, electrically honed with diamond dust, stamped in wonderful automatic machines, carry an edge whose uniform, lasting keenness has never been matched. The curved Gillette blades hold them rigid—guaranteed adjustable by a turn of the handle for a light or close shave.

With the Gillette there's no need for honing, stropping, or careful working round the chin or angle of the jaw. There are no preliminaries—the razor is ready for business—you just pick it up and shave, with the easy angle stroke, in five minutes or less.

The Gillette "Bull Dog," "Aristocrat" and Standard Sets cost $5—Pocket Editions $3 and $6—Combinated, Sets $6.50 up. At Hardware, Drug, Men's Wear and Jewelry stores.

Gillette Safety Razor Co. of Canada, Limited.
Office and Factory: GILLETTE BUILDING, MONTREAL.

Leing Sugar

For frosting cakes, making bonbons and other confections without cooking. Ask for it by name at your grocer.

1-lb Cartons only

Lantic Sugar

is packed at the factory in dust-tight cartons. You are the first hand to touch.

2 and 5-lb Cartons 10 and 25-lb Bags

The All-Purpose Sugar

Send us a card for a book for a FREE Gift Book.

Atlantic Sugar Refineries Ltd.
Power Bldg., Montreal

GOOD DIGESTION

When your digestion is faulty, weakness and pain are certain and disease is invited.

FOR 40 YEARS THE STANDARD REMEDY

FOR STOMACH AND LIVER TROUBLE

YOUR puddings are really able, why use Five Roses? Simply because you want them more digestible. Five Roses puddings digest unconsciously every spoonful is a tasty source of vitality.

Wear Those Shoes

And Show Your Patriotism and Thrift

The spectacular increase in rubber prices has a significant effect on our personal coming a serious matter for the soldiers at the front.
The reserve, particularly of the steady diminishing. If the plenty for shoes and equipment, it is to be able to procure it at an, civilians must economize on it well-worn shoes are no longer honor—an evidence that the wearer fore pride, thrift before vanity.
The prevailing moderate prices of shoes make this practicable. In little more than before the war, expenditure for either will protect through the winter, keep the comfortable, and guard the wearer's also following the sensible course of rubbers and socks for stables, in the woods, or in the field, wet weather. Not the least of their cleanliness around the house.
or over shoes is one of the rare brings its own reward, for in considerable money saving, what such solid comfort as a well-

YOUNG FOLKS

The Day That Carries the Lant Late every afternoon in the fall the shadows get thick under and in the yard, Mrs. Raymond trees, a lantern that hangs in her cher and gives it to Rusty, the collie.
Rusty takes the lantern into month and partly because he is grateful for an important part to be trusted on an important job.
That leads through the woods to railway station about a quarter mile away. The train that brings platform for the city. Then Raymond lights the lantern and it leads to Rusty, and the two together above the winding path the house where a good "waiter" waiter for each of them.
The path is dark, the woods short cut. The distance from house to the station is much less to be at the station, and that is reason. Mr. Raymond always has path over his back and talk to him
the morning when he is coming
at night.
If he says "Rusty, the lantern
forgets to be Rusty's lantern
train that he goes to the station where the lantern hangs in the en, she says. And it is the
which is a little bit better than the lantern, but he is not the
he never does the lantern, even person who is happy to be in tion his work and talk to him he is waiting for the morning
river.
Who says "Rusty, the lantern get along the lantern, the Rusty usually meets this man
the same night, it is not but always in the morning, it is to be at the station, and that is reason. Mr. Raymond always has
path over his back and talk to him
the morning when he is coming
at night.
If he says "Rusty, the lantern
forgets to be Rusty's lantern
train that he goes to the station
where the lantern hangs in the en, she says. And it is the
which is a little bit better than
the lantern, but he is not the
he never does the lantern, even
person who is happy to be in
tion his work and talk to him
he is waiting for the morning
river.
Who says "Rusty, the lantern
get along the lantern, the Rusty usually meets this man
the same night, it is not
but always in the morning, it is
to be at the station, and that is reason. Mr. Raymond always has
path over his back and talk to him
the morning when he is coming
at night.
If he says "Rusty, the lantern
forgets to be Rusty's lantern
train that he goes to the station
where the lantern hangs in the en, she says. And it is the
which is a little bit better than
the lantern, but he is not the
he never does the lantern, even
person who is happy to be in
tion his work and talk to him
he is waiting for the morning
river.

CHAPTER IX.
"He can't come," inmate, hastily. "Did he send you asked.
"Fraser shook his head.
"He had a bad cold," he said. "Poppy fellow
softly, "poor fellow."
He broke off and ex-
tively, "and fell overboard."
Poppy Tyrell gave a springing to her feet, st-
hand on the back of her ing him. "Poppy fellow
softly, "poor fellow."
She sat down again
window and nervously p-leaves of a geranium. I white and her dark eye-lender. Fraser, watching his resourceful skipper ar-
rel."
"It's a terrible thing
friends," said Poppy, at
"And for you," said Fr-
fully.
"I am very grieved," quietly, "very shocked and
ed."
"I have got strong her-
may have got picked up,
cheerfully, "very strong threw him a life-belt, and got the boat out and pulled couldn't find either of them ed up by some vessel out-
Stranger though he was hap-
The girl shook her head didn't get overboard after-
asked quietly.
"I did not," said the ma-
somewhat tired of this tution; "I had to stand by
and besides, he was a m-swimmer than I am—I dic-
could."
Miss Tyrell bowed her
swever. "Yes," she said,
"If there's anything I can Fraser, awkwardly, "or be-you in any way, I hope you know. Flowers told me you alone, and—"
He broke off suddenly as girl's lips quiver. "I was
of my father," she said, in
tion of this weakness.
"I suppose you've got
tives," said Fraser.
The girl shook her head.

Wear Those Shoes
And Show Your Patriotism and Thrift

The spectacular increase in rubber prices has a significant effect on our personal coming a serious matter for the soldiers at the front.
The reserve, particularly of the steady diminishing. If the plenty for shoes and equipment, it is to be able to procure it at an, civilians must economize on it well-worn shoes are no longer honor—an evidence that the wearer fore pride, thrift before vanity.
The prevailing moderate prices of shoes make this practicable. In little more than before the war, expenditure for either will protect through the winter, keep the comfortable, and guard the wearer's also following the sensible course of rubbers and socks for stables, in the woods, or in the field, wet weather. Not the least of their cleanliness around the house.
or over shoes is one of the rare brings its own reward, for in considerable money saving, what such solid comfort as a well-

CHAPTER IX.
"He can't come," inmate, hastily. "Did he send you
asked.
"Fraser shook his head.
"He had a bad cold," he said. "Poppy fellow
softly, "poor fellow."
He broke off and ex-
tively, "and fell over-
board."
Poppy Tyrell gave a
springing to her feet, st-
hand on the back of her
ing him. "Poppy fellow
softly, "poor fellow."
She sat down again
window and nervously p-
leaves of a geranium. I
white and her dark eye-
lender. Fraser, watching his resourceful skipper ar-
rel."
"It's a terrible thing
friends," said Poppy, at
"And for you," said Fr-
fully.
"I am very grieved," quietly, "very shocked and
ed."
"I have got strong her-
may have got picked up,
cheerfully, "very strong
threw him a life-belt, and
got the boat out and pulled
couldn't find either of them
ed up by some vessel out-
Stranger though he was hap-
The girl shook her head
didn't get overboard after-
asked quietly.
"I did not," said the ma-
somewhat tired of this tu-
tion; "I had to stand by
and besides, he was a m-
swimmer than I am—I dic-
could."
Miss Tyrell bowed her
swever. "Yes," she said,
"If there's anything I can Fraser, awkwardly, "or be-
you in any way, I hope you know. Flowers told me you alone, and—"
He broke off suddenly as girl's lips quiver. "I was
of my father," she said, in
tion of this weakness.
"I suppose you've got
tives," said Fraser.
The girl shook her head.