UNIONISM HERE TO STAY

(From The Globe.)

The belief that Unionism has come to stay was expressed by Major H. M. Mowat, M. P., for Parkdale, at a largely-attended meeting of Unionists held in Bonar Hall, College street and Lansdowne avenue, on Thursday evening. Major Mowat had called the meeting, believing it was the duty of every member of the House of Commons to give an account of his stewardship and to let the constituents know in full detail everything of importance that had happened during the recent session of the Federal, so that they might become a better part of the body politic.

No Time for Parties.

Major Mowat said that the two leading impressions he had formed at the Capital were: (1) At a time like the present, Canada could only be governed by a Union Government, and (2) the destiny of Canada was safe in the hands of Sir Robert Borden, Prime Minister. The Parkdale member added that the increased power of the leader of the Government, his fairness, his honesty, integrity and industry, his grasp of public affairs and his good-natured and considerate treatment of friend and foe alike, had raised him to a plane never excelled by any Prime Minister of Canada.

If there had been party Government, continued Major Mowat, a Government though of a loss of votes at the next election, it could not have withstood the demands of that section at the public even if they might have known the demands were against the best interests of the public.

Farmers and M. S. A.

Referring to the deputation of farmers which invaded the Capital asking for concessions to farmers' sons in connection with the Military Service Act, Major Mowat expressed the opinion that more than half the farmers had changed their opinion after discussing the issue with the Government.

"The farmers and other large bodies of men also must realize now," Major Mowat pointed out, "that Canada cannot be governed by mobs or demonstrations of force. There must be consideration for the feelings of every class, and there must be no distinction. In a few months, the latest, Major Mowat said, he felt convinced the farmers' whose demands had been so definitely refused would be the first to turn around and congratulate Sir Robert Borden upon his firm stand.

The constitution of the Union Government, Major Mowat said, had made it certain that Canada would give its best service during the war. Old political enemies had become fast friends, and many old shibboleths would remain dead.

Major Mowat then went over in detail the many important measures adopted by the Government during the session recently closed, and invited the people to give all the assistance possible in carrying out the registration order, which, he claimed, would find out the many people indifferent to the war's issue and the slackers.

Lieut.-Col. Clark Praises Union.

Lieut.-Col. Hugh Clark, after his experience of the past few months, had nothing but praise for the system of Union Government. He never was fool enough himself, he said, to belive that all the talent for leadership and statesmanship was the exclusive right of any one party, but he did agree that the best of both should be commandeered by the country for the duration of the war.
