Miss Maud Boyd, of Flesherton, who taught at Orange Valley school for some time, is teaching at Waterloo, Ont.

P. J. Thompson is offering an al-wool, hand-tailored, blue serge suit, guaranteed dye, for $25. This is the greatest value in the clothing trade.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Telford, of Toronto, gave us a brief call on Saturday last as they were motoring through to visit friends at Tara.—Durham Chronicle.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Montgomery, of Toronto, visited friends hereabout for some days. Mrs. Montgomery, sr., accompanied. They returned home on Wednesday.

Miss Lulu Allison, who has been attending the millinery openings in Toronto for the past two weeks, has accepted a charge position with Miss Kelley, of Alliston, Ont.

Rev. and Mrs. R. J. Murphy and family, of Wardsville, who were on a motoring tour, had a few days in town, the guests of Dr. and Mrs.

Brown and Mr. J. W. Ford:

Tuesday of last week, the W.C.T.U.

met at Mrs. Cook's, when 22 parcels each containing one pair of socks aged three and one-half months, which took place on the 29th August.

Arthur V. Bowen, Markdale, received a sad message from Ottawa, Tuesday evening, August 27th, saying that his brother, No. 338241, Pte. William Ralph Bowen, was killed in action on August 5th somewhere in France.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Wilson and Mr.

Wilson's sister, Mrs. Agnew and little Nora, motored to Riverview this week and visited Mr. and Mrs. Alex. McDuff, who are doing a successful mercantile business there.

Mount Forest's main street has been greatly improved by a top dressing of tar and fine gravel. Markdale's main street requires something of this nature to make it dustless, noiseless and smooth. The editor's wife says AMEN to this idea.

Markdale business folk planned to have a holiday every Thursday during haying and harvesting, to assist neighboring farmers to gather in the crop. The weather proved favorable and a splendid crop has been housed, quite a number from town loyally assisting, but as for the Thursday holiday proving of value we fail to see it that way.

The Standard invites each church and school in the village to appoint

"reporter", who, with any assistance those interested may give, may prepare, and hand in on Monday of each week, items of church or school interest, for publication. It is surprising what interest and benefit such a system well-practised would develop.

All together now, for next Monday.

BERLIN MUST BE DESTROYED!

That should be the battle cry of the allies. As Carthage went through the streets of Rome declaring, "Carthage must be destroyed," so in the allied capitals this cry should resound in the ears of the people until it becomes the principal war aim of the entente. Not in the spirit of vengeance but as the only way that a lasting impression can be left upon the minds of the German people, their capital should be reduced to a heap of ruins as Carthage was by the Romans. There is no duty confronting the allied governments that equals in importance that of bringing to the consciences of the German people the atrocities and iniquities of which they have been guilty. Even a military victory that will force the Germans to surrender will not convert that breed into peaceful neighbors. There is already talk of dealing tenderly with them. If such counsels prevail it will be counted as weakness in Germany. Indeed it will be an inspiration for another war of aggression when they are better prepared. Generosity is a virtue alien to the Hun. He cannot be made to understand it. If he has any religion it is a pagan worship of the God of Fortune—Christianity—and all that it teaches has disappeared from the Central Empires. Why practise gentle measures upon a wild beast? A wise plan is to put it in a cage and teach it obedience through fear. Let the allies declare that part of the punishment of the Hun is the turning of their capital city into a perpetual memorial of this war for them to contemplate whenever the spirit of conquest shows signs of revival and to assure them that a peaceable and durable maintenance of the status quo is the best result in a local paper and you will be appreciated and valued highly.

We argue therefore, that with the day of an allied victory arrived the triumphal army should march on Berlin. There the German leaders should publish a proclamation ordering all the people of the city to leave their homes, taking with them only what they valued so that no fire arm, pistol, rifle, or household goods can be confiscated. Then with the French 75's reduced to the same intensity of fire as in the battle of Verdun, and an hundred other pieces of artillery trained on their armament overran it. Furthermore, if one of the terms of peace is that the city of Berlin shall never be rebuilt, but that it shall remain as a square miles of wreckage to commemorate for all time the atrocious crimes of the German empire and people. Make it one of the terms of capitulation that if ever the Germans attempt to clear away the ruins and prepare to rebuild shall be held responsible for war by the victorious allies who will have defeated them.

There will be some who will forego this as an expression of the spirit of vengeance. No such thought inspired the writer. Looking back over the past four years he is convinced that we are to have peace in the Central Empires. The German people must be taught a lesson that they can understand. All punishment should be done rapidly. When we inflict it upon them we help in
