British Sniper Has Upper Hand

There is no doubt about it—when the war was young the German sniper stood alone. He was first and the rest nowhere. Every "Tommy" who felt a bullet crack near him was sure it was a sniper. The fame of the enemy sharp-shooter grew apace, and wonderful tales of his prowess were told. The thing got on the men's nerves. Sentries saw snipers in trees, in No Man's Land, in chimneys, etc. To give the Devil his due the Hun was proficient. And he knew it, too. The same careful attention to detail that characterized all the German scheme of preparedness was in evidence. The game was studied—as the lawyer would say—with malice aforethought. Consequently, we had reason to fear the man about whom it has been written, "Oh, who is he who shoots from trees from sunken hides, and oftentimes sees, a slug for him come o'er the breeze—the sniper."

But we have learned our lesson. And, as always, we have paid, paid, paid. To-day the British sniper holds the trump card. I think it is well within the mark to say that this knowledge has been of inestimable benefit to our boys. Let men have the conviction that in any arm of the service superiority has been established and the effect on "morale" is tremendous. What was it but this feeling of "top dog" that enabled the ranks to carry on in the face of great obstacles at the Somme?

The snipers are picked men. Ability to shoot is not everything. Initiative and aptitude count for much. A sniper should "dot" on his job—he must be keen. A sergeant sniper who has the fever for his work, said, that he never took a man into the section on his range record only. "Give me a man with an appetite for Huns"—was the way he put it. Hunnan targets—that's it, sir.

If one walks through a billet area where men have a few days rest from the trenches, one may meet up with a little group carrying, in addition to service equipment, an assortment of leather cases and "alien" paraphernalia. The rifles may excite comment. They are of all sorts and makes—Long Lee-En-fields, Ross, some with Winchester and some with the ordinary arm. Each man will have his reason for believing he has the best rifle in the world.

Space and conditions will not permit me to recount my experiences, but will mention a couple, true to my knowledge, having happened on our immediate front. When we "took over" at "X" the German snipers had been very active. A certain portion of the line was in bad shape, and despite warnings a number of the boys had been "picked off." The sergeant had us put in "posts" on each side of the dangerous spot. We fired at everything in sight. The Hun "came back," but we fired clip after clip. Twenty-two periscopes were smashed in three days. The enemy tried hard to retain superiority of fire. Our lads were determined to obtain mastery, and we "stuck it," even though shot came perilously close, and perseverance won. When we were relieved the "Fritz" sniper was "non est."

"An Imperial told me this story: "We were in the trenches at .. It was winter time, and snow covered the ground. A sniper had very effectively played on our line. We had tried to locate him, but his post was well concealed. The enemy parapet was searched for those signs which an experienced sniper notes with care. We watched for the smoke of his rifle. We examined closely any suspicious arrangement of sand-bags, indicating the presence of a loop-hole. But we were worried. Frankly, the officer commanding was asked "why in we didn't stop that sniper." One day we happened to notice a slight discoloration of the snow in front of the Parados at M-6, B-4, O-22. This spot was watched, and sure enough the sniper was there. He had by skillful arrangement concealed the post, but he had forgotten to take into account the effect of the gas and smoke of his rifle on the snow. That sniper was stalked, and as the Imperial told me, there was one Bosche less then, and another month's afterwards.

Rather a ludicrous experience came to us at .. "Fritz" had three or four loop-holes in close proximity on his parapet. We saw the little trap in one open and a rifle barrel protrude. Here was luck. Our rifles were lined up and two shots went "whang" into his loop-hole. I am not sure but we went clean through the opening. But this Hun was nervy. Apparently he had not been hit, but what did the chap do but go along to the next loop-hole and bang one across at us. We followed up and "rang-the-plate," as the boys say. The lip grew fast and furious. Fritz hastened down the trench and opening another loop-hole, sent one blindly. We were right after him—whang, went our bullet on the plate. "Poor Fats," he was out of luck. We were invisible and he got desperate. His impotency exasperated him, and at last his temper got the upper hand. I saw the barrel of his rifle come over the parapet. But it was pointed skyward. He knew better than to expose himself. Bang, Bang, Bang spoke his "Mauser," "Poor Ole Fritz," he couldn't shoot it; so he vented his spleen on God's pure air. I laughed boisterously. It was a sight for a pessimist. I think I could rather like that Hun. He got so dang mad, and so soon over it. We never saw him again. Stanley Rutledge, 28th Battalion

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF
Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a 25 cent bottle, of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life, has an incomparable tress and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots fall out, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

A Vegetable Garden for Every Home

In this year of supreme effort Britain and her armies must have ample supplies of food, and Canada is the great source upon which they rely. Everyone with a few square feet of ground can contribute to victory by growing vegetables.

Four Patriotic Reasons for Growing Vegetables

1. It saves money that you would otherwise spend for vegetables.
2. It helps to lower the "High cost of living."
3. It helps to enlarge the urgently needed surplus of produce for export.
4. Growing your own vegetables saves labor of others whose effort is needed for other vital war work.

The Department of Agriculture will help you

The Ontario Department of Agriculture appeals to Horticultural Societies to devote at least one evening meeting to the subject of vegetable growing; manufacturers, labor unions, lodges, school boards, etc., are invited to actively encourage home gardening. Let the slogan for 1917 be, "A vegetable garden for every home!"

Organizations are requested to arrange for instructive talks by practical gardeners on the subject of vegetable growing. Because where it is impossible to secure suitable local speakers, the Department of Agriculture will, on request, send a suitable man.

The demand for speakers will be great. The number of available experts being limited, the Department urgently requests that arrangements for meetings be made at once; if local speakers cannot be secured, send applications promptly.

The Department suggests the formation of local organizations to stimulate the work by offering prizes for best vegetable gardens. It is prepared to assist in any possible way any organization that may be conducting a campaign for vegetable production on vacant lots. It will do so by sending speakers, or by supplying expert advice in the field.

To any one interested, the Department of Agriculture will send literature giving instructions about implements necessary and methods of preparing the ground and cultivating the crop. A plan of a vegetable garden indicating suitable crops to grow, best varieties and their arrangement in the garden, will be sent free of charge to any address.

Write for Poultry Bulletin

Hens are expensive to keep, and you will be highly repaid in fresh eggs. Write for free bulletin which tells how to keep hens. Address letters to "Vegetable Campaign," Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.
